3-YEAR SENTENCE IN $492,000 THEFT

PENTICTON (CP)—Kathleen Ann Spiller, 26, was sentenced in magistrate's court today to three years for her part in the disappearance of $492,000 from the Royal Bank of Canada's Penticton branch.

Miss Spiller pleaded guilty last week to charges of theft over $50 and falsifying bank records.

As soon as sentence was passed, Miss Spiller gasped, clasped her hands to her face and dashed out of the courtroom with her lawyer Fred Herbert.

Still facing a theft charge in connection with the money disappearance is Frances (Bambi) Shubin, 41, a bookkeeper who shared a luxurious home in nearby Naramata with Miss Spiller.

She has not entered a plea on a charge of theft over $50 and will next appear in court November 25.

Saigon Wants To Head Talks

SAIGON (AP)—President Nguyen Van Thieu proposed today that his South Vietnamese government replace the United States as the leader of the anti-Communist negotiating team at the Paris peace talks.

Thieu proposed a new formula for organization of the Paris conference under which the Communist side would be led by the North Vietnamese. He said it could also include the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Even if the United States agrees to take a back seat at the Paris talks, North Vietnam appears certain to reject Thieu's attempt to give his government the No. 1 place on one side of the table while relegating the Viet Cong to a secondary role on the other. Hanoi has said repeatedly that the National Liberation Front is the only authentic representative of the South Vietnamese people.

TRIES TO COUNTER

Thieu's proposal was made in an attempt to counter the adverse reaction in the United States and elsewhere to his refusal to join the Paris peace talks this week.

President Johnson, in halting the bombing of North Vietnam, proposed that the Saigon regime and the NLF send representatives to the talks without specifying the status they would be accorded.

U.S. officials said Johnson envisioned a "your side-our side" conference with the position of the NLF and South Vietnamese delegations left vague. But Thieu refused because he said this was opening the door to recognition of the NLF, and he feared this would be the first step toward a coalition government which the Communists eventually would take over.

. . . And U.S. Studies Suggestion

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials promised prompt and careful study today of the South Vietnam government's proposal to take over from the United States the leading role in the Paris peace talks with North Vietnam.

Diplomatic officials feel South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's position increases the urgency of a meeting between President Johnson and President-elect Richard M. Nixon and administration authorities are expected to consult quickly with Nixon or his representatives.

There is a widespread belief in the U.S. government that Thieu hardened his position on negotiating with the Communists—including his boycott of the Paris talks—because he expects more support from Nixon than he felt he had received from Johnson.

U.S. officials say Thieu originally agreed South Vietnam would participate in the Paris talks on the U.S. side of the table and the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front would join North Vietnam on its side.

MEETS OPPOSITION

But U.S. informants said Thieu ran into strong opposition among his own supporters and officials after Johnson got word from Hanoi Oct. 27-28 that North Vietnam would accept the "two sides" formula.

Thieu backed out of the "two sides" agreement Oct. 29, U.S. officials reported later.

Authorities here believe he acted not only because of the opposition of many of his own officials but also because they believe Nixon would take a much firmer stand than they thought Johnson was taking on this issue.

Their objective has been to establish a strong position for their government in the talks and to compel North Vietnam to downgrade the National Liberation Front, the Viet Cong guerrillas' political arm.

Better Tax Deal Demanded Before BNA Act: Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said Ontario will not negotiate constitutional changes at next month's conference in Ottawa until the province gets a better tax deal from the federal government.

Mr. MacNaughton said in an interview Thursday, Canada must first resolve federal-provincial shared-cost programs before constitutional problems can be solved.

Mr. MacNaughton added that Ontario is more interested in fundamental questions of taxation than in constitutional changes.

The constitutional conference is scheduled for Dec. 17-18, followed by a conference Dec. 19 on federal-provincial taxation problems.

Queen's Park officials, who returned this week from taxation sessions in Ottawa said it would be impossible for the bitter atmosphere of the taxation talks not to seep into the constitutional sessions.

They gave Ontario's taxation problem top priority over such federal projects as putting the Bill of Rights in the constitution —something the federal government cannot do without provincial agreement.

Mr. MacNaughton said both he and Premier John Robarts are determined not to leave the taxation question in its present state.

WILL USE POEWR

He added that Ontario wants a full reorganization of the system of federal, provincial and municipal taxes, and to get this the province is prepared to use its full constitutional power.

It is one thing for Ottawa to provide money in shared-cost areas such as health and education programs, but another to dictate how it would be spent.

"The two-per-cent social development tax in the Benson budget will be used at least partly for medicare, and there is some doubt about Ottawa's right to impose it on that basis," Mr. MacNaughton said.

Quebec is expected to introduce the question of shared-cost programs at the constitutional conference and to support Ontario's position in demanding a better system of distributing federal money, a government spokesman said.

OTTAWA (CP) — An agreement by which two Caribou aircraft will distribute relief supplies through the International Red Cross has been concluded with Nigeria, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today.

Cong Bases Blasted

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of B-52 bombers raided Viet Cong base camps among the Cambodian border today, hitting an area northwest of Saigon where the South Vietnamese commander said the insurgents have massed some 60,000 troops for a "total attack."

Canada Will Abstain

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today Canada will take "the usual position" of abstaining on the Albanian motion to seat mainland China at the current session of the United Nations General Assembly.

Snow in Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canada's biggest city was hit today by its first snowfall of the season. Snow mixed with rain resulted in traffic tieups that were complicated by the fact that many people who normally commute to and from the city by train or bus use their cars on Fridays.

Czech Troops, Police Crack Down on Riots

PRAGUE (AP) — Thousands of anti-Soviet demonstrators marched through Prague Thursday night, shouting "Russians go home!" and burning Soviet flags in the biggest demonstrations since the Russian invasion in August.

Large numbers of Czechoslovak troops and police, under orders to crack down hard on the demonstrators, used water cannon, tear gas and clubs to break up the rioting.

Many persons were knocked down by police clubs, and many appeared to have been arrested. Ambulances carried away unknown numbers of wounded.

The six hours of rioting climaxed a tense, uneasy observance of the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, normally a day dedicated to Czechoslovak-Soviet friendship.

The tough police reaction contrasted sharply with the lenient manner in which anti-Soviet demonstrations were handled on Oct. 28, the 50th birthday of the Czechoslovak republic. Local leaders apparently were afraid that unchecked demonstrations would bring Soviet tanks rolling back into Prague.

Earlier, during a ceremony honoring Soviet soldiers killed during the Second World War, hard-line opponents of Czechoslovakia's liberal Communist party leader, Alexander Dubcek, grabbed him and shouted, "We're for the Soviet Union!"

Dubcek, who was with Premier Oldrich Cernik, managed a smile as several persons in the crowd shook their fists at the two leaders and shouted pro-Soviet slogans.

But in contrast to the thousands of anti-Soviets who turned out Thursday night, only about 500 pro-Soviets attended the memorial ceremony.

Nixon Sees Hubert

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — An aide to Richard M. Nixon said today the president-elect would meet with Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, the man he beat in Tuesday's U.S. election.

The meeting was arranged after Nixon phoned Humphrey earlier in the day and learned that the vice-president was bound for a Caribbean vacation.

Train Theft 'Ringleader' Arrested

TORQUAY, England (AP) — Bruce Reynolds, a suspected ringleader of Britain's Great Train Robbery five years ago, was arrested today in this favorite holiday resort of British millionaires on the southwest coast.

A police announcement said Reynolds was arrested in connection with the £2,500,000 train robbery Aug. 8, 1963. About £400,000 of the loot has been recovered.

The British press in past years has portrayed Reynolds as a ringleader in the robbery. Police made it clear he was a major quarry of theirs but did not spell out publicly his suspected role.

Before devaluation a year ago, the stolen loot was worth $7,500,000.

The capture of Reynolds left only Ronald Biggs, a relatively minor figure in the robbery, still at large. Biggs escaped from London's Wandsworth prison in July, 1965.

Reynolds, 37, will be brought to London for questioning.

Reynolds has been Britain's most wanted fugitive since 12 days after the 1963 robbery.

'Time to Get Younger Man'

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today announced he is withdrawing as leader of the provincial New Democratic Party to make way for a younger man.

In an emotion-choked voice he read a prepared statement to reporters during a recess in an NDP caucus in the Legislative Building.

STRACHAN
. . . move a surprise

Mr. Strachan, who turns 55 next month, said the NDP is on the verge of becoming the government and he would remain leader only until the spring convention when the party could choose the next man it expects to become permier.

Mr. Strachan is the second party leader to become a casualty this year of the rapidly-changing political scene. Ray Perrault dropped out as Liberal leader to win a federal seat and he was succeeded last month by Pat McGeer.

Premier Bennett was reaffirmed at last week's convention as Social Credit leader but the government party took steps to write succession machinery into its constitution for the first time.

Mr. Strachan's statement to reporters said:

"I have today informed the provincial caucus of the New Democratic Party that I will not accept renomination as the provincial leader of the party at the next regular convention to be held in April, 1969.

"I will continue to fulfil my duties as leader of the party until that time.

"By that time I will have been leader of the party for 13 years and in those years the party has been growing in strength until it is now stronger than it has ever been.

Party 'Close to Electoral Win'

"The New Democratic Party is very close to electoral victory and I feel that a younger man should be in the position to chart the course and carry the load of leadership through 20 years of government.

"I am making the announcement at this time to allow the party members adequate time for thought and decision as to whom they will choose as my successor.

"Being leader of the Democratic Socialist movement in British Columbia has been and is a fruitful and enjoyable experience and I pledge my full support and help to the individual who succeeds me, no matter who that may be.

"I want to thank the thousands of people all over the province who have given me their support and help during my years as provincial leader.

"They were the people who made it all worthwhile and possible."

SIT AS MLA

At the end of his prepared statement, Mr. Strachan, answering questions, said he planned to continue sitting out his current term as MLA for Cowichan-Malahat and has not decided yet whether he will seek re-election.

There was no immediate announcement from other members of caucus as to plans for entering the leadership race.

Alex MacDonald, deputy leader for the past three years, declined to make any statement but he is not expected to run for the post.

CONTENDERS

Leading potential candidates are David Barrett, young social worker and veteran MLA and party organizer, and Robert Williams, a young planning expert who has become a power during his freshman term as MLA.

Lawyer Tom Berger also is expected to make the move for a second time after having been repulsed two years ago when a convention rejected his challenge of Mr. Strachan's leadership.

A possible draft choice, in the event of deadlock among candidates, is seen in David Stupich, fiery accountant representing

Warehouse of Books, Files Subject of Intensive Probe

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today said a 10-man team of specialists has been assigned to go through a whole warehouseful of books and documents seized by RCMP Wednesday night from some 35 firms connected to the network "of what is known as the Commonwealth group."

He said the provincial government had frozen the bank and personal accounts of six individuals involved with the companies and indicated the federal government independently had seized other related documents.

The six individuals have been identified as A. G. Duncan Crux, Vancouver lawyer who was replaced in August by government-appointee A. D. Stanley as president of Commonwealth Trust (not under investigation now); Louis Lance Wener of Calgary; and Vancouverites Margaret Harlington, H. S. Harrison Smith, C. G. Cornelis, G. Polvliet and Meredith D. Saunders, all reported as connected still to the company or recently resigned.

Mr. Peterson emphasized that no trust companies in B.C. are included in the current investigation, and blamed the "unfortunate" blanket wording of an RCMP official's statement to a House of Commons committee for touching off a flurry of "runs" by investors and depositors of several trust companies in the province.

In Vancouver Thursday night, Mr. Stanley — who also was appointed by a court order, as receiver and custodian of the frozen assets of four specifically-named companies in the network — denied that he had estimated the potential loss as high as $80 million.

But he did say the sudden action was prompted by a fear that millions of dollars were about to be spirited out of the country from the companies and he confirmed that since his appointment he had discovered "some persons and companies had used funds for their own purposes."

Mr. Stanley said "we couldn't possibly say now what the figure is."

"If the attorney-general and the securities commission had not taken the action they did Wednesday (obtaining the freeze orders and seizing documents)

Special Canvassers Ready . . . Just Give Them a Call

People who were missed during the residential canvass of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal and want to make a donation may telephone the Community Chest office at 385-6708 and ask for a special canvasser to call on them.

Bill Patton of the Community Chest said today that many people were not home when the canvasser called and that a good percentage of these people likely will want to give.

"All they have to do is call us and we'll send a canvasser out to see them," he said.

He added that donations may be made to the United Appeal drive at the main branches of all Victoria banks, Woodward's, The Bay, Red Cross House and at the Community Chest office in Spencerhouse.

At noon today the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal fund stood at $431,950, or 65.6 per cent of its $655,000 objective.

Appeal officials hope to be "very near" the target within two weeks.

there would be a lot less money in the kitty today."

Mr. Peterson refused to speculate on how much money might be involved and also whether charges would be laid under either the provincial securities act or the federal criminal code.

NOT EXTRADICTABLE

He did say, when asked, that such charges would not be extradictable if they should be laid against someone outside of the country.

He said that Vancouver accountant Donald Gardner, who is in private business, has been retained to help three securities division investigators and the special six-man "commercial fraud squad," formally established by the RCMP in the province 18 months ago when tougher regulations and a major revision of the Securities Act were instituted.

Mr. Peterson said it was normal practice in a securities investigation to bring in an outsider and he added that most of the RCMP squad members were trained accountants and lawyers.

He said the large team was assembled "because there is a tremendous volume of documents — we've had to rent a separate warehouse to house the documents."

"It can't help but be a lengthy investigation from the complex nature and volume of the documents," he added but declined to guess on the time that would be needed.

Mr. Peterson said he would not rule out the possibility that more documents might be seized druing the course of the investigation but added with a smile "we're not likely to seize the same quantity again."

Mr. Peterson declined to background the reasons for the action and would only say "whatever infractions of our laws may or may not have been incurred will be uncovered by the investigation.

"The primary purpose of the investigation is to determine if any infractions have occurred and to protect the investors."

Mr. Peterson appeared surprised by the amount of publicity about the case and emphasized that normal procedures were being followed throughout including the government's effort to avoid any publicity.

He said nothing would have got out but for the requirement for a court order and the "unfortunate" statement by RCMP deputy-commissioner Kelly in testimony before a Commons committee the same day.

REPRIMAND

Mr. Peterson said the department rarely announces security investigations because they may only lead to a conclusion that nothing is wrong or only a technical reprimand on practices is needed. Announcements normally are made only when official action is required by such investigations.

He said Deputy-Commissioner Kelly's statement that a number of trust and financial companies were being investigated "created a great deal of worry and concern because of the widespread application of this statement.

"There are no trust companies in the province involved in this investigation. There is one trust company outside of the province involved but this (statement) created considerable anxiety on the part of investors in all trust companies in this province."

He re-emphasized that the federal government's deposit insurance protects trust company investors up to $20,000 individually so there never was need for any alarm even with the misunderstanding.

In Montreal, William H. Zimmerman, president of Commonwealth International Corporation Ltd. and Commonwealth International Leverage Fund Ltd., mutual funds, issued a statement disassociating the companies with B.C.'s Commonwealth Acceptance Corp. Ltd., Commonwealth Investors Syndicate, Commonwealth Savings Plan Ltd. and Diversified Income Fund.

Exploitation Of Falcons

The annula meeting of the Pacific Northwest Bird and Mammal Society will be held in the provincial museum's Newcombe Auditorium on Saturday at 2 p.m.

During the afternoon session a variety of topics related to wildlife on the west coast will be discussed, and papers dealing with such esoteric matters as reproduction of giraffes and the exploitation of peregine falcons will be presented.

Dave Hancock, vice-president of the society, said the papers will be of interest to local naturalists and conservationists.

The evening session, beginning at 8 p.m., will feature a talk by artist adventurer Clarence Tellenius entitled "A Hunt with the Eskimos," and will includ an Indian potlatch salmon barbecue.

The meeting is open to the public.

Mr. Strachan's announcement was unexpected since he had shrugged off a Young New Democrats resolution only last month asking that he step down for a younger man.

CONFIRMED RUMORS

But Mr. Strachan and Mr. Stupich confirmed rumors that in the last session the NDP leader had told his colleagues he planned to resign at the party's spring convention earlier this year.

Mr. Stupich and other MLAs persuaded him to change his mind so no resignation was tendered.

The Opposition leader's decision will inevitably increase the pressure—which hit a minor peak in the past month but has not receded entirely—on Premier Bennett to step aside too.

OLDEST IN CANADA

Mr. Bennett, at 68, is not only the oldest leader of a government anywhere in Canada but his age compares with the average of 40 years for all 10 premiers and the federal prime minister—a comparison that will be exaggerated next year when Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland and Ernest Manning of Alberta (who are the next oldest to Mr. Bennett now) have completed their announced departures from public life.

Saigon Visit Up to LBJ, Says Nixon

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (CP) — Richard M. Nixon has given himself at least a month to choose his top administration officials and has ruled out any personal intervention in the shaky Vietnam peace negotiations unless President Johnson expressly wishes it.

The Republican president-elect has deferred to Johnson a decision on visits by him (Nixon) to Saigon and other foreign capitals before the inauguration Jan. 20.

The Vietnam trip, proposed Thursday by South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu, likely will come up in an early meeting between Nixon and Johnson.

Nixon, who came to this small luxury island off the Florida coast for a few days rest immediately after his election triumph Tuesday, is not likely to return to his New York home until Monday.

He and his wife, Pat, are staying at the home of Florida Democratic Senator George Smathers, who is retiring at the end of the year. Their daughters, Tricia, 22, and Julie, 19, have taken rooms at a nearby hotel.

ENJOYS IT

Nixon sources said the president-elect enjoys working in the relaxed holiday atmosphere of Key Biscayne and probably will make it his "vacation White House."

Nixon's firm stand against early involvement in the Vietnam negotiations was made known Thursday night, shortly after Thieu sent him a cable inviting him to Saigon.

Press aide Ron Ziegler told reporters Nixon felt the negotiations must be clearly handled by Johnson, and he would only make a trip to Saigon or Paris if the White House suggested "it would be helpful in furthering negotiations toward peace."

Nixon's stand is consistent with the position he took throughout his election campaign—that for anyone other than the incumbent president to discuss the peace talks "would be inappropriate and highly irresponsible."

FIND INTERESTING

The White House declined comment on Nixon's reply to the South Vietnamese cable but diplomats and government officials in Washington found the idea of a Saigon trip by the president-elect intriguing.

Some saw it as an opportunity to make use of Nixon's known popularity with the South Vietnamese to nudge Saigon into ending its boycott of the stalled Vietnam peace talks.

An early meeting between the president and president-elect is expected to be announced in the next few days.

The meeting would presumably touch on foreign relations and the new budget, which President Johnson will present and Nixon will have to live with.

Ziegler said Nixon plans no foreign trip.

Authoritative sources in Paris said President de Gaulle would welcome a visit by Nixon.

Sources in Key Biscayne said Nixon has received several invitations to visit foreign capitals, and added it was possible the heads of state might find it possible to visit Nixon in New York before the inauguration.

SEEK REFORM

In Washington, congressional leaders said they're assigning top priority to reform of the Electoral College system of electing presidents.

Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem., N.Y.), chairman of the House of Representatives judiciary committee, said in an interview Thursday he will schedule hearings as soon as possible next year to consider reforming the Electoral College.

Nixon has been credited with winning 30 states and 287 electoral votes—only 17 more than a majority—on the basis of unofficial returns, although he could pick up more when absentee ballots are counted and official results are announced.

Nixon led Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey in Missouri, 766,169 to 758,547 with as many as 100,000 absentee ballots to be counted. The state has 12 electoral votes.

Nixon held a 902-vote lead in Alaska, with returns from some outlying areas and 7,000 absentee votes still to be counted. The state has three electoral votes.

Trip to Upper Falls

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a field trip to the upper falls Goldstream campsite.

If weather is bad the group will go to the Auditorium at Francis Park.

STRIKE 'PRIMITIVE, HURTS WORKER MORE'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A New Democratic Party official said Thursday that the strike is a primitive weapon that often hurts the worker more than the boss.

John Laxton, British Columbia NDP president, told the British Columbia Federation of Labor convention that labor is not giving enough thought to solutions to problems.

"If compulsory arbitration is not the answer to disputes, the answer surely is not the strike," he said. "The strike is a primitive weapon. It often hurts the workers more than the boss."

Mr. Laxton said it is time labor began discussing not only what it is against but also what it is for.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

VANCOUVER AIRPORT measured nearly one-half inch of rain in 12 hours Thursday night and more exposed areas such as Tofino on the west coast of Vancouver Island received over an inch in a six-hour period. Princeton was hit with two inches of snow overnight and rain and snow was reported in all Interior regions. The associated disturbance moved inland this morning but rain lingered in some parts of the south coast. Another disturbance hard on the heels of this one will bring rain and gales to coastal regions tonight and Saturday morning.

Uvic Activists Losing Support For 'Irrational, Premature' Action

By ALAN WHITE

A virulent minority has so far failed to throw the quiet, consistent approach to reform off the track at the University of Victoria.

The campus this week has begun to stir with a reaction that demands a realistic look at the university structure and a full consideration of what modifications are desired.

Individual students and undergraduate organizations are coming to grips with the mood for change. And they are preparing briefs for study by senate committees.

A walk-in on a Faculty of Arts and Sciences meeting Tuesday by about 10 students appears to have failed in its intent. Many students have said since they are tired of being misrepresented.

FRKETICH

Backlash

Ray Kraft, a student member of the university senate, is one of these.

"It's irrational," he said of the walk-in.

He also predicted there would be a backlash against the minority who carried it out.

Other activities this week have also pointed to the reaction:

- Wednesday night the physics club called a meeting of all science students and professors to consider alternatives to some of the changes proposed. They decided many of them were not relevant to a study of science and that alternatives must be suggested.
- The same night students' council pushed through a formal approval of the system of subcommittees now investigating demands for change.
- The number of briefs prepared by students for the five subcommittees has suddenly increased, indicating a quickening interest in what is being done. One professor reported 12 briefs submitted to a committee which had received none up to this week.
- An attempt Wednesday night to organize a union in the English department fell through when fewer than 20 persons turned up. But another meeting has been called for next week.
- A petition is being circulated on campus calling for voluntary payment of Alma Mater Society (student body) fees.

They are now compulsory and students have objected to having to pay for activities they oppose. Opposition was particularly strong against membership in the Canadian Union of Students, at a levy of $1 per student.

Council Wednesday blocked an effort at rejoining CUS — only a week after it withdrew.

Dissatisfied

Those are a few of the specific steps taken by various groups in just the past few days.

Students in close contact with the general attitude on campus have indicated a growing dissatisfaction with the group they term activists.

Several of those working with faculty on committees have called the action Tuesday "premature," "irrational," and a "waste of time."

The most intensive reaction was from the science students, who Wednesday held a three-hour meeting with professors to discuss just what was wrong and what needed changing.

The sciencemen do not consider themselves in the mainstream of dissent at Uvic.

Peter James, a fourth-year honors student and president of the physics club, said they have decided that events and political manoeuvres on campus had little to do with them.

They organized their own "forum for change," attended by more than 100 students and faculty.

Their particular object of study was a brief prepared by students council president Frank Frketich and presented to the university in July.

It called for reconsideration of all prerequisite courses — which students are compelled to take — and an end to evaluation for students. It also suggested an end to the order in which courses are offered, asking that students be allowed to study what they want, and in the order they want.

The science students have objected — although Wednesday's meeting was the first organized opposition — to many of the suggestions made. They say their courses have to be ordered and tested to ensure they learn their material properly and progressively.

But that didn't deter them from criticizing the way things are done now and offering alternatives.

Art Scwartz, a fourth-year honors physics student, told the group the majority on campus is being misrepresented by a small organization.

Some changes are necessary, he said, but not an overthrow of the system.

"That's irrational," he said, referring in particular to the interruption of faculty meetings.

The solution was to study the university structure and modify it "so it works, if it needs it."

Duty

"If the students are not truly represented then the science students have a duty," to offer their own proposals.

Dr. Harry Sullivan, an assistant professor of physics, added that many of the changes said to be necessary in the student brief "have been expressed in vague generalities."

Students appeared to want control over subject matter of courses and Dr. Sullivan asked rhetorically if they hoped to ease "the road to learning."

"About the only other possible reason for unrest . . . that I can see is the need for a cause for which to fight," he added.

The faculty is taking a close look at all suggestions made "to avoid doing something which may be regrettable both to yourselves and to us."

The audience — composed of studetns and professors from several sciences as well as arts students — then questioned the panel for more than two hours.

Revolution

One student in the audience aroused an initial opposition in the group by speaking in favor of the "revolution." But then he added the observation that many of those involved "are politically oriented and interested in having power over other people."

The value of the pressure felt on campuses for a structural change was that it brought students and professors together for discussion of what was suggested and what was wrong, he said.

Among topics discussed were self-evaluation by students and prerequisite courses. The prerequisites, object of much of the scorn of students, are listed as compulsory.

One course that appeared to create much of the opposition by science students was first-year English. Many said such courses were of no interest or use to them and took up too much of their time.

'Cutting Remarks'

These courses were the specific complaint of the group who walked in on the facluty meeting, causing its cancellation.

Jim Bennett, a student councillor in his first term of office, had a few cutting remarks about that action. Basically, he said, the facts were distorted.

A council meeting Wednesday night accepted a bill for $35 for printing handbills announcing the walk-in. They had authorized the action of the printing, but put it down to the budget of the academic symposium committee. It was called a "spontaneous symposium" by one councillor.

Mr. Bennett listed the four points taken from the agenda for the closed faculty meeting and printed on the handbill, and said:

"Mr. Greene (councillor Jeff Green, organizer of the action) baited his sheep with this and the statement that 'Students think it's about time they had a say in the decisions affecting their environment,',,

'Facts Distorted'

"I say the above facts are distorted," Mr. Bennett said.

He had checked faculty and then suggested the complaints of the activists were, in effect, groundless.

Most of the conditions they were pressuring for were already in practice and some faculty members wanted to make them even freer for students.

"The students are getting a say through the senate subcommittees, which to my knowledge are proving to be successful," Mr. Bennett said.

"The faculty are in sympathy with our requests for the most part. They are proving this by taking of their valuable time to sit on these subcommittees.

"If discussion was really wished by the students participating . . . in the sit-in, other channels were and are available to them, aside from

On the Firing Line

THE HEAVY GUNS OF THE OPposition parties, and in particular the heavy tones of Mr. Stanfield, have been directed with increasing concentration on federal government policies and the characters of the men who only recently were chosen by a majority of the nation to manage its affairs. It is as the leader of a party which failed to gain the country's approval and confidence that Mr. Stanfield accuses the Liberal government of behaving like "typical tough guys . . . almost like gangsters . . . and just as crooked."

This is forceful talk from the Opposition Leader, who a few months ago was castigating the preceding government for its lack of toughness. The net effect on uninformed readers or hearers could be to create a general impression of unthinking irresponsibility among the government leaders. Mr. Stanfield is falling into the pattern of a daily denunciation of whatever it may be that the government has done, and the feeling grows that no matter what it does the criticism will flow in constant quantity and heat.

The fact is that beyond a few general basic principles of economics and finance, and an adherence to honesty, no expert can be completely confident today of the exact course of future developments, or of the exactly correct measures to impose to meet situations as they arise. It is much easier to denounce what has been done by somebody else than to originate the perfect policy. And in launching his invective at the government benches, Mr. Stanfield is only duplicating the conduct of opposition leaders in every country where democratic debate is permitted. No government has perfect judgment—but no Opposition has either.

Mr. Trudeau is much too candid a man to pretend otherwise. At Calgary recently, for instance, in addressing the Canadian Chamber of Commerce convention, the Prime Minister plainly admitted: "The truth is that the financial situation which the government faces over the next few years was not foreseen at the time when many of our present programs were begun." That is a remark which any government leader in the world could truthfully make—but which not all would.

One of the major concerns of the federal government today is the rapid rise in the cost of the so-called open-end programs of welfare, health and educational assistance. Mr. Trudeau, recalling the period of "exceptional growth" in the Canadian economy during 1964, '65 and '66, when "many of the programs which are now putting great pressure on our financial resources were initiated," notes that the increase in federal spending over the past ten years has been roughly in line with the increase in the GNP, but that "the total spending of the provinces and municipalities has increased about twice as fast to the point where it now substantially exceeds the federal budget."

* * *

Faced with the fact that "the costs of many existing programs are now rising much faster than government revenues," the competition of the various levels of government for the taxpayer's dollar is becoming sharper. While governments are blamed, of course, and with some justification, the plain truth is that the public has demanded so many new services and so many extensions of old ones in the welfare society which we are fashioning that no government revenues could keep pace with them.

In opposition, speakers can freely demand services and just as freely denounce the costs. In government, the unpopular choices of refusing services or taxing to pay for them must be made. And when Mr. Stanfield says that Finance Minister Benson ought to be selling patent medicine rather than trying to run the country's finances, he is clearly trying to peddle a little snake oil himself.

Ear Pollution

WHATEVER THE PARTICULAR merits involved in the decision by Oak Bay Council to reject a hovercraft base in the municipality, major concern about noise was expressed by opponents of the project. Ear pollution is becoming recognized as a serious problem in industrialized nations; it will demand increasing attention in the future. Humans can tolerate only so much noise before physical and psychological breakdowns occur.

Doctors have discovered that a daily eight-hour exposure to 105 decibels of noise will cause hearing loss for all workers. Some are affected at lower levels. A loud outboard motor generates 102 decibels; a loud power mower 107 decibels. A jet plane at takeoff reaches 150 decibels. It can be seen that we all flirt daily with potential injury.

In the United States there is special concern about the consequences of increasing numbers of jet aircraft and the coming supersonic airliner. A new law has been approved by Congress to regulate aircraft noise levels, but it is a minimal measure that only begins to cope with the overall problem.

With one aircraft take-off blast per day, a community could be expected to put up with a rating of 115 decibels. But with 128 flights a day, the tolerance level drops to 94 decibels. People who live adjacent to Kennedy Airport in New York now are subjected to 700 jet take-offs a day.

The experts admit that blaring rock-and-roll music at a level of 100 decibels seems to have a soothing tonic effect on most youngsters while it drives their parents to distraction and can kill a mouse. So where is the line between mere annoyance and actual health hazard? The scientists maintain that annoyance alone can aggravate existing physical disorders. It disturbs the conditions which are essential to one's feelings of well-being.

In any case, the over-riding consideration should be each person's right to "domestic tranquility," as the U.S. constitution phrased it. That is a basic concern that is too often ignored in these hectic, blaring times. If we can still hear ourselves think over the din, it deserves some thought.

Fined for Getting Left?

THE CITY'S PUBLIC WORKS committee, its chairman, Alderman Clyde Savage, and Mayor Hugh Stephen, have demonstrated a gratifying reaction to the traffic engineer's suggestion that a new bylaw be passed giving police discretionary powers to charge motorists caught by a red light in an intersection. All agree that this is a bylaw the city can do without.

The mayor and aldermen are to be commended for their decision. There are far too many efforts these days to put laws on the books which leave it up to a policeman to decide whether or not a person is guilty of a crime. The rejected clause would have made it illegal for a driver to be caught in an intersection after the light turns red, yet proponents of the measure insisted that the policeman could ignore the law if he thought it was not the driver's fault that he was left stranded in the traffic flow. What kind of law-making is that?

Let us have only laws that are enforced—and no laws that should not be.

". . . then you must be the new dummy . . ."

Confused and Worthless

The other night I attended a University production at the Phoenix Theatre. The company presented a lengthy, frightfully verbose and confused play named "Measure for Measure." The scene was the city of Vienna and to my great amazement and dismay, the "author" depicted this lovable city as a sinful Sodom, teeming with lechery, ribald speeches and gestures, a hippieful of the worst imomral filth—and this on university grounds!

A native of Vienna myself, I can assure Victorian theatre-goers that the morals of the population of Vienna are no worse than those to be found anywhere in Canada — including Vancouver and Victoria! The scribbler of "Measure for Measure" most probably never saw Vienna, and out of cheap sensationalism, saw fit to smear and slander the character of a far-off city, the city of Mozart, Schubert, Strauss and "The Great Waltz." But what irks me even more is the fact that a serious, responsible theatre company did not hesitate to accept for presentation such a biased and artistically worthless "dramatic" effort!

A newcomer to Victoria, I planned to settle in your beautiful city. But, after viewing this dreadful play, I'd better move on—measure for measure.—C. W. Berger.

WORDS, WORDS, WORDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

No Communication When There's Nothing to Say

AT a recent meeting of the Liberal caucus in Ottawa it is alleged that Paul St. Pierre, MP for Cariboo, British Columbia, uttered a dreadful question. "How," he asked the prime minister, "do you expect to communicate with 20 million Canadians when you can't communicate with 150 men in this room?" Or words to that effect. I cannot vouch for the accuracy of this charming exchange but it sounds like the crusty Mr. St. Pierre, my friend and former editorial colleague. In any case, if he didn't ask the question attributed to him he should have.

Hutchison

It is time that someone punctured the pompous cliche of communication, and as one of the few trained communicators in politics, Mr. St. Pierre was the right man to do it.

Everything is blamed nowadays on lack of communication when the real lack is something to communicate. You might suppose, from the current jargon of the political scientists, that they have a mighty secret, a solution to all problems, which they would reveal to an eager mankind if they were not throttled by the wicked "media."

We stand beside the tower of truth and if we could only find the magic password the door would open upon a garden of delights, a very Camelot, or better still, on Mr. St. Pierre's imaginary kingdom of Cariboo. Alas, no one, not even Mr. Trudeau, has found the word yet and we are left shivering in the dark.

Increasingly Difficult

Admittedly, the communication of ideas becomes increasingly difficult as the means of communicating them increases. But this is not the fault of the communication apparatus. It is the fault of the audience, the nature of modern society in which ideas multiply faster than our capacity to absorb them.

The science of politics, for example, is much more complicated than any physical science because it deals with consistently changing materials. A physicist can rely on the laws of matter. A chemist can mix certain elements and be sure of the result. But a politician cannot be sure of anything in advance since he works with human beings who are incalculable, their chemistry of emotion altering from day to day.

Moreover, the gap between the politician's world and the world of the ordinary citizen is not closing. It is widening. Modern government involves so many technical problems of finance, economics, international power and above all, psychology, that the ordinary citizen understands it far less than his father understood the simple government of an earlier day. Even the higher intellectual community, as C. P. Snow once said in a famous lecture, is split so widely that scientists, artists and politicians of the same nation no longer speak the same language. With all our machinery of automatic information we still inhabit our separate solitudes, our padded cells.

Yet the ordinary citizen, at election time, is supposed to be capable of deciding issues that he has never seriously studied, as if an ignorant layman were well equipped to advise a neurological surgeon in the middle of a brain operation. By a similar assumption, the surgeon who may know and care nothing about politics is entitled to vote a government in or out as he pleases.

But It Works

Democracy, rejecting all the facts of human experience, does not allow anyone to be politically more equal than others but its assumption, though reckless and improbable, works more satisfactorily than the assumptions of any alternative system so far invented.

It works in its queer fashion mainly because the ordinary citizen, knowing that some men are obviously more equal than others, no matter what the law may say, judges its leaders, with a profound, instinctive and almost infallible wisdom before it gives them power to govern. The voter may not understand the problem. He understands the men and usually chooses the best ones for the immediate occasion. He makes mistakes, to be sure, but his batting average in the choice of men is higher than Babe Ruth's in baseball.

Blanket for Vacuum

If the leaders of a democracy find it difficult to reach the public, and must often speak in sly hints of meaningless shorthand, communication is not their basic problem. Their basic problem is to discover what they want to say — in fact, to frame a policy. And most of the time they use words to cover a vacuum of policy. They beat up a sugar coating of rhetoric in the hopes that the public will not notice the absence of a cake beneath it.

Despite the mind-gap and the many solitudes, however, any politician who has a policy can communicate it all right. The "media," though not very bright, are only waiting and panting for some definite intelligence to distribute to their audience. They seldom get it.

Mr. St. Pierre, an outstanding professional newspaperman before he reformed and became an amateur politician, knows this truth as well as anyone. So does Mr. Trudeau who was an amateur newspaperman before a wise electorate realized that he was something more valuable. If Mr. St. Pierre voiced a brash heresy he was merely needling his leader, as you would expect, for the hell of it. He was introducing the blunt cowboy manners of Cariboo into the secrecy of the Liberal caucus where they are doubtless needed now and then.

Mr. Trudeau will not resent such candor since it is his own secret, and public, weapon. He, among all Canadian statesmen, living or dead, is the master of communication or, when he chooses, the master also of non-communication. If he is not communicating much these days besides the almost incommunicable figures of his budget, it is not because he lacks the necessary talent and machinery. It is because he has not made up his mind yet and wishes to think before he speaks — a rare habit in prime ministers and probably frustrating to his caucus.

More Closed Doors

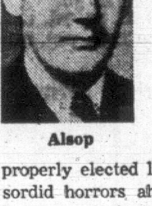
Anyhow, once he has ideas and policies to announce they will leap like lightning across the solitudes and strike the public at all levels. But we should not imagine that if the door to the dark tower of truth is opened at last by the magic word it will lead us into Camelot, or even into the Just Society. There is a second door behind the first, an endless succession of doors and echoing corridors. The echo of an earlier pilgrim's voice will serve the politicians well enough, and sound quite original, when they have nothing of their own to communicate.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

A Suspenseful Wait for Nixon's Course

SEVERAL obvious lessons can be drawn from the astonishing election, which has given the country Richard M. Nixon as a minority president by the margin of a very thin hair. To begin with, the antiquated machinery of the Electoral College should be abolished without further delay. A change of a percentage point or so in one of the big states that went for Nixon could have left this country without a properly elected leader, and with all the sordid horrors ahead that would necessarily result from a non-election.



Alsop

To go on with, if the liberal Democrats find the Nixon administration not to their taste (as they most surely will), they have no one but themselves to blame. With five days more campaigning, Hubert H Humphrey would have been where Richard Nixon is today, and the reason Humphrey's campaign was so slow to get off the ground was the egocentric, self-contained posturing of the left-wing of his own party.

Indeed, if President-elect Nixon were to pay his most significant political debts, Sen. Eugene McCarthy would have a high place in his administration. And sub-cabinet posts would be about evenly divided between the big money contributors from Texas and elsewhere, and the academic and journalistic intellectuals who did more for Nixon than any fat-cat could possibly do, by the pre-and post-Chicago sneering that prevented Humphrey from gaining momentum until it was a just a bit too late.

Exceptional Man

But these facts, though obvious and important, are still a good deal less important than the main fact, which is the prospect of a Nixon administration. Concerning this, one must begin by saying that Nixon's comeback from the depths of disaster is quite enough, is and of itself, to prove that the President-elect is an exceptional man. What he has accomplished is truly remarkable, and the remarkable character of his accomplishment is also a major and encouraging sign for the future.

That being said, however, the rest is all doubt and speculation. For at this juncture, no one at all, perhaps even including the president-elect himself, really knows what Nixon's choice will be between the two strategies that are open to him.

As he well knows himself, Richard Nixon, like Lyndon B. Johnson, is not the kind of political leader who commands strong personal love and loyalty. He has the advantage over Johnson that he has faced this fact about himself, and he makes his plans accordingly. But this fact, again of major significance, leaves Nixon with only two alternatives that he can choose between as a minority president.

Options

Crudely speaking, he can turn sharp right, or he can move sharp left; but he cannot stay where he is, aiming to be all things to all men. In other words, he can try to create a new coalition of all the conservative elements in the American electorate, not forgetting the southerners and northerners who voted for George C. Wallace—a smaller group than had been feared, but still a substantial group, sufficient to provide a solid majority if added to the Nixon vote on Tuesday.

Or he can instead try to do the sort of thing he was so mistakenly expected to do, at any rate in a small way, when so many people were so sure that Mayor John Lindsay of New York would be his vice-presidential choice. In other words, he can try to create a broad-spectrum, centre-government, commanding moderate Democratic as well as moderate Republican support.

In the whole record, there is not a particle of evidence to indicate which choice Nixon now leans towards. His own closest advisers are sharply split, between the big-state northerners who generally advocate course number two, and the theorists of the "Southern Strategy" who prefer course number one. But Nixon is a man who makes his own choice in any case.

The composition of the Nixon cabinet will tell something, and it may even tell a good deal, about the choice Nixon means to make. For example, he has said that he will have a bi-partisan cabinet, including Democrats as well as Republicans. But he has said nothing to indicate that these Democrats will not be men like former Governor Allen Shivers of Texas, who headed the Democrats-for-Nixon committee.

Yet there is in truth no solid evidence at all as yet to point the way Nixon will now go—except perhaps for his choice of Spiro T. Agnew as vice-president instead of the waiting Lindsay. We must wait a while, until this shrewd, careful, long-headed man has weighed the factors and matured his plans; and we must wait again until these plans are unmistakably unveiled. It will be a suspenseful wait.

Looking Back

From The Times, Nov. 8, 1908.

W. J. Pendray and Mrs. Pendray have returned from a six months' trip to eastern Canada, the United States and the British Isles.

While in England, Mr. Pendray visited his old home and studied the latest in soap manufacture with the object of introducing some new ideas into the factory here.

The result of his visit will be the improving of the machinery in the local works with a view of improving the quality of the goods.

Younger Voters

The Globe and Mail

In broadening their electoral franchise, Britons have now gone about as far as they can go: by early 1970, probably well before the next general election, voters aged 18 to 20 will add another three million names to the nation's voting list.

When Britain undertakes a major change in political customs, can Canada be far behind? Already three Canadian provinces (Quebec, Saskatchewan and Alberta) have dropped their voting age. Talk of doing the same thing has been a Queen's Park pastime for more than 20 years. Most image-conscious politicians affirm they trust anybody under 20; even Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau hinted during the June election that he might be persuaded to forget his old distrust of the follies of youth.

So what is he waiting for. A Royal Commission?

Distemper of Our Times—PART ELEVEN

It Was Trudeau Against Field

'New Guys and New Ideas'

By PETER C. NEWMAN

At the beginning, when his campaign was still a phantom movement among enthusiasts who had no assurance they would end up with a candidate, Pierre Trudeau himself was at first amused, then troubled, by the idea of contesting the leadership.

Quite apart from feeling that he was so new to politics that it would be presumptuous to consider the top job, he feared that he could never win the party over to his ideas.

At the same, time, he had doubts whether the double constraints of the existing cabinet structure and the entrenched power of Ottawa's bureaucracy would allow him to lead a government according to his own style and in his own direction.

Just before Christmas he confided to a few close friends, "You know, before I make my decision, I've got to find out whether it's really possible to do anything once you get into the prime minister's office."

After his successful appearances at the Quebec and Ontario Liberal association meetings in late January and early February, and following his dramatic television confrontation with Premier Daniel Johnson during the federal-provincial conference on the constitution, Trudeau decided (on February 16) to become a candidate.

Almost immediately, he demonstrated an astonishing rapport with both the public and the delegates. Suddenly it became Trudeau against the rest.

The Liberal professionals running against him, earnestly spelling out the details of their policy commitments, seemed to be treating the many difficult issues facing the nation as segments of public opinion to be assuaged.

Trudeau, even though he was the least specific of all the candidates in the pledges he made, projected the determination of a man who views politics as a moral commitment. He began to evolve his ideas for turning Canada into what he labelled a "just society."

Here, it seemed, was a politician who promised to end the long, exhausted era of "postwar Canada" and to launch a time, still nameless, filled with challenges the nation was aching to undertake.

Riding a chartered jet and wearing a leather coat, Trudeau travelled 20,000 miles, making 30 stops, during his leadership campaign. His every appearance brought standing ovations.

He seemed able, without strain, to establish personal contact with his audiences, operating on a private wave length the other candidates couldn't jam.

In Victoria, where the monarchy was still an important issue, local Liberals closely questioned Trudeau on a topic he had previously dismissed as irrelevant.

He won the crowd over with a shrug and the comment: "I was in Saskatoon last night and crowned a very lovely queen, so I feel very warm toward the monarchy."

There was a certain shock value in his appearances. The delegates came prepared to be fascinated and scandalized by a wild man in sandals spouting socialist slogans. Instead they found an immaculate, demure professor delivering proposals that sounded exciting but would not have been out of place in any Canadian Manufacturers' Association brief.

"The truth," wrote Paul Fox, the University of Toronto political scientist, in the Toronto Daily Star "is that beneath his dashing image Pierre Trudeau is conservative.

"His attitude on many matters is cautious and conventional—on the constitution, for instance, on medicare, on the sale of war material to the United States, on NATO and other matters, as his public statements during the current campaign are now beginning to make clear.

'Sweeter to Their Ears'

"That is the source of his appeal to many English Canadians. They like his conservative, hard line on Quebec. It is just what they have been waiting to hear from anyone and, coming from a French Canadian, it is all the sweeter to their ears."

Unable to classify him as either a man of the right or a man of the left, most of Trudeau's listeners seemed happy to regard him simply as a man of the future.

Trudeau's organization in Ottawa was now operating at full tilt, with an executive committee consisting of Jim Davey, Pierre Levasseur, Jean-Pierre Goyer, Gordon Gibson, Donald Macdonald and Gerard Pelletier.

It had attracted a swarm of hip young women, including Gwen Clark, Merle Shain, Jennifer Rae and Allison Gordon, who wrote press releases, designed cheerleaders' costumes for the convention and added pizazz to the scene.

Despite its outward appearance of amateurish gaiety, the inner core of the Trudeau organization was tough and businesslike.

Every step of the campaign was plotted on a critical-path flow chart, each delegate's loyalties and wavering potential were tabulated by computers.

There was even a "war room" to which the organization's spies (pretty girls in clinging dresses who had infiltrated the other candidates' organizations) came to be debriefed.

Gambled on His Impact

The strategy of the Trudeau backers was simply "the campaign is the man". His advisers—gambling on the impact Trudeau would have on delegates as compared with that of his opponents—believed that little hardsell was needed.

Great care was taken to avoid attacking the other candidates. The secret Trudeau manual stated explicitly:

"At the end of the Convention it will be necessary to have a united party. With this in mind:

1. Maximum care should be exercised to avoid any attacks or action that will hurt or damage other candidates.

2. Confrontations with them should be avoided if at all possible.

3. The best way to achieve this is to run a campaign that, as far as possible, ignores the presence of other candidates. If comment on them is required, it should be to the effect that they are fine, competent men who clearly believe they have something to offer the party and the country. It is good and healthy for the party that they are presenting themselves. The delegates will have the opportunity to hear points of view and make a choice."

The fact that Trudeau's candidacy, which at the beginning of the race had no roots within the party apparatus—and indeed, was hardly more than a seed of speculation in the minds of a few friends—could burst into full flower within weeks indicated a great deal about the country and the Liberal Party.

It meant that national politics was passing through one of its periodic upheavals when a relatively non-partisan outsider moves in to reform and recharge the system.

Within the Liberal ranks there was still formidable opposition to Trudeau but the group that opposed him as an interloper no longer controlled the party.

More realistic and more modern Liberals admitted only that Trudeau was difficult to categorize. His manner was certainly ostentatiously anti-Establishment, as was his connection with trade unionism. But his upbringing, background and education gave him an Establishment aura.

Any die-hard doubters who confided their qualms to Lester Pearson found the departing Prime Minister enthusiastic about Trudeau.

One visitor who brought some personal doubts about the Justice Minister's ideological position was assured by Pearson that he had taken the trouble of sending for Trudeau's RCMP file and had found nothing in it that would cast doubt on his character.

As the leadership campaign raced toward the climax of the Ottawa convention, Trudeau's opponents clustered with their advisors, trying to divine the source of his political magic, suspicious that he had some special trick that could be mastered.

Emissaries Observed Him

They sent emissaries to observe him, talk to him, touch him. But the couriers came back as puzzled as ever, variously reporting that it must be his looks, or his youth, his money, his suspected radicalism, or maybe his reputation as an intellectual. But Turner was younger, Winters handsomer, Kierans more radical, Hellyer richer and Martin had more degrees.

Still Trudeau plunged serenely on, maintaining his inner repose, refusing to dissolve his personality or lend himself to the gravitational pull of the campaign. And the more he held back, the more the crowd wanted a piece of him.

It was as though Trudeau was performing what Norman Mailer once described as "the indispensable psychic act of a leader, who takes national anxieties so long buried and releases them to the surface where they belong." This was the mystery that made him the source of such fascination, the trick that the professionals couldn't duplicate.

In Trudeau's offhand statements ("What we need are new guys and new ideas"), in his very presence, the delegates thought they recognized that Canada under his leadership would no longer be a tired nation clinging to the past, fearful of change.

He seemed to hold out the promise that the process of discovering Canada had not come to an end, that Expo 67 wasn't just a momentary phenomenon, that this was a young nation with vast, unexploited possibilities.

He personified the hoped-for sophistication of the perfectly bicultural Canada of tomorrow. Not only was he flawlessly fluent in both English and French, but his manner combined Gallic touches that came out in his shrugs, with something of the phlegm of the British upper class, the unflappability that had built an empire.

By the time the April 4-6 Liberal leadership convention met in Ottawa, it had become obvious that Pierre Elliott Trudeau was the candidate to beat.

That Was the Year That Was . . . Where Have All the Heroes Gone?

By WARD JUST
The Washington Post

It was a year which dealt badly with everyone whom it touched. It struck down the good and the bad indiscriminately, and at the end of it, by November, the U.S. seemed no closer to healing the sickness—whatever it was. Querulous, dissatisfied, mad, the public looked for explanations; the public looked for leaders.

Sitting on a sofa
On a Sunday afternoon
Going to a candidates' debate.
Laugh about it,
Shout about it,
When you've got to choose,
Every way you look at it, you lose.

That was the way Simon and Garfunkel put it in a song, "Mrs. Robinson," which will do as this year's metaphor until a better one comes along.

But the media, the newspapers and magazines and television networks, did not concentrate on the Mrs. Robinsons of this country, nor on ordinary citizens—Richard Nixon's and George Wallace's forgotten Americans.

Media Militants

The media concentrated on the black militants and student revolutionaries, the insurgents among us, until finally it was difficult to remember that there were ordinary people in the country, and that they had nothing to do with what they read in the morning paper. What was the connection between the president of the PTA in Boise and Huey Newton in Oakland?

You saw them early in the campaign in New Hampshire, sitting in scores of living rooms in small towns listening to George Romney speak of morality and family responsibility. Romney was the first victim of this bad year, a decent Republican business executive, a three-term governor, who withdrew from a presidential race because his backers produced a fistful of polls showing he would receive less than 20 per cent of the vote.

Sit Quietly

His audiences were undemonstrative. They would sit quietly in the living rooms and uncluttered town meeting halls and listen to Romney, and become hesitant during the question period.

What would you do about the war? The disturbances in the cities (although Martin Luther King Jr. was not yet dead, and the disturbances were as nothing to what would come)? Romney plainly did not know, and his audiences sensed that; he could not explain what it was that was happening.

Then, in a kind of grace note, Eugene McCarthy came to New Hampshire. Norman Mailer would later describe McCarthy as "a tough man, tough as the harder alloys of steel, a merciless face and very just, the sort of black Irish face that would have belonged to one of the hanging judges in a true court of heaven."

But then he was Clean Gene, more Yeats than St. Anthony, who scored on about one speech out of four. McCarthy talked about the war, and people listened to him.

Down the River

It is difficult to remember the way things were in February, but this was the radio advertisement for Lyndon Johnson:

"What do you think would happen to this country if right in the middle of a war we up and changed our mind? Now he (President Johnson) knows that surrender in Vietnam would be selling the whole country down the river. He knows that turning our backs and running is exactly what every Communist in the world would love to see . . ."

They did not accept that in New Hampshire, although the president won the primary by a few percentage points. If it did not seem the right thing to run out in South Vietnam, it did not seem the right war to fight, either.

At Tet, the Vietnamese New Year, the Viet Cong occupied the American embassy in Saigon and the perception of the war was never again the same. Both optimism and realism were casualties of that assault, as well as a certain amount of sympathy.

"I have a boy over there," said an old party on the steps of the capital in Concord. "I don't know why he's there."

Where were the old heroes, the fixed stars by which the nation navigated and took reckonings? "Where have you gone, Joe Dimaggio?" Simon and Garfunkel asked.

Uncertain Men

The lonely eyes of the nation looked for heroes, and all there were were strangers—anti-heroes, now celebrated in novels and films, uncertain men, and making a virtue of uncertainty.

Ordinary people listened to what George Orwell once called the smelly little orthodoxies of the New Left, and were frightened; Eugene McCarthy, sharing a platform at the University of New Hampshire with a black power militant named William Strickland listened to the bombast ("America is a predominantly criminal society . . . a leadership of Caligulas . . ."), smiled, and said nothing.

It was late in the day when Robert F. Kennedy got into the race, and even later before he found the themes of his campaign. A measure of his success can be found in the constituency he created: many of the same people (about one in 10) who supported George Wallace, supported Robert Kennedy as well.

For authentic emotion in this campaign one could do worse then recall Kennedy's rebuke of college students at a rally in Omaha, a day in advance of the Nebraska primary.

Kennedy asked them if they favored student deferments from the draft. They did, and he tore into them with a clarity of logic, a fundamental fairness of spirit, that left the so-called neutral observers stunned with admiration.

"I look over this campus," Kennedy said, "and I don't see many black faces . . . what you want is for the poor boy to fight this war, the boy whose parents haven't the money to send him to college . . . I don't think that's acceptable." Kennedy asked sacrifice of his listeners, asked a return to some measure of personal responsibility.

At a boozy democratic rally in Omaha, Kennedy said that what the people wanted was "a change in the national spirit. Too much and for too long, we have confused our achievements with our wealth, and measured our greatness with the statistics of the gross national product. But the gross national product counts air pollution and cigarette advertising, and the ambulance to clear our highways of carnage. It counts special locks for our doors and jails for people who break them. It counts Whitman's rifle and Speck's knife, and television programs that glorify violence the better to sell goods to our children."

GENE McCARTHY

I been Norman Mailered, Maxwell Taylored
I been John O'Hara'd, McNamara'd
I been Rolling Stoned and Beatled
Till I'm blind . . .

. . . was the way Simon and Garfunkel told it, and the Kennedy campaign never caught on the way he — or others — thought it would. He never successfully answered the suspicions of ruthlessness and opportunism, perhaps because they were suspicions. It was a year of vague but persistent suspicion. Kennedy lost Oregon and barely won California, and then he was killed. It was then that we began to count the casualties.

Romney first and then Rockefeller, in an appalling display of confusion and the peculiar arrogance that infects the very rich.

Martin Luther King shot dead in a motel in Memphis, and the pictures of the celebrities marching from the Ebenezer Baptist Church to the cemetery, the slow, heartbreaking cadences of "We Shall Overcome."

Rioting followed the death of Dr. King, as everyone thought it would, and Resurrection City followed the rioting.

And overhanging all of this, not more tragic or less but simply there, was the spectre of the President, who renounced his own political future in a speech on March 31 and thereafter restricted his appearances to military bases or the rose garden of the White House.

War in Streets

And the war: the defence of Khe Sanh, the May assault on Saigon, American casualties sometimes reaching 300 dead a week. The war there, and the war in the universities and in the streets, finally in Chicago, very little of any of it comprehensible to the ordinary citizen; all of it deeply unsettling.

But those are public events, and what moved people in 1968, as always, were private matters. Late in May, the Nixon campaign came to rest in Montana, at a motel in Helena so situated that the view was of a spur of the Rocky Mountains, a slowly rising table of a plateau leading to wilderness.

An official of the state highway commission had come down for Nixon's speech, and he stood talking to reporters on the motel's balcony. The reporters were from Washington, so the official wanted to know from them what was going on.

He had a dry goods business in a small town 60 miles away, lived five minutes from a trout stream and 15 from the best hunting in the state. He didn't make much money, but in the middle of Montana it didn't make a hell of a lot of difference how much money a man had.

Trout Without Faith

Well, he said, what good was all of that, a decent income and a trout stream in your backyard, if the country was coming apart, if young people had no faith in institutions.

It was not necessary to salute the flag every noontime, but burning draft cards . . . and sacking university offices . . . and stockpiling weapons . . . and smoking pot, talking of an irremediably corrupt system.

He laughed, the words were coming very fast; pornography, he went on, the movies . . . "Tell me what's wrong," the dry goods man said finally. "What do they say in Washington?"

But in Washington, they could not say what was wrong. Perhaps the cacaphony there prevented the leaders from hearing the inner voice of the people. Or vice versa. Only George Wallace succeeded, and what Wallace talked about was the iniquity of what the sytem had become; he had that, and a certain talent for identifying villains. Some of the others thought they knew, though:

The words of the prophets
Are written on the subway walls
And tenement halls
And whispered in the sounds of silence.

The candidates were out there, as Arthur Miller wrote of his salesman, on nothing but a smile and a shoeshine. There was talking, but little listening; the sense of it was that the current American nightmare had a long way to go, with no one sure of the outcome.

So to write an epitaph to this year, and to the campaign, a citizen can return to Simon and Garfunkel, and salute the dreadful American metaphor of the 1968 election:

Here's to you, Mrs. Robinson. Jesus loves you.

Budget Close To Approval

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister E. J. Benson's first budget took a step towards final approval in the Commons Thursday when the majority Liberal government defeated a Conservative non-confidence motion 120-85.

The Conservative motion, in the form of an amendment to the budget resolution, charged the government had misled the Commons and the Canadian people on the state of the nation's finances and destroyed its own credibility by failing to keep within its predicted spending limits.

The 58 Conservatives were joined by 14 New Democrats and 13 Creditistes against the 120 Liberals.

On Tuesday the government had defeated 127-83 a New Democratic Party non-confidence motion rapping the two-per-cent social development tax on personal income.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 155, Conservatives 72, NDP 21, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

Thursday's vote came at the end of the fourth day of the six-day budget debate.

OPPOSITION HEAVY

Although the budget brought down Oct. 22 is sure to survive it has received a steady barrage of criticism from Opposition MPs interrupted only by numerous suggestions from both opposition and government members alike for raising revenue and reducing taxes.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette read a letter from a young Drummondville, Que., man suggesting that rather than increasing the tax on his $440-monthly pay cheque the government should take a bigger chunk of Imperial Oil's $70,000,000 profit.

Mr. Caouette said the writer is one of a growing number who have been disillusioned by the Trudeau government.

Barnett Danson (L—York North) suggested a guaranteed annual income replacing a welter of welfare programs would save $200,000,000.

Frank Moores (PC—Bonavista-Trinity-Conception) criticized the government for raising taxes while "squandering money" on cabinet ministers' offices, a retinue for Prime Minister Trudeau and an "expensive junket to South America."

PRAISES BUDGET

Pat Mahoney (L—Calgary South), making his maiden speech, praised the budget for not changing tax concessions to resource industries such as the oil industry.

J. Judd Buchanan (L—London West) said the government could save $250,000,000 a year by dropping the family allowance for the first child in every family. The money could be used to guarantee retired persons an income of $140 a month.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said Canadians are demanding action on housing now and there was plenty the government could do without waiting for a full report.

The special study on housing under Transport Minister Paul Hellyer was "a travelling circus" that should be "called home at once."

He said Mr. Hellyer "who became a millionaire" by dealing in real estate before entering politics, knows the short-term steps necessary to resolve the housing bind.

ASKS GAINS TAX

Mr. Gilbert called for a capital gains tax on land speculation profits, a massive infusion of funds into low-rental units, fix interest rates at six per cent and remove the tax on building materials.

In the Senate the name of the international affairs committee was changed to the foreign affairs committee, but only after Senator Donald Smith (L—Nova Scotia) objected to putting "some Commonwealth countries in the same basket as foreign countries."

The upper house also gave final approval to bills amending the Farm Improvement Loans Act, the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act and the Aeronautics Act before adjourning for the week.

Today the Commons deals with a measure providing for capital projects financing for the Canadian National Railways and Air Canada.

Student Violence

TOKYO (AP) — Radical leftwing students, protesting against the United States-Japan security treaty, clashed with police near Premier Eisaku Sato's official residence Thursday. Police said 366 students were taken in custody on charges of violence and obstruction of police duties.

CONSULTANT FEE of $15,000 was paid to social worker Marjaleena Repo-Davis, of Toronto, by Company of Young Canadians, it was reported in Parliament Thursday in response to request from John Diefenbaker for figures on expenses of the government agency. Mrs. Repo-Davis said she used money to organize a community centre in low-rent district. (CP Wirephoto.)

Elderly Indian Fishes for Aid

An elderly East Saanich Indian whose fishing boat was damaged by fire in June, is going to apply to the newly established federal Indian fishermen's assistance board for a small grant to repair his vessel.

Bert Underwood in his mid-seventies, spent several weeks in hospital recovering from severe burns received when an explosion rocked his boat. It caught fire in the Gulf of Georgia.

"I know I'm getting on, but I'm going to see if they can help me," he said. "The sea has been my life and I'm only happy when I'm fishing."

He has repaired the engine but the hull of the troller is badly split.

A fisheries official said the board would consider the application but pointed out that the main purpose of the assistance program is to provide young men with the means to hold their own in a competitive industry.

REPAIR COURSES

The board was set up two weeks ago to administer a $4.6 million fund to assist B.C. Indians with special loans and grants to improve the efficiency of their fishing operations.

The program also includes courses on maintenance and repair.

Since it's inception, the board has been deluged with requests for information on the program.

"It's very encouraging," a board member said today. "We have received queries from all bands on Vancouver Island, including many from northern B.C."

With regard to elderly Indians, he said, their cases would be considered individually—on their merits.

"We realize that fishing for some Indians is a ritual," he said.

Under the program, loans and grants will be available for the construction of new fishing vessels or the purchase of used fishing vessels, for rebuilding or conversion of boats and for the purchase of fishing gear and equipment.

An Indian may apply who is a resident of the province and has had at least two years' commercial fishing experience and satisfies the board that the security will be adequately protected during the life of the loan and grant.

He must make a minimum 20 per cent deposit of the approved cost of the boat before he can apply for financial assistance. In return the board will provide him with a grant, amounting to 30 per cent of the cost of the purchase, plus a loan repayable at 5 per cent interest.

If a fisherman wants to buy a $20,000 boat, he makes a deposit of $4,000, receives a grant of $6,000 and a loan of $10,000.

Upon satisfactory performance of the contract with the board, the grant becomes a direct cash contribution to the fisherman.

In special cases, the board also has the authority to make a limited number of unconditional grants to an individual with a maximum of $2,000.

This is primarily to help elderly fishermen.

A fisheries official said the basic problem of the Indian fishing fleet is that it lacks modern equipment.

"The take of Indians is about 30 per cent less than non-Indian fishermen," he said.

Soviet Seizes Boats

TOKYO (Reuters) — Three Japanese fishing boats and 14 men were captured by Russia in northern Pacific waters in the last 10 days, the foreign ministry said today. Thirty-nine Japanese fishing vessels with 336 crew members have been detained by Russia, the maritime safety agency said.

Alderman 'Out of Line' In Criticizing Council

Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes says Ald. Scott Wallace is out of line in criticizing council in its refusal to permit a hovercraft base on Beach Drive.

Ald. Wallace had said council was pressured by "lynch mob rule" into turning down a request for a trial period of landing rights by Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. Monday night.

He charged Ald. Frances Elford with rushing a motion to defeat the bid and that council's handling "wasn't fair to the applicants."

"I regret that Ald. Wallace has chosen to express his opposition to a majority vote of council," Mayor Hawes said.

Ald. Wallace was the only one of the five councillors present who voted against the motion. Ald. Douglas Watts abstained and his vote was counted with the majority.

The mayor said the decision was made because council felt it would "react to the benefit of the municipality as a whole.

"I can't help agreeing with the council fully, as a whole, that we were put on the spot by Pacific Hovercraft, Ltd.

"The offer ... did not give us an opportunity to watch the posposed hovercraft in action," Mayor Hawes said.

The proposal from the company was for a 30-day trial period of service with council retaining the right to cancel if it objected to the hovercraft.

Byng Heeney, executive vice-president of the company, had earlier told council he would have the machine here before the end of November so they could witness it in operation.

The main objection to the company's proposal, Mayor Hawes said, was the increase of commercial development in the area of the Oak Bay Marina, the site of the hovercraft terminal.

Another concern, the mayor said, was any possible increase in traffic. Mr. Heeney had earlier said traffic would not increase enough to be a problem.

SLAPPING KIESINGER COSTS WOMAN 1 YEAR

BERLIN (Reuters) — A West Berlin court sentenced a 29-year-old woman to one year in prison for slapping West German Chancellor Kurt-Georg Kiesinger across the face at a party congress Thursday.

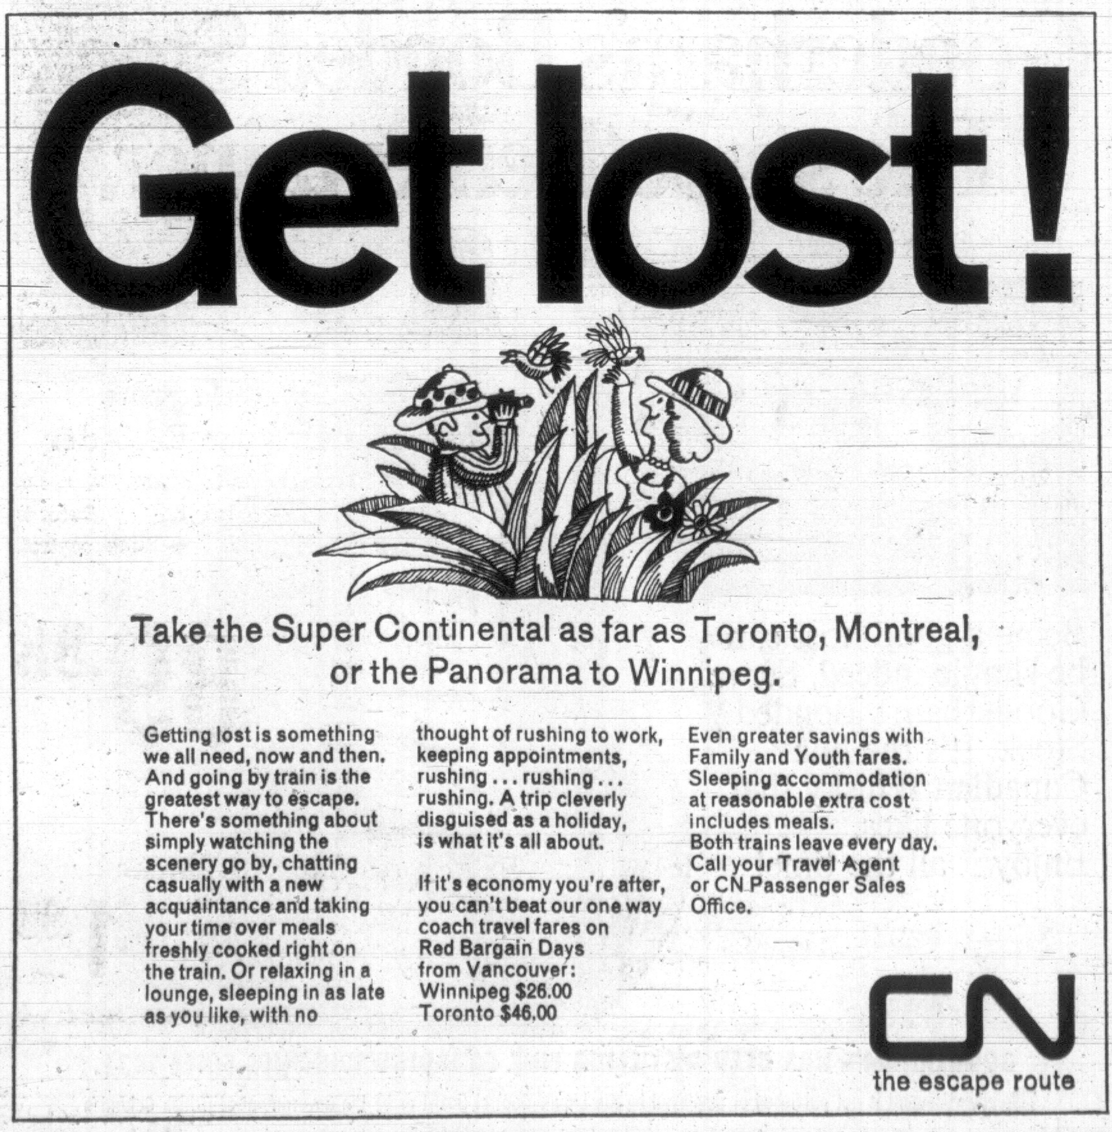
The woman, Beate Klarsfeld, caused a sensation at the Christian Democratic party congress by darting up to the chancellor and slapping him across the face with the back of her hand.

Stewards and security officers immediately grabbed and dragged her out of the congress hall as delegates shouted "Shame" and "This is disgraceful."

She was charged with premeditated insult and manhandling of the chancellor.

Mrs. Klarsfeld, a former secretary of the Franco-German Youth Service, previously embarrassed Kiesinger on several occasions by shouting "Nazi" at him in public.

She told the court she hit the chancellor because she could not tolerate that he was a former member of the Nazi party.



Take the Super Continental as far as Toronto, Montreal, or the Panorama to Winnipeg.

Getting lost is something we all need, now and then. And going by train is the greatest way to escape. There's something about simply watching the scenery go by, chatting casually with a new acquaintance and taking your time over meals freshly cooked right on the train. Or relaxing in a lounge, sleeping in as late as you like, with no thought of rushing to work, keeping appointments, rushing ... rushing ... rushing. A trip cleverly disguised as a holiday, is what it's all about.

If it's economy you're after, you can't beat our one way coach travel fares on Red Bargain Days from Vancouver:
Winnipeg $26.00
Toronto $46.00

Even greater savings with Family and Youth fares. Sleeping accommodation at reasonable extra cost includes meals. Both trains leave every day. Call your Travel Agent or CN Passenger Sales Office.

Before the Magistrate

Magistrate William Ostler Thursday expressed "utter dismay" over the mushrooming number of shoplifters.

He made the statement as four more appeared before him.

The magistrate said he had checked the records and found the number of convictions in October equalled the previous two months' total.

"Warnings from the bench printed in the press apparently are being scorned," he said.

Some other "disposition" is going to have to be made.

About two weeks ago he warned jail terms may be meted out.

"Instead of getting better it's getting worse," he said then.

In the case of a "dedicated community worker," the magistrate said:

"It's inexplicable that people in this position in the community should do this."

He fined Mrs. Margaret Doneley, 35, of 953 Cloverdale, $150 for stealing a $3.89 carton of cigarettes from the Town and Country shopping centre Safeway store on Oct. 18.

Her lawyer, Alan Bigelow, caled her a "very chastened woman."

In fining the woman, the magistrate said he was "reluctant to send otherwise respectable people to jail."

Two other women pleaded guilty to shoplifting from the same store on the same day.

Court was told Joan MacKenzie, 431 Forward, took $3.44 worth of meat and Ida Matheson, 1214 Carlisle, stole $2.25 worth of sandwiches and a carton of pickled eggs.

LOT OF PROBLEMS

Mrs. MacKenzie, who told the court she had three children, said she had lots of problems and didn't know why she did it.

Magistrate Ostler said everyone said that and he believed them but still persons continue to take things.

"The agony you've suffered since isn't worth it, is it?" he asked.

He asked Mrs. Matheson if she had intended to eat the sandwiches outside the store.

"It's tragic to see a person convicted of a criminal offence for stealing this sort of thing," he said.

A 19-year-old youth, who earlier pleaded guilty to stealing $1.25 worth of cigarettes from a downtown store, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a $500 one-year good-behavior bond.

TREATMENT

Magistrate Ostler told Timothy Seipp, 745 Goldstream, what he did was most reprehensible and the only reason he was being placed on probation was because he needed hospital treatment.

At an earlier hearing police said the accused told them he took the cigarettes because he had forgotten his own and didn't have any money with him.

Bruce Patterson, 20, of 1055 Nicholson, was sentenced to one month in jail for taking $18 from an envelope containing money collected for the United Appeal.

Magistrate Ostler said it was "perfectly outrageous" that a person should do such a thing and that the aspect of deterrence was so great he couldn't grant probation.

At an earlier hearing court was told the youth took the money from a fund at HMC Dockyard, CFB Esquimalt.

A charge against a man of attempting to break and enter the Medical Arts Building, 1105 Pandora, was dismissed.

Norman Robinson, of Campbell River, was charged July 28 with another man.

Robert Stephen Walker, 21, of 820 Fisgard, was sentenced to two years less a day after he pleaded guilty to possession of stolen property—four automobile wheels and two radios court was told were worth $246.15.

Police said the goods were the property of Firestone Stores, 833 Fisgard. The accused is serving a entence of two years less a day for charges of breaking and entering and theft, attempted breaking and entering and theft of an automobile.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said his record included convictions for breaking and entering and theft in 1967 and 1966.

Two men who pleaded guilty to several charges of false pretences were remanded to Nov. 14 for sentence.

Stephen Baxter pleaded guilty to three charges of cashing worthless cheques in Victoria totalling $86.98 between Oct. 19 and Nov. 4. Court was told he wished to have other similar pending matters also disposed of at this time.

Magistrate Ostler said he was wise to get it all cleared up. Any additional charges will be read Nov. 14.

Henry D'Aoust, no fixed address, also pleaded guilty to three charges of false pretences involving worthless cheques totalling $112.27. Police said he cashed the cheques at The Bay Oct. 22 to pay for various purchases.

D'Aoust asked for a presentence report and said he'd done the same thing in Vancouver and Winnipeg. Court was told he surrendered himself to the RCMP in Burnaby.

Robert Seddon, South Wellington, was fined $100 for driving while under a licence suspension. He drove on Hillside Avenue Oct. 2.

Fined $300 each for impaired driving were: Albert Clare, 411 Marigold; Gordon Roberts, 3044 Orillia; Murray Hurst, 214 Wildwood, and Walter Tonn, Work Point Barracks.

Population Will Double By 2006

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—There were about 3,420,000,000 people on this planet at mid-1967 and if the present growth rate continues the number will double by 2006.

A female born in Iceland has the best chance of a long life—76 years—while an infant girl born in Upper Volta has the worst chance—31.1 years.

In all parts of the world, married men and women live longer than single, widowed or divorced people.

Heart disease and cancer are the leading causes of death in most developed countries.

These are the conclusions of the 1968 UN Demographic Yearbook, full of statistics, charts and projections which generally add up to the fact that the world is getting more crowded.

The report shows the world populaion jumped by 6,000,000 from mid-1966 to mid-67. This means that at last count 180,000 children were being born each day.

Three-quarters of the earth's inhabitants live in what commonly are known as underdeveloped areas, which is taken to mean in relative poverty.

And half of the world's people make their home in Asia, including some 720,000,000 in mainland China.

400 Support Petition Asking 'Riflemen' Ban

By ED GOULD

FIRST FREEMAN of Port Alice at northern end of V.I. is Gordon L. Draeseke, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C. The honor recognizes his help in achieving self-government for the area. Port Alice was one of the province's first "instant" municipalities. Mr. Draeseke was vice-president and secretary of Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. at the time.

GANGES—More than 400 persons have signed a petition that began circulating throughout the Gulf Islands following the fatal shooting of surveyor Peter Arnell on October 22.

The petition demands the ban of rifle shooting anywhere in the Gulf Islands. Shotguns still would be allowed.

Mr. Arnell, 38, was the father of three children. He was apparently mistaken for a deer while surveying in the Spanish Hills subdivision on Galiano Island.

Charles Horel of Cusheon Lake, Salt Spring Island, who drafted and launched the petition, said today it is being displayed in most stores and business premises and also is being circulated door to door.

'EXTREME HAZARD'

Addressed to Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan, it says: "The size of the islands on which we live and the increasing population combine to make the use of rifles an extreme hazard to all residents, particularly to those who enter forested land either on business or recreation."

Mr. Horel said in an interview that "these island are for people. It's no longer safe for people and hunters too. There is nothing as risky as going into the woods here today."

He defined the hunter as a 'sportsman out looking for legal game" as opposed to the rifleman, "out to shoot anything that moves."

Mr. Horel said it is a sad state of affairs when a hunter's rights take precedence over those of the residents.

Hunter Don Irwin of Ganges disagrees: "A ban on rifles is not the answer. A petition asking for a system of education of hunting and rifle education would make more sense than to still allow the uneducated to go hunting with shotguns that can kill easier than a .22 rifle.

"If the people are so interested in getting revenge for this incident (the shooting of Mr. Arnell) would be willing to work with the interested and serious hunter and the Rod and Gun Club, I'm sure this might bring about some results regarding legislation."

Meanwhile, five hunters have been fined in Ganges magistrate's court after RCMP and game wardens made a recent patrol of the islands.

Hugh Ross Zacharias of Victoria was fined $25 for possession of an untagged deer shot on Saturna. Four other men were charged with carrying loaded guns in their cars.

Emmanuel Mavritsakis, Karl Daniel Eggen and Elie Charalabides, all of Vancouver, each paid $50 fines. The offences took place on Galiano.

Peter Kanelis, also of Vancouver, was charged with the same offence but fined $75 because he carried two loaded guns in his vehicle.

None of the guns was confiscated.

4-MILL PLAN STUDIED FOR CENTRE

DUNCAN — Plans for a $600,000 recreation centre to cost "around four mills" to residents of Duncan city and the south end of North Cowichan municipality were discussed at an open meeting Thursday night.

Chairman Pat Rogers said the commission will see what can be salvaged from the earlier defeat of a recreation bylaw which would have cost taxpayers $850,000 and involved unorganized areas south of here.

IN SPRING

"We will not be able to consider these areas under the new bylaw we hope to present sometime in the spring," Mr. Rogers said. "The votes there signified they definitely were not interested in participating."

A consulting engineer from Vancouver, John Sanderson, has been asked to begin planning acceptable facilities from what is available, Mr. Rogers said.

"We are hoping for completion of a swimming pool and a partial completion of an auditorium at Pioneer Park in Duncan."

'Pollute-In Organized At Campbell R.

CAMPBELL RIVER — The Pollution Control Society here is going to show its teeth within the next two weeks.

It has scheduled a "pollute-in" and a date will be set as soon as Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and research scientist Dr. Allan Austin of Victoria say what day they are free to visit Campbell River.

The society says it is fed up with inaction and that it wants all pollution stopped. It wants to talk about pulp mill effluent from Elk Falls mill, Western Mines operation and Cream Silver mines diamond drilling operation which are both within Strathcona Park.

They are also concerned with the municipality's dumping of raw sewage into Discovery Passage.

"This is going to be a major assault on all pollution in this area," said Ken Forde, a member of the 200-strong society.

Meeting Sunday On Ferry Rates

PORT ALBERNI — A public meeting to discuss B.C. Ferry rates and schedules will be held Sunday in the Burde St. High School auditorium here.

The meeting, sponsored by the Port Alberni Group For a Better Ferry Service, will start at 7:30 p.m.

Among those attending will be Richard Durante, MP, and Dr. H. R. McDiarmid, MLA.

DEPUTY NAMED NEW CORONER

DUNCAN — Thomas H. Lines, 63, has been appointed coroner succeeding Dr. R. R. Wilson, who retired recently.

A lawyer with his own firm here since 1944, Mr. Lines has served many years as deputy coroner.

'Standby' For Appeal

PORT ALBERNI — The petition by former NDP MP Tom Barnett that the election of Liberal Richard Durante be set aside, will probably be heard in Supreme Court in Vancouver about Nov. 25.

Mr. Barnett has been told by his lawyer to hold himself in readiness to appear on that date.

The petition calls for either the replacement of Mr. Durante by Mr. Barnett or that the election be called void, and a byelection called.

The petition contends some service men, instead of voting by absentee ballot in their home ridings, voted in the Comox-Alberni riding.

About 42 service votes could be involved in the dispute.

Mr. Barnett said there was no question of dishonesty in the move.

Mr. Durante won the election, following a judicial recount, by nine votes.

'WASTEFUL, RECKLESS'—ROOKIE MP

CBC Out of the Picture

DURANTE
. . . not worth the money

(Special to the Times)

OTTAWA — A Vancouver Island MP told Parliament Thursday the CBC is wasteful, reckless and does not know what the people want.

Richared Durante, (Liberal — Comox-Alberni), said the $140 million the government is spending on the network this year is not worth it — particularly not in his part of the world.

"Certainly not to those people in Comox-Alberni who can receive it, and certainly not to those people who receive it with such poor reception that it makes the production even worse than it was in it original form," Durante said.

"In my opinion this large corporation is wasteful, reckless and not conversant with the desires of its listening or viewing audience."

MARINE PARK

He also called for development of a west coast national marine park in the Tofino-Ucluelet-Barkley Sound area as a necessity that should receive high priority.

Durante said a road to resources must be constructed to open up the north end of Vancouver Island.

The rookie backbencher also had some criticism of the government budget.

Durante said he would have preferred that the new two-per-cent social development tax — which has a $120 annual ceiling — should have been graded or graduated with a much higher ceiling.

Or, Durante said, the percentage increase should have been smaller without gradations and limitations.

"I do not sympathize with those who are paying high income taxes nearly as much as I do with those who are paying little or no income tax," the member added.

Durante also turned to "howling, screaming provincial finance ministers, of whom my own is certainly no exception (Premier Bennett)."

He said these are prepared to take any offering from Ottawa, utilize it to their political advantage, pat themselves on the back, and instead of giving the federal government credit it is due, retaliate by criticizing fiscal policies.

Durante criticized the way a major problem is tossed back and forward between the three levels of government in Canada.

And he said he hoped the tax reform bill will provide greater equity in taxation, because some people get away with murder.

Shares: 4,879,000.

Banks continued to climb to record levels in early afternoon trading in Montreal. Senior mines and oils were strong.

Pre-noon trading at Vacouver reached 2.8 million shares.

AT TORONTO on index, industrials gained 1.52 to 181.99, golds rose .33 to 203.76, base metals climbed .39 to 114.60 and western oils advanced 3.82 to 232.75.

In industrials, Computing Devices gained 3 to 26, Magna Electronics 2⅞ to 16¼, Dylex Diversified 2 to 80 and Great West Saddlery 1½ to 17. Union Oil fell 2 to 50 and Erie Flooring B 1¾ to 2.

Dome Pete jumped 7 to 88, Home Oil A 2 to 33⅛ and Scurry Rainbow 1¾ to 38¼.

Hudson Bay Mining was up 1 to 74, La Luz 5 cents to $9.80 and Teck Corp 45 cents to $6.35. Dynasty lost 1 to 13 and Placer ½ to 33½.

Final volume was 4,879,000 shares compared with 4,786,000 Thursday.

AT NEW YORK, a four-point jump by Johns-Manville boosted the industrial average. The stock continued to climb despite Thursday's disavowal by the company of a uranium find of commercial quantities in Canada.

A climb of nearly three points by General Foods also boosted the average of blue chip industrials.

American Motors, up a fraction, climbed to the top of the most-active list.

Also active, Grumman and Sinclair Oil gained about two each. Mohasco, whose proposed merger with American Standard was broken off, dropped about 3.

In Canadians, Canadian Pacific and Hudson Bay gained ⅝, Massey 1, Granby and Inco ⅜ and McIntyre Porcupine ⅛.

Prices advanced on the American Stock exchange.

Among Canadians, Scurry Rainbow was up 1⅝ and Brazilian Light and Power ⅛. Jubiter lost ⅛.

AT MONTREAL Royal edged up ⅝ to 23¾, Montreal ½ to 15⅞, Provincial ¼ to 9⅜ and Imperial ⅛ to 19¼. Nova Scotia lost ¼ to 24½.

Southam climbed 1½ to 58, Calgary Power 1½ to 27, Imperial Oil 1⅜ to 77¼. Hudson Bay Mining 1 to 74 and B.C. Telephone 1 to 66. Canadian Hydrocarbons fell 1½ to 20¾.

Dome Pete soared 10⅞ to 86 on only 600 shares.

Candore gained 2 cents to 50 cents on 112,000 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT VANCOUVER leading volume traders were Trojan and Buttle Lake, two mining companies with similar directors and many common properties.

Buttle gained .15 to $2.95 on a volume of 238,400 shares. Trojan added .03 to .58 on 396,800 shares.

Other mining action saw Arctic slip .08 to $1.87 and Alwin jump to $2.01.

Allied Roxana in the oils was up .06 to $1.70. Royal Canadian Ventures gained .10 to $2.90.

Among the industrials, MacMillan Bloedel was up .50 to $26.75. Great National Land lost .05 to $2.95.

BOORMAN INVESTMENT CO. LTD.

MB in Cost-Price Vice

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. today reported a 15 per cent drop in net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 3;, despite an increase of about 2.5 per cent in gross revenue.

Consolidated net earnings in the nine-month period were $24.78 million or $1.19 a share, compared with $29.18 milion or $1.40, in the same period of 1967, an unaudited interim report said.

Board chairman J. V. Clyne said the chief causes for the drop in earnings included increased labor costs, higher income taxes and costs of expansion of forest industry operations.

Gross revenue was up to $424.5 million with sales of $421.5 million. The figures for 1967 were $413.6 million and $408.9 million. Earnings before income taxes were down to $55 million from $58.9 million.

Mr. Clyne said continuing strong demand for lumber and plywood led to higher shipments and prices. There had been some strengthening of the pulp market but otherwise pulp and paper showed no improvement.

Depreciation, depletion and amortization deductions rose to $27.3 million from $22.6 million in 1967. Cost of interest on borrowed money increased to $9.7 million from $8.2 million.

Said Mr. Clyne: "There have been sharp increases in taxes on income in the form of a surcharge imposed by the federal government and a higher tax imposed on logging operations by the British Columbia government."

LUMBER RECORD SET

A monthly record for lumber production for British Columbia was set in August, Trade Minister Waldo Skillings said in his monthy bulletin on business activity.

A total of 721.4 million board feet of lumber was manufactured during the month, 9 per cent more than August, 1967.

The minister said plywood output was up almost 3 per cent over last year and that shipments exceeded production in the same period for 1967 by 80 million square feet.

Money Supply Hits $26B Canadian Record Oct. 30

OTTAWA (CP) — Currency in circulation and chartered bank deposits held by the general public — the money supply rose to a record of $26.67 billion on Oct. 30, the Bank of Canada reported Thursday in its regular weekly financial statistics.

The figure was $208 million more than a revised figure for the previous week and $2.49 billion higher than a year earlier.

This week's central bank bulletin reflected the government's special issue of $100 million in 11-day treasury bills dated Nov. 1, designed to tide the government's cash balances over during the first few days of this month when the drain is unusually strong.

Government balances in the Bank of Canada and the nine chartered banks on Nov. 6 remained at $424 million unchanged from last week, while the government redeemed $37 million in Canada Savings Bonds.

This is the period during which holders of savings bonds are converting old issues into the new issue which remains on sale until Nov. 15 without a charge for accrued interest. On Wednesday there were $5.5 million in outstanding savings bonds, down $311 million from a year earlier.

SHOWS TOTAL

This week's bulletin also showed that nine chartered banks had combined actual cash reserves totalling $1.54 billion on Oct. 31, the end of the fiscal year for the private banks.

The cash reserve requirement for October was $1.52 billion but the banks usually hold more than they need at the end of October to make a good showing in their annual reports.

Under banking legislation passed last year, the reserve requirement drops for February to $1.52 billion. During the week ended Nov. 6, the banks held $1.54 billion on average for the business days.

Interest rates firmed slightly, particularly for short-term investment, this week. The average of closing rates for day-to-day loans was 4.8 per cent this week, compared with 4.55 per cent last week and 5.25 two weeks ago.

At the weekly auction of treasury bills, 91-day bills sold this week at prices yielding investors 5.6 per cent a year, compared with 5.57 last week and 5.66 a week earlier.

The Bank of Canda's average yield of seven long-term federal government bonds at market prices this week was 6.84 per cent, compared with 6.83 last week and 6.89 a week earlier.

NEW YORK — After all the hoopla dies down and the brokers stop patting each other on the back, just what kind of relief does Wall Street expect the Nixon administration to provide for its regulatory headache?

No matter who heads the securities and exchange commission after January, there is little expectation—or wish—that disclosure and commission reforms will disappear.

Why? Because reforms are sorely needed in both those areas and several others. In fact, there is more and more talk around here that derailing the projects currently under way—if it could be done—would open the door wide to bigger problems later on—problems which not even the most pro-business administration could sweep under the carpet.

The plain fact is that Wall Street is pock-marked with potential trouble spots. If any of them should develop into open wounds, the industry feels it could not defend itself with a record that shows awareness of the problems and readiness to take action, for example, like encouraging a study of institutional investing.

The paperwork backlog, for instance, keeps changing its complexion, but hardly its size. From the beginning of June, when the exchanges began closing once a week, to the end of September, the dollar amount of fails—securities sold but not delivered—reduced by only about $4 million and stood at $3.08 billion.

Speculation is another tender zone that could touch off widespread woes. Exchange officials insist they are keeping a close eye on trading and that the current crop of speculators appears better able to stand the risk, but the fact is that unexplainable price jumps are fast becoming the rule and every one of them holds the potential of turning into another Texas Gulf Sulphur, the case which revealed the insider trading syndrome.

Victoria's second Volkswagen franchise has been granted to a local partnership which plans to open a new sales and service centre in Saanich March 1.

The seldom awarded dealership in Volkswagen lines is significant indication of growth in the capital city auto market. It is about 20 years since the original Volkswagen dealer was appointed.

Lou Waibel, owner of Lou's Automotive Service Ltd., 1725 Government, said he is selling out to Fred Beyer and will incorporate a new company to deal in a complete range of Volkswagen products. His partner is Egon Baumann, district sales manager for southern B.C., Volkswagen Canada Ltd.

The new enterprise will be built starting next month, situated on Douglas between Cloverdale and Audley, where the partners have 136 feet frontage on Douglas, and access to Audley.

Mr. Waibel estimated the cost of construction at $250,000, providing a one-storey building with three-car showroom, a parts department mezzanine and service area to the rear.

Mr. Baumann, presently a Vancouver resident, will be in charge of sales, Mr. Waibel responsible for service.

Neon Group

The Neon Group of Companies reports consolidated net earnings of $668,000, or 25 cents a share, in the three months ended Sept. 30, compared with $552,000, 21 cents, in 1967.

An unaudited interim statement said the 1967 figure includes $97,000, or four cents a share, in non-recurring income. Sales and revenue in the 1968 period rose to $29.15 million from $24.49 million.

Consolidated net earnings in the nine months ended Sept. 30 were $1.77 million, 67 cents a share, compared with $1.6 million, 61 cents. The 1967 figure included $122,000, or five cents a share, non-recurring income.

Clothes, Doctor Bills Push Up Cost of Living

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose four-tenths of a point to 156.8 in October from 156.4 in September, mainly because of higher prices for clothing, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was 150.5 in October last year.

The clothing index, which accounts for about 11 per cent of the over-all index, rose to 138.1 in October from 136.4 in September. It was 133.7 a year ago.

Food prices, accounting for 27 per cent of the total, eased downward last month to 152.4 from 153.0 in September. A year ago, the food index was 147.8.

The price of men's suits and dress pants, women's coats and wool dresses helped raise the clothing index by 1.7 points to 138.1, a percentage increase of 1.2 in a month.

Fees charged by doctors and dentists and for eye care were the main pressures behind an increase in health and personal care that pushed it above the 200 mark — the first time any component of the index has reached that zenith.

Ranger Increases Alaska Holdings

Calgary-based Ranger Oil (Canada) Ltd. says it is part of a group holding 30 per cent interest in 12,500 acres on the Alaska slope.

The company already held 5 per cent in 22,000 offshore acres in Cook Inlet, and other interests in the far north.

The other two members of the new group are Scurry Rainbow with 45 per cent, and Ulster Petroleum, holding the remaining 25 per cent. They have farmed out part of their holdings to Ranger for development.

'Red Beren' Flies To Scoring Record

Berenson Scores Second of His Six Goals Against Favell

Blues' Centre Fires Six As Flyers Trounced 8-0

By The Canadian Press

National Hockey League expansion gave Red Berenson a chance to play regularly and he is making the most of the opportunity.

A fringe player before the NHL added six new teams last season, Berenson scored six goals Thursday night to equal a modern league record.

The six goals came in St. Louis Blues' 8-0 trouncing of Philadelphia Flyers and tied the record set by Syd Howe of Detroit Red Wings on Feb. 3, 1944 against New York Rangers.

Berenson, a 28-year-old centre from Regina, scored four of the goals in the second period to tie another record for most goals in one period. That was held by Harvey (Busher) Jackson of Toronto Maple Leafs on Nov. 20, 1943, and Max Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks on Jan. 28, 1943.

Since breaking into the NHL in 1961-62 with Montreal Canadiens, Berenson had never scored more than two goals in one game. He scored only seven goals in a full season with Montreal in 1963-64.

In other NHL games Thursday, Montreal Canadiens moved back into first place in the Eastern Division by edging Pittsburgh Penguins 5-4 and Detroit Red Wings took Minnesota North Stars 5-2.

Berenson scored the first five goals in the Blues' victory, but it was not immediately known if that was a record for the most consecutive goals in one game.

Still One Shy of Malone's Mark

The six-goal performance still fell one goal short of the all-time NHL record of seven set by Joe Malone of Quebec Bulldogs on Jan. 31, 1920, against Toronto St. Pats. Howe's record, however, is regarded as the modern one and the more important of the two.

It was a night that Berenson, a spare forward and penalty killer during his years with Montreal and New York, will never forget.

"The players were all for me," he said later. "They created the scoring opportunities. Tonight I had my confidence. It's easy to skate when you get two goals early."

Berenson, used infrequently by the Rangers early last season, went to the Blues in a four-player trade Nov. 29. St. Louis also obtained defenceman Barclay Plager and sent forwards Ron Stewart and Ron Attwell to the Rangers.

Given a chance to perform on a regular line, Berenson immediately became a success in St. Louis. He scored 22 goals in 55 regular-season games and added five more in 18 playoff games—a far better record than he had ever compiled in the old, six-team circuit.

Berenson praised Philadelphia goaltender Doug Favell who allowed all of the Blues' goals.

"I don't think Favell actually played that badly," said Berenson, sweat poaring down his face. "Three of the goals were breakaways, he was screened on two and partially screened on another.

"It was more difficult for him because he wasn't getting a lot of shots on him except when I came down."

Surge Carries Red Into Second

The six goals and one assist gained by Berenson moved him into second place in NHL scoring with 20 points on nine goals and 11 assists. Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks leads with nine goals and 13 assists.

Terry Crisp and Camille Henry also scored for the Blues in front of a Philadelphia crowd of 9,164.

Jacques Plante picked up his second shutout of the season for St. Louis and the 65th of his NHL career as the Blues moved four points ahead of the second-place Los Angeles Kings in the battle for first in the Western Division.

Montreal's victory moved the Canadiens one point ahead of the idle, second-place Boston Bruins.

HAS 3 GOALS

Bobby Rousseau and Henri Richard figured in all five goals for Montreal, playing only its second home game of the season. Rousseau scored his first three goals of the season and picked up two assists while Richard had a goal and four assists.

Jacques Lemaire scored the other Montreal goal. Gene Ubriaco netted a pair for Pittsburgh and single goals came from Charlie Burns and Keith McCreary.

Rousseau's third goal of the game, at 2:00 of the final period, proved decisive. McCreary's goal at :48 of the same period had put the Penguins into a tie.

The loss, watched by 16,704 fans at Montreal, left Pittsburgh in last place in the Western Division.

Alex Delvecchio scored two goals to help the surging Detroit Red Wings to their victory before 10,238 hometown fans.

The Red Wings, now tied for fifth with Toronto in the Eastern Division, have four wins and a tie in their last six games.

Frank Mahovlich, Bruce MacGregor and Dean Prentice scored the other Detroit goals. Replying for the North Stars were Bill Goldsworthy and Danny Grant.

Bothered by a muscle spasm in his back, Gordie Howe was used infrequently by the Red Wings. But he was credited with one assist, the 1,600th point of his regular-season career.

It was the second straight loss for rookie Minnesota coach John Muckler.

RCGA Sits on Fence For Golf's Revolution

TORONTO (CP) — Next year's Canadian open golf championship probably will have fewer name golfers in the field.

This was the significance of an announcement Thursday by the Royal Canadian Golf Association that it will sign no contracts with either the American Professional Golfers Inc., or the Professional Golfers' Association.

The RCGA, making a joint announcement here and in Montreal, said the Canadian Open will be played at Pinegrove Country Club at Montreal July 24-27. This date conflicts with one set by the rebel APG for a Philadelphia tournament.

The decision by the RCGA apparently was prompted by a desire not to take sides in the war between the PGA and APG in the United States.

The tour professionals broke away from the PGA to set up the APG and gain greater control of the lucrative pro tour. The APG already has signed for 19 tournaments worth $2,305,000 and has almost all of the big-name golfers in its ranks.

Bruce Forbes of Brantford, Ont., a past president of the RCGA, said at a news conference here Thursday that the $125,000 Canadian Open "will be included on the PGA of America tour."

"We made our own decision on dates and everything else, then said to the PGA 'will you include us on the PGA tour?'

"They said 'yes.'

"We didn't approach the APG because we knew they wouldn't go for it. They want to run the entire show. The APG wants full control of the tournaments in every aspect. With the PGA, it's a co-operative effort."

Jim Gaquin, executive-director of the RCGA, said that the Canadian Open will be in trouble if the APG boycotts it.

"We expect conflict with the APG, however they might feel they can't afford to be restrictive. I don't think the APG is in any better position to guarantee top players than the PGA was in the past."

MAY AID OTHERS

Gaquin admitted many of the top U.S. players may be missing from the Open, but he suggested the tournament may attract "a fair number of the middle-sized guys who might be looking for a good tournament with a weaker field."

"It is our plan to present the best field possible," said Forbes, who admitted admission prices for fans may be lowered if the calibre of competition is lower.

The tournament will be open to any professional golfer in the world whether he be a PGA or APG member, or unattached.

Ray Getliffe, RCGA vice-president, said in Montreal that the war between the PGA and APG is a "blow to golf everywhere."

The RCGA will continue, however, to pay the PGA a fee ranging from $3,000 to $4,000 to operate the tournament, but under Canadian rules.

"This puts us in the same position as the British Open, the Masters and the U.S. Open in that we will have control of our own destiny," said Forbes. "We will have our dates and run our own show."

OFFICIALS AGREE

Executive director Bill Hamilton of the Canadian PGA and president Ken Duggan of the Ontario branch agreed with thhe decision of the RCGA.

"We are solidly behind the RCGA," said Duggan. "I cannot understand what the (U.S.) players mean when they say they want control of the tour. I have asked many of the players, but I have received no answers."

The battle between the PGA and APG may rage on indefinitely. Several Canadians are members of the APG group, including Al Balding and George Knudson of Toronto.

Other Canadians who have earned APG playing cards are Alvie Thompson of Toronto, Bob Cox of Vancouver, Ken Fulton, of Trail, Bill Wakeham of Victoria and Bob Panasiuk of Windsor.

However, the APG has not yet asked its members to avoid non-approved tournaments.

'Played So Badly, Scored So Well . . .'

HONOLULU (AP) — The ball bounced well on Thursday for George Archer, who led the first round of the $125,000 Hawaiian International golf tournament.

Archer had a 64, eight-under-par for the 7,000-yard Waialae course, equalling the one-day-old course record.

"I played so badly and scored so good," Archer said. "I was raking it out from under trees; and bouncing it through bunkers all day.

"Well, you get days like that—it makes up for all the bad bounces."

One stroke back was Dick Lotz, 26-year-old San Francisco area golfer, who played "one of my best competitive rounds ever." Lotz scored 34-31, and made four birdies in a row on the back nine.

No Canadians were entered.

MANY UNDER PAR

The field gave Waialae—tame in the absence of its noted trade winds—a fearful drubbing. In all, 47 broke par.

Mac McLendon had a six-under 66, along with little-known Ken Ellsworth.

Former amateur champion Deane Beman; Miller Barber, Steve Reid and Bob McAllister had 67. Australian Bruce Crampton and Lee Trevino were in the group of 68s.

Billy Casper, the tournament favorite, shot a 70. He birdied all the par fives and left a number of putts hanging on the lip, but never made one longer than four feet.

Arnold Palmer had a 71 and defending champion Dudley Wysong a 72.

BETTER TO FIRE EAGLE THAN WIN TEE TOURNEY

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Gay Brewer, Jr., of Dallas, Tex., the 1967 United States Masters champion, fired a six-under-par 67 Thursday for the opening round lead in the Wills Masters golf tournament.

He had a one-stroke edge over Peter Thomson, of Australia, five-time winner of the British Open, with three other players another shot back at 69.

Tied at 69 were Gary Player, of South Africa; Peter Townsend, of Britain, and John Newton, of Australia. Guy Wolstenholme, of Britain, followed with a 70.

The prize money for the tournament is $11,200 but other prizes such as an automobile, an airplane and $20,000 in travel tickets are offered for an eagle on the 400-yard 13th hole. The course measures 6,649 yards and plays to a par 73.

Cougar, Bronco Share Point Lead

Release of the first set of statistics from the British Columbia Junior Hockey League uncovers a "second battle" to be waged when the top two teams meet Saturday night at Memorial Arena.

Victoria Cougars hope to challenge for the league lead when they face Penticton Broncos, starting at 8:30 p.m. Cougars trail Penticton by four points.

At the same time, a centre from each club will be out to inherit sole possession of first place in the individual sooring race.

Victoria's Grant Evans and Ed Hays of Penticton share the lead with 26 points each. Evans' total includes 15 goals—a high for the league.

Vernon's Larry Quechuk is third on the list with 24 points.

Leading goaltender is Kelowna's Roy Pyle, with a 4.22 goals-against average. Victoria's Ed Forslund and Ron Grahame are close behind with 4.6 and 4.8 marks, respectively.

Cougar coach Doug Anderson has alternated his goaltenders and it will be "Grahame's turn" to start against the Broncos.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Making debut in ranks of winners in Bowler-of-the-Week contest is Evelyn Noonan, who has captured women's tenpin award in fifth week of current Times-sponsored event. Evelyn topped division by spilling maples for 174-183-186—543 series in Friday Nite Mixed League at Mayfair Lanes.

Claremont Posts Exhibition Sweep

Claremont came to and conquered University School, blanking their hosts in a pair of exhibition high school rugby games Thursday.

Claremont's first team won 12-0 while the second downed University 11-0.

Dave Kyle, with a try and penalty goal, plus a try each from Don McLaren and Glen Robinson gave the first team its dues. Trys by Bill Scott, Mick Richman and Randy Benn, as well as a convert by Wayne Scotney, paced the seconds' win.

Peninsula Basketball

Saanichton plays host to three Peninsula Basketball League games Saturday in Saanichton Agricultural Hall. Cordova Bay provides opposition in a pre-midget girls' contest at 7 p.m. and for a midget girls' game at 7:45. Saanichton faces View Royal in a bantam girls' tussle at 8:30.

Chinooks Face Battle As Killies Catch On

Killarney Community Centre leapt into a first-place tie with Victoria Chinooks in Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League action in Vancouver Thursday night.

They accomplished it with a 72-71 victory over IGA Grocers and spiced a weekend series between the co-leaders in Central Junior High's gymnasium.

Ken House moved the victory for Killarney with 29 points while Bob Steeves added 10. Bob Noble's 14 points and Bill Bazaluk's 13 led losers.

In another game at Vancouver, Brent McLean fired 32 points in leading CYO Saints to their first victory this season—95-69 over North Shore Mountaineers.

Chinooks face Killarney at 8:45 p.m. Saturday and 1:30 p.m. Sunday with the league leadership on the line.

One problem manager Harold Turner foresees for the Victoria teams is the high-scoring shown by House in Thursday's game. What Killies lacked before was another good guard—and apparently they have found one.

Bucks Ride to Top On Late Outburst

On the strength of a four-goal, last-period surge, Ingraham Buckaroos climbed into sole possession of first place in the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League Thursady by beating Victoria Automatic Transmission 5-1 in Memorial Arena.

In another game, Empress Paints bounced Drake Hotel 7-3 to move into a tie for second spot with Transmissions.

Gord Strongman paced Bucks' victory with two goals and an assist. Greg Evans also scored twice and Ben Webber once. Bob Harris and Jim McNeill picked up three assists each for winners.

John Oliver fired the only Automatics' goal.

Buzz Wilson paced the Empress win with two goals and two assists. Vern Gibson hit for two other goals. Other Empress scorers were Glenn Vickers, one goal and three assists, while Harvey Stevenson and Pete McIlroy each connected once.

Fred Watson paced losers with two tallies with John Davron adding the other goal.

BOB HOPE JOINS BIDDING . . . . . . FOR BASEBALL SENATORS

Why Haggle Over $10,500,000 Price?

By SHIRLEY POVICH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Bob Hope has actively joined the bidding for the Washington Senators baseball franchise, and his agents in Washington are now negotiation for the team, which has a $10,500,000 price tag.

Hope told the Washington Post by telephone from his Los Angeles home: "I will not deny I am interested in purchasing the Washington team. I believe it can be an exciting franchise."

The wealthy movie-television personality thus is pitting his interest against that of a team of other bidders for the Washington franchise, dsiclosed as Robert E. Short, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, and Jeno F. Paulucci, both rich Minnesota industrialists.

A month ago, when Hope's name was linked with reports of the sale of the Senators, he denied he would try to buy the team. His interest in the Senators obviously has been reawakened.

Hope has maintained a lively interest in baseball as a member of the board of directors and a 10-per-cent owner of the Cleveland Indians, long his home-town team. He will meet an American League requirement by selling his stock in the Indians if he acquires the Seantors.

Bill Veeck and other professional baseball men have scoffed at the asking price for the Senators as "absurdly high," but spokesmen for both Short-Paulucci and Hope point out that their principals are not haggling over that item.

The Short-Pualucci viewpoint is that the $1,050,000 cash payment received by the Senators' owners in October from the new Seattle and Kansas City clubs is negotiable and might be deducted from the purchase price. The position of Hope's negotiators on that point is unknown.

The Senators are owned jointly by James H. Lemon and the estate of James M. Johnton, Lemon is insisting on retaining a token interest of the team, but Short-Paulucci aim at a 100-per-cent purchase. Hope is reported as content to buy 90 or 95 per cent.

The negotiating agent for Short-Pualucci pointed out that his principals "are taking a breather" from their activities in the Humphrey presidential campaign. "They need sleep and so do I," he said, "but we will try to wrap up the baseball deal before the week is out."

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

OUTDOOR REPORT

South Island Waters Best

By STEWART LANG

Salmon fishing has tapered off all around Vancouver Island with best returns reported from the southern end.

Saanich Inlet is full of large grilse or small blues — whichever you might prefer to call them — with better catches coming in from Tod Inlet and Willis Point to the Boulder.

Many limit catches are made, using various color combinations of flashtails on top of the water early in the morning.

Some late coho and a few early winter springs are showing.

Sidney Spit is a good bet for winter springs.

Fishing off Oak Bay is on the upswing with winter springs up to 14 pounds being boated near Trial Island and Fiddle Reef. Best times are early morning or tide changes. Springs are being caught in Pedder Bay, up to 18 pounds, with a few also showing in the Sooke offshore area.

Chums (or dog salmon) are being taken with the Buzz-Bombs in Cowichan Bay while grilse are plentiful near Nanaimo. Much the same situation exists off Courtenay as in Cowichan Bay — close to Point Holmes, the Bell Buoy and Deep Bay.

* * *

For freshwater anglers, fly purists can find good catches in Prospect Lake and trout are still on the bite in the top end of Cowichan Lake. Some trout are being fooled in the Cowichan River but coho seem to be moving upstream too fast now for any action.

Harris Creek and San Juan River are giving up steelhead. The sea-going are also filling creels on the rivers near Port Alberni, although waters were too high last weekend for ideal conditions.

Trolling and spinning in lakes near Courtenay has proved productive as has mooching with a worm in the deeper parts.

Hunting pressure should pick up this long weekend with the opening of doe season on Saturday. Hen pheasants also become fair game that day.

Geese, ducks and rails have been reported in good numbers around the Kennedy Lake area on the road to Tofino.

In the northern part of the Island, the Nimpkish Valley, Seyward Forest, Camp Five and Upper Quinsam regions might be expected to yield the heaviest harvest of deer.

* * *

NIBBLES: Elk hunters are reminded of the closed season on antlerless animals effective Friday at sunset . . . commercial steelhead fishing in the Lower Fraser area, usually a good indication of the potential numbers of steelhead available through the winter and spring on the east coast of Vancouver Island has proven successful . . . this September's catch of 844 fish is nearly four times the 225 caught in the same period last year . . . might be time to stock up on roe or start tying some fluorescent flies.

Habs' Winger Holds Trophy

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Provost, veteran right-winger with Montreal Canadiens, was presented with the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy before the start of the second period of Thursday night's National Hockey League game between the Canadiens and Pittsburgh Penguins.

Provost, a 35-year-old veteran of 13 seasons with the Canadiens, was presented with the award as "the National Hockey League player who best exemplifies the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey."

Provost was the first player to win the award. It was introduced by the writers' association earlier this year to commemorate Bill Masterton, a player with Minnesota North Stars who died January 15, 1968.

Hot Struggle For Top Spot

NANAIMO — Powell River and Port Alberni are engaged in what may turn out to be a season-long battle for first place in the Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey League.

Port Alberni leads with eight points from five games but Powell River, with a game in hand, trails by only two points.

Port Alberni's Selby Statz leads the individual scoring race with eight goals and five assists in four games.

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.

Farmers Lose Ground In Senior Hoop Race

Farmer Construction dropped off the pace in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League chase Thursday as Labatts came up with a 56-52 victory at Mt. Douglas High School.

Farmers slipped to third while Red Lion Inn clung to a share of the league lead with Labs after breezing to a 91-76 win over Colony Inn.

Terry Shenton, with 13 points, paced the Labs' victory while guard Ed Kowalyk added 10.

Besides the 17-point effort of Pete Simmonds, George Brice was the only other Farmer to hit the twin-figure group with 11 points for Farmers.

Morris Douglas chalked up 32 points in leading the Red Lion attack. Jim Cunningham replied with 28 points for Colony Inn.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Hardy Few a Cool Crowd Now

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Not so long ago, winter sailing consisted of a few hardy chaps racing Davidson dinghies in best frostbite tradition. Other local yachting was mostly an April-to-October season, with many of the wooden-hulled boats shore-stored for the winter.

In the fall of 1965, a group of Royal Victoria Yacht Club sailboats, wintering at the Tsehum Haven outstation, started a "frostbite" racing series off Sidney. And so, sailing became a year-round sport, with the activity emphasis shifting from the warm months to the winter, as far as racing is concerned.

Hewett

This activity coincided roughly with the general availability of fibreglass cruising boats, which rapidly increased the numbers of keel boats in the area.

Now, weekend cruising is an integral part of winter sailing. And again, this coincided generally with the opening of year-round marina-resorts such as Bedwell and Roche Harbor, which are easily accessible from the Victoria area.

The RVTC Tsehum-Haven racing program, in fact, has always included "Bedwell weekends" in their racing schedule.

The popular Sidney winter series is now entering its fourth season, with the first race scheduled for this Sunday, starting at 11 a.m.

Two four-race series will be sailed off Tsehum Harbor. First series' dates are Nov. 10, 24, Dec. 8 and Jan. 5.

The second series will go Jan. 26, Feb. 16, March 9 and 30.

Start and finish lines will be in the vicinity of Graham Rock, with the course going to the red channel buoy between Sidney Island and James, back to the red spar buoy at Sidney dock, back to the red channel buoy and finish.

All yachts will be scored using the CCA rating system over a full course of 9.5 miles. There will be an over-all prize for all yachts, as well as separate prizes for Division I (classes A and B), Division 2 (class C) and Division 3 (class D).

The first Bedwell Harbor weekend cruise will be held Nov. 16-17, with an informal race each way.

SHORT TACKS: Committee boat for the Tsehum-Haven series will be Canadian Fifer, which has done the honors for the two past seasons . . . Skipper is Oliver R. Summers, new Commodore of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, and Victoria Power Squadron Commander . . . Power Squadron classes are now in full swing with 125 enrolled in Basic Piloting, and 61 members enrolled for advanced and elective courses . . . This year, B.C. Chart No. 3450 will be used in the Basic Piloting course, which has undergone considerable revision . . . Chart No. 340 is also being used by the Victoria Cal 20 fleet, which is being instructed in piloting by Fleet President E. W. Finch-Noyes . . . Rear Admiral Finch-Noyes (Ret.) has recently been awarded an Honorary Life Membership in the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association, along with Lieut.-Commander F. G. Douglas (Ret.) . . . . .

Victoria Canoe and Kayak Club has now affiliated with the B.C. District, Western Division of the Canadian Canoe Association . . . RVYC Tsehum Haven series schedule has been planned as far as possible to alternate with the Turkey Head racing schedule, as many sailors plan to participate in both series . . . Previous winners of the Sidney series are Theo de la Mare (who did most of the initial organizing), Ned Ashe and Fred Gardiner . . . Recommended vantage viewpoint for Sunday's race is Sidney wharf, where spectators can follw the entire race with binoculars.

This Christmas, give her everything but the kitchen sink.

Christmas Day. The tree and the mistletoe, the cards and the gifts. And Christmas dinner. After which your wife spends the rest of the day at the kitchen sink, washing an enormous pile of dishes. Merry Christmas. Ho, ho, ho.

Take the kitchen sink out of her life. Give her an automatic dishwasher. It will clean pots, pans, glassware and fine china far more quickly and thoroughly than she ever could. With far less trouble, too. Just load everything into the dishwasher, switch on and the job's done.

So give her a lifetime holiday from dishes. Give her everything but the kitchen sink.

Give her a dishwasher.

MOVING OUT of Southampton today on her final voyage as a passenger ship is Cunard's Queen Elizabeth. She completed her last formal Atlantic crossing last week and is now bound—with 2,000 passengers—for Gibraltar and the Canary Islands. (AP Wirephoto.)

Queen E's Hometown Bids Farewell

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters) — Thousands of fans of the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth paced her decks and roamed her elegant lounges and staterooms Thursday, taking their last glimpse of a bygone era.

The world's largest liner had become a part of the lives of the people of this southern port, though most had never been aboard her.

Sometime next year the Queen Elizabeth will sail to Port Everglades, Fla., where she will end her days as a floating hotel surrounded by car parks, motels and marinas—in contrast to the dreary industrial docks of her home port.

The Queen Elizabeth took her last passengers to sea today.

Aboard for her farewell cruise were nearly 2,000 passengers heading for sunshine in Gibraltar and Las Palmas in the Canary Islands.

However, it was open house Thursday for the people of Southampton and others who had travelled from as far away as Glasgow, where she was launched in 1938.

Cunard staff were busy replacing hundreds of souvenirs and mementoes pocketed by the 1,500 passengers on the last voyage from New York.

The Queen Elizabeth arrived in Southampton Tuesday minus hundreds of silver pepper pots, knives, forks, spoons, ash trays and champagne glasses.

Even Cunard officials, who are used to seeing a ship stripped by souvenir hunters on her last voyage, were amazed when they counted up the losses.

Heart Grafts Called Greatest Life Saver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arterial grafts continue to be the most successful and greatest life saver in Canadian heart surgery, a leading surgeon said this week.

Dr. W. G. Bigelow of Toronto was interviewed at the Canadian cardiovascular annual meeting where he is to deliver the keynote address today in honor of Dr. John Keith of Toronto, another distinguished heart surgeon.

He said the mortality rate last year at Toronto General Hospital, where upwards of 100 internal artery operations were performed, was 3.7 per cent.

The operation is a procedure which incolves moving an artery from the chest wall into the heart.

It was first performed by Dr. Arthur Vineberg of Montreal.

In a speech to the convention, he stressed the importance of performing the operation before the heart muscle is badly damaged.

He referred to the first "Vineberg operation" patient who couldn't put on his own coat without suffering heart pains. He lived 14 years after the operation and died at age 73.

While heart transplants have provided new scope, Dr. Bigelow said there are many limitations to the field.

The number of acceptable donors is restricted; mechanical hearts that would have to pump five quarts of blood a minute would require a motor whose heat would destroy tissue; use of animal organs is only a possibility; and long-term heart banks, though a probability, are a long way off.

He said the artery operation doesn't require a heart-lung pump, and thus can be performed by all major hospitals.

10-Year Sentence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fisherman Michael John Skitt was jailed for 10 years Wednesday after pleading guilty to the July 8 armed holdup of a Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. More than $3,000 was taken in the holdup. He also pleaded guilty to the June 10 armed robbery of a pizza house and received a seven-year concurrent sentence.

FACULTY BILLS UBC STUDENTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia Faculty Club wants the UBC Alma Mater Society, the student union, to pay for the $6,100 damage inflicted on the private club during the recent sit-in by students, Professor David Huberman, faculty club president, said Wednesday.

Two Men Rescued

RICHMOND (CP) — Art Sheldrake and Carl Mueller, both of Richmond, were rescued Wednesday night after their 27-foot cabin cruiser burned and sank off Point Grey. They were taken on board a tug until a coast guard cutter arrived.

Draftee Ban 'Up to Points'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pinned to the office wall of the Vancouver Committee to Aid American War Objectors is a huge international peace symbol—the inverted Y in a circle.

The peace symbol is composed entirely of draft cards left by Americans who refuse to serve in Vietnam and have moved to Canada to avoid the draft.

The committee claims that many more Americans have been refused entry into this country by Canadian immigration officials on the flimsiest of excuses—an accusation hotly denied by immigration officials here.

John Gonzales, one of the committee's two full-time employees, said in an interview that immigration officers often turn back Americans of draft age even if they have jobs arranged in Canada.

"We have documented evidence that Americans of draft age have been turned back for no good reason at the Blaine, Wash., border crossing and at Vancouver International Airport," said Mr. Gonzales, a 22-year-old New Yorker.

"Some immigration officers seem to use any reason they can in order to send an American back to the States and it's not likely a draft resister will get through on a second attempt because their names are recorded."

Mr. Gonzales produced a wad of statements from young Americans who say they were refused entry to Canada although they had proof they were coming to jobs.

The discrimination charges were denied by G. W. Douglas, officer in charge of immigration at the Douglas, B.C., border crossing.

"Whether an individual is resisting the draft or evading the draft can have no bearing on our assessment of the individual," said Mr. Douglas.

"What I suspect is happening is that some of these young lads of 18 or 19 have difficulty in meeting our requirements because they're too young and don't have a skill yet."

He said that under new immigration legislation approved by Parliament last year border officials would have a difficult time discriminating against anyone even if they wanted to.

Applicants must now amass a total of 50 points of a possible 100 on objective criteria such as education, age, language and job skills, said Mr. Douglas.

Personal assessment, which can only account for 15 points, cannot be the sole reason for exclusion.

EXCLUSIONS OUTLINED

Mr. Douglas said a prospective immigrant is excluded if he has been involved in a crime classified as moral turpitude, but civil disobedience or other anti-war activities are not in themselves sufficient cause for exclusion.

There are no provisions in the new act to take account of draft status, he said.

Mr. Gonzales said the committee handles between 20 and 40 telephone calls and letters a week from young Americans seeking information on how to immigrate to Canada.

Optimists Groove For Youth

Optimist Club members are oozing love this week and sounding a bit like flower people.

Most of their affection is directed at youth.

They are getting ready for Youth Appreciation Week, Nov. 11 to 17, sponsored by Optimist clubs throughout Canada and the United States.

The main purpose of the week is to give young people a verbal pat on the back and let them know that everyone doesn't think they are rotten.

The three local branches of the Optimist Club are circulating printed memos containing slogans like: "Let us recognize our young people, not condemn them," or "Listen to their strong voices, voices that plead for understanding and patience."

"The Optimist members in Victoria appreciate the youth of today and feel they will be quite capable of taking care of the country in the future," said Youth Appreciation Week chairman Hank Graas.

NOT ONLY SLOGANS

Victoria area Optimists are not content to mouth slogans, however. They have busied themselves over the year providing programs for young people.

The Oak Bay Optimists, for example, sponsor the Spartan track and field team. The Victoria club provides a "bunny bus" to take handicapped children to special classes in the Marigold district.

The Evening Optimists Club of Victoria sponsors five teams in the Juvenile Soccer Association, providing managers and coaches for some teams.

In the summer about 225 boys wear Optimist sweaters in baseball leagues which Optimist help organize and run.

NEW CHAPTER

Basketball, public speaking, and hockey have all benefited from Optimist Club support and encouragement.

To commemorate Youth Appreciation Week, Optimists are planning to start a new chapter in the Sidney-Deep Cove-Brentwood area. They hope to attract enough interest to have an "active chapter" started there.

In the meantime, Optimist members have adopted a motto for next week ... "friend of a boy."

"Our objective is to promote and encourage the development of youth," said Mr. Graas.

Contracting Firm Refused Licence

A Greater Victoria contracting firm has been refused a business and trades licence to operate in the city of Victoria.

B and B Contractors had already been refused a licence by the city trades licence inspector but had asked for a committee decision.

A trades licence application is open to two appeals, one to committee, the next to full council.

Before ultimate rejection can be made council needs a unanimous vote in public meeting.

At that time council also states its reasons for the rejection making public any and all objections they have.

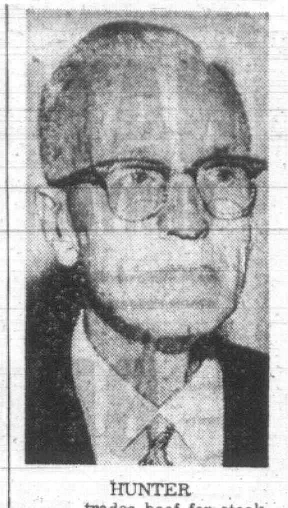
Beef 'Rare' Among Socreds But Suggestions Well Done



HUNTER
... trades beef for steak

By DON VIPOND

Among Esquimalt Socreds the beef is rare.

That's the way it turned out at a meeting of the Esquimalt Social Credit Constituency Association Thursday night when "Beef Night" produced more suggestions than complaints — and not many of them.

It was a night for some grass-roots communication — a chance for the party faithful to register their beefs and give the association a program to get its teeth into.

Twenty-two people at View Royal Hall, including Esquimalt MLA Herb Bruch, took immediate action on the first beef though. They all moved forward when one lady complained there were too many empty seats at the front.

Other beefs:

- Not enough education in the Socred philosophy available, particularly in group meetings.
- Provincial funds for housing loans instead of loans to Quebec.
- Every constituency should have a candidate chosen and ready to do battle on the federal scene.

But the prize — a juicy porterhouse steak — went to former city clerk and one-time federal candidate Frank Hunter of the Victoria Constituency Association who called for more co-operation between Socreds in B.C., Alberta and Quebec in promoting party leadership at the federal level.

Mr. Bruch's comment on Beef Night was there should be more frank talk from groups like it.

In federal politics, he said, Social Credit is making the same mistake other parties had made — looking for a messiah for leader rather than concentrating on teamwork in building government.

"Democracy is where people lead themselves through their representatives," he said.

Registry Of Housing Proposed

Greater Victoria will have a registry of housing in January if district councils back their mayors.

The intermunicipal committee Tuesday agreed to share a $600 cost to get the project, proposed last week by the Greater Victoria community welfare council, under way.

Operating out of Spencer House and staffed by volunteer experts, the registry will compile lists of all available accommodation throughout the area, the names of all people seeking accommodation and attempt to bring the two together.

Mayoor Gordon Lee, Central Saanich, said that although the housing registry would mean little to his municipality he was sure his council would support the cause.

"I can't give a commitment for my council, of course, but I am sure they would agree to support a project like this," he said.

Mayor Hugh Curtis asked for a unanimous request to all councils to share the cost of the project.

'Log Boom Won't Survive'

A proposal to boom the entrance to Gonzales Bay to prevent the build-up of logs on the beach went down to defeat Tuesday.

The Victoria public works committee listened to the proposal as advanced by city manager Dennis Young but decided an anchored boom would not survive winter and spring storms.

"At a cost of $6,000 I think we would just be wasting money," said Ald. Ian Stewart. "I'm no engineer but I have seen the fury of the sea in that area and I do not really think a boom would survive."

Mr. Young's report to the committee stated that a breakwater, the only fully effective way of keeping logs off the beach, would cost $600,000.

The Gonzales Bay beach has long been the object of criticism by residents.

Nigeria Begins To Improve World Image

By JOHN BEST

LAGOS (CP) — Most observers here agree that federal Nigeria's public relations system has been lamentably bad, especially in comparison with the smooth-working publicity machine operating for the secessionist regime in Biafra.

Now, however, the picture is changing, says Anthony Enahoro, the Lagos government's commissioner of information.

"We are satisfied that we have turned the corner," said Enahoro in an interview. "From studying the overseas press we believe that we have caught up with them (the Biafrans) . . . after some hard work."

Enahoro's position in the federal military government is equivalent to that of minister in a country such as Canada.

He claimed Biafra has spent from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 in a publicity campaign to tell its story to the world.

A key part of that story is that the federal government is out to annihilate the Ibo race through a policy of genocide. The federal government emphatically denies this.

REALIZES NEED

However, it has begun to realize that convincing the world requires more than just a passive rejection of the Biafran allegations—a fact in itself that testifies to the effective head start gained by the secessionists in the propaganda war.

Enahoro acknowledged that Markpress, the Geneva-based organiization which handles the Biafran government's public relations and information program abroad, is "one of the best in the business."

"We haven't quite matched this."

He also said the federal government does not have vast sums of money to spend on improving its "image."

"We have priorities—schools, keeping our foreign embassies going. . . . The normal day-to-day needs of a government still have to be met.

"We couldn't arrest all development in the country just because of this war."

The federal government is sending some of its top-level people abroad to talk to high-level people of other countries—the ones who count—and impart the Nigerian side of the civil war story.

The Biafrans have been doing this all along, he says, while federal leaders remained deskbound.

POSITION EXPLAINED

When I talked to him, Enahoro had just returned from a trip to France and Ireland. External Affairs Commissioner Okoi Arikpo was presenting his government's side of the case at the United Nations, and Communications commissioner Aminu Kano had just left for West Germany, the U.S. and possibly other countries.

Internally, the federal government is trying hard to foster a greater sense of unity and common innterest among the diverse tribes and the 12 states that make up the Nigerian federation.

This program has had to start virtually from scratch since traditionally the federal ministry of information had little impact among the people. Except in the field of broadcasting, information services were chiefly the responsibility of the different states.

The task is not easy. There still is considerable discussion in Nigeria as to just what kind of political structure would be best for this country of 55,000,000 persons.

Nigeria, like Canada, is having difficulty finding its personality and achieving a sense of identity. As the commissioner of information puts it:

"There is no amalgam that is distinctly Nigerian. Until we have an 'image', it is hard to try to project to people just what our 'vision' for Nigeria is."

DROPPING ROYAL from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was suggested Thursday by Georges Valade (PC — Montreal Ste. Marie). RCMP Commissioner M. F. A. Lindsay told Valade at a Commons justice committee meeting studying the RCMP's budget that the name Canadian Mounted Police could give the force more prestige and authority, especially in Quebec.

'Violence, Burning Cities If Poverty Not Eradicated'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada can expect violence and burning cities if poverty is not eradicated, the federal inquiry on housing was told Thursday.

The British Columbia Federation of Labor said in a brief that it was only necessary to look to the situation in the United States where "the frustrations of the poor and disfranchised have exploded in a tragic loss of human life."

If Canada did not act quickly, this country could look forward to a similar situation, the brief said.

It called for stringent control of interest rates, which, a federation spokesman said, often amounted to 24 per cent in the second mortgage field.

"Nobody should be able to charge that much," he said. "It shouldn't be allowed."

The brief, one of six presented during the four-day session, said the federal government must involve itself more directly in the housing field.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government's housing task force opened hearings here Thursday after being charged with ignoring a United Appeal brief that was two years in the making.

U.K. Fears Peace Recession

LONDON — The British were relieved Wednesday that the United States had actually elected a president, though there was minimal enthusiasm for Richard M. Nixon and considerable wariness about the kind of government he might lead.

Officials, commentators and the man on the street are of a single mind in fearing that the narrowness of Nixon's margin and the election of a Democratic Congress will mean that the president-elect will lack authority as he begins his term.

There is particular fear that this potential lack of authority will make more difficult the achievement of a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war during the next crucial few months.

But the prospect of peace in Vietnam also brings worries to senior British officials who otherwise would welcome an end to the war on moral and political grounds. The worry is that peace could be followed by a recession in the U.S., shrinking Britain's export prospects and creating new monetary strains.

'Single Quilt Covers Family'

By PETE LOUDON

A watchdog group of six "lay social workers" Thursday told Victoria Low Income Group something they already knew:

There is poverty and hardships among some Victoria families.

The volunteer caseworkers, four women and two men who were not identified, were part of seven teams recruited for the survey by VLIG, a self-help group mainly made up of welfare recipients.

The teams have received four training sessions and worked under supervision of a professional social worker, Reg Clarkson, founder of VLIG. Each team visited one city or district family which subsists on welfare.

The lay social workers said they found legitimate complaints and were surprised at the poor conditions under which the families were living.

'SQUALID'

Some said living conditions were "squalid" and often only one room in a house was heated.

One home's bed coverings for four people consisted of one quilt and there were no mattresses. There were oil stoves but no oil. One home housed two families wth a total of eight children.

One investigator reported one of the two mothers received her welfare allowance cheque but the other did not because the welfare office had reason to think she might receive money from her husband.

He said the welfare regulation states that in such a circumstance the cheque shall be paid and if an overpayment results it shall be recovered from a future cheque.

DISCREPANCIES

Several of the lay social workers said they learned of similar discrepancies. One professional social worker was, on occasion more generous than another faced with similar demands, they noted.

Others reported the families they had interviewed had no complaints about social welfare administration. But one said a family which had been 24 years on welfare had not seen a professional social worker in a year. A welfare recipient in the audience said she hadn't seen her caseworker in two years.

A member of the audience added she knew of a family of 10 receiving only $60 every two weeks in welfare aid.

The investigating group said each team was generally well received by the families interviewed. Two said they had a good reception when they were required to contact professional social workers. One said her reception was "not too good."

One said a professional social worker complained the amateur "ruined the relationship between the regular social worker and the client."

Clarkson explained that the lay social worker teams were formed to assist welfare patients in obtaining all the assistance permitted under welfare regulations.

He said Victoria welfare authorities had some question in their minds about the value of the VLIG survey but they were prepared to await the final outcome before reaching conclusions. The study is continuing.

Other business at the VLIG meeting, attended by about 25 persons, included two resolutions.

The provincial department of welfare will be asked to set up an emergency procedure to be followed by persons on welfare when sudden difficulties arise. Members said they believe they are "given the run around" when they try to reach senior officials.

The VLIG also will ask Metro medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread for assistance in setting up a medical-dental clinic for all low-income persons to obtain free care.

The meeting heard complaints about the regulation which denies free medical care to any person on welfare who is capable of employment, whether or not he is employed. Also criticized was the fact that families on welfare must wait three months before qualifying for free medical aid.

Cigarette Gimmick Up in Smoke

A bid by a cigarette company to distribute free smokes on downtown streets was rejected by Victoria's finance committee Thursday.

The application to make the hand-outs came in a letter from Downtown Businessmen's Association.

They asked that on Nov. 15 a truck carrying a three-piece band be allowed to tour city streets while two attractive girls handed out free cigarettes.

"The company isn't named," said city manager Dennis Young. "But a short time ago we refused permission to Sportsman cigarettes for exactly the same thing. They drive around with the band with a big sign stating 'throw us a pack and we'll throw you one back.'

"We told the company representative that the proposal was unacceptable to the city.

"Although no company is named here I have the feeling this is an attempt to evade the direct approach."

Ald. Percy Frampton said he too had been approached by Sportsman representatives.

"I think this is definitely a backdoor approach and should be rejected," he said. "But I think it should be made clear that we think the downtown merchants are doing a wonderful job. We are not rejecting them, just the cigarette company.

Cheques Singed

Community Chest cheques totalling almost $40,000 were slightly singed when vandals set letters afire in a mailbox outside Spencer House Wednesday night. A spokesman said all had been sent out again and only a few forms were lost. Money was monthly allocations to various agencies dependent on Chest support.

SPEAKER at a public meeting at The Inn, 1528 Cook Street at 8 p.m. today will be Winston Evans, who represented the Bha'i Faith at the recent meeting of the World Council of Churches at Uppsala, Sweden. For many years, Mrs. Evans has been a faculty member of various Baha'i schools in the United States. He is here at the invitation of members of the Baha'i Faith on Vancouver Island and is staying at the Dominion Hotel.

Drug Kits for Parents Prepared by School Board

The Greater Victoria school board will make information kits on drugs available to parents again this year.

The kits are free and contain factual articles on LSD, marijuana, glue-sniffing and related drug fads alleged among some students.

The school board organized a drug education program in senior high schools last May and also compiled an information kit for parents. A total of 270 were handed out.

Assistant district superintendent A. J. Longmore said today the current kits have been updated and expanded. Parents can call the scholl board at 385-1411 to have one mailed to them or pick a kit up at the board offices in the Paul Building on Foul Bay Road at Lansdowne.

He said he will be meeting with high school principals and counsellors later this month to discuss possible future drug education programs. Some schools have incorporated the subject into their guidance programs.

Williston Denies Land Bank Hoax

Lands Minister Ray Williston Thursday denied the provincial government had been "taken" on a proposed land bank housing development on the lower mainland.

"We haven't been taken yet and I don't intend to be taken in the future," Mr. Williston said in commenting on a statement by Bob Williams (NDP—Vancouver East).

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, in a joint statement with Mr. Williston, two weeks ago announced the government had launched a land bank project under which parcels of land would be reserved for co-operative, non-profit housing developments.

Fifty acres of land had been reserved for a housing development by "Anmore Home Builders Co-operative," backed by six trade unions and receiving financial advice from Thomas C. Mills and Associates.

It was hoped the project would eventually expand to provide 1,000 homes on a 300-acre area in the Port Moody area.

READY TO BURST

In a written statement, Mr. Williams said "the B.C. government's land bank is a speculative bubble waiting to be burst."

He said Mr. Williston had not checked into the background of the promoters and had not determined whether the trade unions were involved.

Mr. Williston said the scheme was not a promotional or speculative one but simply one to get people to use their own resources to meet their housing needs.

It was strictly a performance deal, he said. If the developers lived up to the agreement the project could go ahead. The government had a controlling mechanism and would study the performance "step by step."

He said to investigate people and then give them a blanket stamp of approval "is the way you get led down the garden path."

"It's much better to take it, strictly controlled, one step at a time."

NO AGREEMENT

The minister said no title to the land would change hands until it was given to the new home owner at the previously agreed upon low price.

He said the developers haven't got anything unless they perform to their promises.

"There's no agreement at this stage of the game," Mr. Williston said.

"There's no agreement until the performance is met."

Mr. Williams charged that the development appeared to be another "promotional stunt" to cover up the government's inactivity in the housing field.

Mr. Williston said Mr. Williams obiously had not done his homework.

Arthur Mayse

One morning this week, a man who belongs to the Royal Canadian Legion dropped in. With him he brought a carefully-typed piece about Remembrance Day . . . the usual pitch . . . and he hoped we would help poppy sales by printing it.

His name is Bob Scott, and we have talked a time or two about other matters.

I'm not sure that veteran Bob laid his screed on the right desk. Perhaps I've stood by at one Cenotaph service too many. But I respect plain men who fought wars; so here, stripped of the trimmings, is Bob Scott's message from the Legion:

"November 11th should not only be an occasion of remembrance of the Glorious Dead, it should also be a time for practical remembrance of the disabled veterans, widows and dependants of the fallen who are in need of a helping hand. Poppy Day, organized by Legion branches, provides everyone with an opportunity for practical remembrance. It is hoped that the people of Greater Victoria, as in years past, will wear poppies."

Sure, I'll wear a poppy, and hope you will, too, even though the great wars are long past, and though I sometimes wonder whether we should go on resurrecting them year by year. The poppy, after all, is not the flower of remembrance but of forgetfulness. Still, the kids would miss the holiday, and some would lose more than that.

★

There are children of servicemen whose deaths were hastened by the war, even though they survived it. Some of the poppy money goes to provide high school or university bursaries for them, or to supplement their mothers' pensions with a few needed dollars.

Also, the take from those Vet Craft poppies buys small comforts for the men in our DVA hospital—a place which out of sheer cowardice, I have yet to visit. Why take the lid off hurtful memories of another veterans' hospital and a man who, increasingly as his life progressed, paid for a plain soldier's part in a war?

For war never really takes its claws out of a man, even if he survives it, and comes home, and picks up his life again. That, I suppose, is why the Legion keeps reminding us with its stiff red poppies each November of something that should have faded into history.

There, the children of the Bomb might prefer to let old wars remain. They have their own worries.

Even so, very many of them wear poppies. Their reasons make sense:

From a girl: "I don't believe in war. I guess just because they were brave men."

From one young man: "I'd feel kind of guilty if I didn't. Anyway, the money does some good."

★

They were men, and perhaps their chief bravery was that they endured from one day to the next.

"Mon., June 25, 1917.

"Rainy night. Arrived back at dugout after making two trips to front line, 2:30 a.m. An officer of Engineers was killed, the Tenth buried a man. Slept from 6 a.m. till 1 p.m., lucky to find a blanket. Heavy shellfire all day, but in spite of that, Prior and I went to spring for water and a wash. On way back, we gathered a bouquet of lovely white, cream, red and pink roses and put them on graves. Went out on carrying party at 10:15 p.m. . . ."

But there were damned few roses, or poppies either, and for July 23, that determined, workaday diarist managed only one feebly-scrawled word.

"Painful."

This after four blank days. The same shrapnel storm fatally wounded Prior, his best friend.

So I wear a poppy—which is also the flower of sleep—for his pain, and his yearning for peace, and for all men of all services who shared the pain and the yearning. Perhaps in some far millenium that peace will be universal.

Wage Bid Reduced By Teachers

Greater Victoria teachers dropped their pay increase request from 10.17 to 8 per cent Thursday but failed to evoke any response from the school board.

Negotiations are "virtually stalled" because of the board's refusal to make an offer, said teachers' negotiator Burke Cahill.

The board is still waiting for a reasonable proposal before making an offer, said E. E. Pearlman, the trustees' negotiator.

At issue is more than $10 million in salaries for the district's 1,280 teachers. They settled for a seven per cent increase plus fringe benefits a year ago.

The board did request a further meeting Thursday.

Both teachers and trustees in the Sooke school district have declined issuing statements on negotiations there.

And in the school district covering the Saanich Peninsula a teachers' spokesman said negotiations are proceeding amicably and agreement expected without arbitration. Teachers are asking for a 7½ per cent increase.

$300 Scholarship Given Uvic Grad

Martin Moseley, a science graduate of the University of Victoria, has been awarded a $300 scholarship for engineering studies.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moseley, 962 Page, he is in his graduating year at the University of British Columbia. He graduated from Uvic in 1964.

The scholarship was awarded by Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd., as one of seven presented to UBC students.

Mr. Moseley is married and now resides in Vancouver.

ARSON BID RULED OUT AT SCHOOL

Further investigation of a small fire overnight Wednesday at the old North Ward School has revealed it was caused by sparks from a fire lit earlier in the day in a boiler.

Fire officials said the boiler was connected to a partially dismantled chimney. Earlier it was believed arson might have been involved.

A spokesman for the fire department said the terms of the demolition contract with the city forbid any burning on the premises and the department intended to enforce the regulations.

He also said the building will have to be supervised because it is now classed as a fire hazard.

Mailboxes Wrecked In Saanich

Saanich police are investigating nearly a dozen "deliberate acts of vandalism" in which mailboxes have been torn from their posts and smashed.

Reports of the incidents trickled into police headquarters all day Thursday and today from residents in the West Saanich area. Police believe youths driving around in a car were responsible.

One resident on Prospect Lake Road reported his mailbox had been torn down for the 10th time. Another, on Viaduct, said it was the fourth time the box had been damaged. Vandals ripped the boxes from their posts and then stove them in with large rocks.

Of the 12 incidents reported three took place on Wallace Drive and Goward Road, two on Prospect Lake Road and one each on Viaduct, West Saanich, Old West Road and Burnside. In one case a sign was taken also.

Brothers Likes Merger Proposal

By DON VIPOND

A school board plan to phase out two old elementary schools serving James Bay and consolidate operations in a third has drawn encouragement from Education Minister Donald Brothers.

The schools are James Bay, Beacon and South Park, the latter now the oldest school in the district with the demolition of North Ward.

In a tour of South Park this week Mr. Brothers was enthusiastic about the idea of merging facilities at the James Bay site.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said today the education minister's reaction leads the board to seek "some really meaningful discussions with our friends at city hall right now."

There is no room for additions on the James Bay school site as it stands and this is where discussions with the city come in.

The school is alongside Macdonald Park which the city controls. But the school board can point out that the South Park and Beacon school sites go to the city when they are no longer needed.

The school merger idea has been simmering for some time but the possibility of an urban renewal project in the James Bay area has been a factor in delaying action.

COMPLAINTS

Mr. Bunn said the school board has had complaints about sub-standard school conditions in James Bay and is well aware of them.

There is money approved by referendum for the work but no sense in going off "half cocked."

"We've had to hold off for a really worthwhile over-all plan."

The school board chairman said Mr. Brothers showed keen interest in trustees' long-range planning and complimented former board, for their foresight in acquiring school sites years in advance of need.

He Was Sick, Knew It And Made Right Move

By PETE LOUDON

"I was going to work every morning with butterflies in my stomach—sick afraid.

"When I got home at night, my impulse was to go to bed and pull the covers over my head.

"I didn't want to read or watch TV or talk to the kids. There just wasn't any point in doing anything."

The speaker's name, if he would reveal it, would be familiar to many Victorians. They would wonder what could inspire such fear and despondency in him.

He couldn't tell them himself.

"There was no reason for it, but there it was. I had a secure position which previously I had enjoyed. My family relationships were good. Our future was bright. But suddenly it all meant nothing."

He was experiencing, as he found out later, a mental illness, the one called depression. About 20 people a year in a city the size of Greater Victoria commit suicide because of depression.

The man telling the story said he had an advantage over some depressives; he recognized that he was sick and he went to his doctor. He was sent to a psychiatrist; they had some talk sessions and an antidepression drug was tried.

• • •

After a few weeks the trouble was gone. Now he talks quite freely to friends about the time he had to go to a "head shrinker" and went on "happy pills."

But he won't put his name in this story.

"I figure there are still too many people around who would never forget I had a mental illness. They would never quite trust me again."

Statistics show that three out of 10 Canadians experience some mental problems in their lifetime and one out of 10 spends time in a mental hospital. That means mental illness probably has touched the family circle in every fourth home on your block.

When everyone fully understands that, when it's accepted that a mentally-ill person can be cured, often faster than he can mend a broken leg, people will seek help earlier, be cured more easily.

Public education to that end is one of the jobs of Canadian Mental Heatlh Association. The Victoria branch office at 2316 Lee also works at helping some of the 78,000 Canadians in mental hospitals back into a useful life.

Just a few years ago there were more people taking up beds in mental hospitals than there were in all other types of hospitals combined, says Mrs. Joan Dumka, executive director. Now, because so many mental ills can be treated on an out-patient basis, mental hospital occupancy is less than in other hospitals.

• • •

Part of the reason is the CMHA program for persons who have come out of the mental hospitals or who might be going in, if someone here didn't show they cared.

It's the experience of being lost and alone and out of touch that makes the minor case slide down to the major illness level. CMHA counters with acceptance, companionship, hobbies, advice on home problems.

The patient who can't communicate with his own family finds comfort in the company of others who know his problem. CMHA has active drama clubs, discussion groups, hobby classes, some even geared to match age categories and income levels.

Last year 115 Victoria residents used the CMHA centre as a haven. Some came every day. Most days a couple of dozen drop in. Without the centre many of them would sit at home until they completely lost touch and needed institutional care.

The volunteer helpers, the home-made cakes, the soothing effect of painting or woodworking, of listening to music, keeps dozens of people out of hospital each year. And each year 10 or 11 people who were sick climb back to useful jobs through the doors of the centre.

That's why it has a usefulness to Victoria. That's why United Appeal provides two-thirds or more of its $30,000 budget. That's why Victoria backs United Appeal.

Action Ordered To Expropriate Pool Site Land

Price Hangup With Eight Householders

Victoria moved two steps closer Thursday to its new swimming pool to replace the Crystal Garden.

The first came when the city's recreation and community services committee ordered start of expropriation proceedings against eight hold-out property owners on the new pool site.

The second when the same committee ordered the launching of an immediate search for the best swimming pool consultant in the west.

Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman of the committee, reported that half the land required for the pool had already been purchased but that eight property owners had failed to come to agreement with the city on price.

Expropriation of the properties, generally believed to be in the vicinity of Central Park, is expected to take place following next Thursday's city council meeting.

Expropriation means that the courts will set the final price to be paid the property owners.

LOCAL DESIGNER

Committee members agreed that a top consultant should be called in to advise on what type of pool should be built but they dug in their heels when it was suggested that an out-of-town firm might also be the best designers of the new pool.

Bob Hutchison said he agreed with calling in an expert as a consultant but insisted a local architect should do the actual design.

Michael J. Griffin agreed.

SEPARATE STAGES

Mr. Young and Ald. Frampton both assured the committee that the planning and design of the pool would take place in separate stages.

"It will be carefully spelled out that the consultant will be just that," he said. "The actual design should certainly go to a local architect."

This morning committee members expressed surprise at published reports that a last-minute bid to save the Crystal has failed.

A Colonist story stated that "a final pitch to keep the Crystal Garden from being demolished was made Thursday by architect Peter Cotton and swimming coach Gerald Vowles."

Mr. Cotton is quoted as saying demolition would deprive the city of a distinctive and unique building. Mr. Vowles is quoted as saying demolition of the Crystal would eliminate any chances Victoria ever had of developing champion swimmers.

The story subsequently stated that "the men who decide the city's recreation policy were not swayed by either argument."

PUZZLED

Committee chairman Ald. Frampton said he was puzzled by the report.

"It's a little bewildering to read about something that never happened," he said. "Neither man was at the meeting and neither man has ever protested to me either verbally or by letter."

Mr. Griffin, a former alderman and a member of council when the original decision to demolish the Crystal was made, said he thought he was dreaming when he read the report.

"I don't know how you answer this," he said. "I was at the meeting from start to finish and I didn't see nor hear of any protest. Had there been one I would have referred both men and the Colonist reporter to the impartial engineers report of 18 months to two years ago.

"That report told us in very certain terms that it would cost us half a million dollars to bring the Crystal up to scratch and $750,000 to make it safe."

Firm Pays Fine For Breaking Nematode Law

Plants Transported Without Authority

A firm which violated the British Columbia Plant Protection Act has been fined $100 in Duncan magistrate's court.

The act contains regulations which control the spread of the dreaded golden nematode.

Duncan's Farmer Auction, Ltd., pleaded guilty to removing plants with soil attached from Victoria lands to Cowichan Station without the authorization of a provincial or federal plant inspector.

The charge was laid by the federal department of agriculture which administers the act.

It is the first crackdown under the act which designated in 1966 the whole of southern Vancouver Island a plant quarantine area following an outbreak of golden nematode.

The area involves all of the land south of the Malahat. This includes the Saanich Peninsula, Victoria, and the unorganized districts right through to Port Renfrew.

COSTLY PROJECT

Under the act no person may remove plants with soil attached from the quarantine area. These include house plants.

The department to date has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to control and eradicate the pest, first discovered on a Saanich bulb farm.

Golden nematode attacks the roots of potatoes and tomatoes and if allowed to spread to other parts of the Island and the mainland, would affect Canada's farm economy.

"So far we have been successful in controlling the pest," said federal plant inspector Roy Messum. "This would not have been possible without the co-operation of farmers."

Youths Jailed For Attempt To Rob Store

Two youths who earlier pleaded guilty to attempting to break into a city grocery store today were given lengthy definite and indeterminate sentences in the Young Offenders' Unit.

Magistrate William Ostler sentenced Marko Smart, 18, to 12 to 30 months and Neils Larson, 20 years, to 12 to 24 months. Both gave addresses to the police as 2809 Nanaimo Street.

At an earlier hearing court was told the youths together with a 16-year-old juvenile attempted to enter the Busy Bee store, 1134 Hillside, Oct. 28.

THWARTED

Police said Smart tried to cut the window with glass cutters and after failing put his jacket on the window and broke the glass.

The youths then attempted to cut a steel mesh on the inside of the window. They were later apprehended in front of the store by city police officers.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said Smart had a lengthy juvenile record and had received a 14 to 20-month term for theft in February, 1967. He said Larson had also admitted having a record.

At that time Magistrate Ostler told the youths there was no need in this country to break and enter for food. He made the comment after police said they told him they hadn't eaten for five days.

Moist Weekend Seems Likely

It's going to continue cloudy and moist.

Rain will continue to fall tonight, possibly break slightly Saturday afternoon, then return Sunday afternoon and evening, the weather office predicts.

That could be the story for Remembrance Day, too, although forecasters did not want to put their necks out that far.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me whether the HMS the Hood was ever salvaged? Was it ever proved that one shot from 17 miles away was responsible for her going down?—M.S.T.

A. The Hood was sunk in a Second World War battle with the German ship the Bismark and went down in 6,000 feet of water. It has not been salvaged. An eyewitness to the battle says visibility at the time was poor and it is "unlikely" that the fatal shot was fired at a range of 17 miles. He said the shot was more likely fired at a range of six or seven miles. The shot hit some ammunition supplies in the Hood and caused the explosion which sank her.

Three Injured In Noon Crash

Three persons were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital following a two car accident at Wascana and West Maddock at about noon today.

No names or details were available at press time but the injured were believed to be two young boys and a woman. All were in one car which suffered extensive damage. The occupants of the other vehicle were not reported injured.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Penny Researches Winter Desserts

By PENNY SAVER

Almost all the leaves have disappeared from the chestnuts that divide our office from the playground of the slowly disappearing North Ward School. The bare twigs against grey rainclouds have a chilly, wintery look; a reminder that the season of long woolly scarves and containers full of hot soup is at hand. Hot meals are no trouble for me. My automatic oven timer does all the work on roasts, except for the carving, and I can usually coerce one of the children into helping me with the vegetables. The only area in which winter meals really become a problem is that of desserts. My family will eat roast beef all week as long as I change the vegetable and the dessert. But after a day of shopping I don't feel like making a pudding or baking a cake, and I know this feeling will get stronger when the Christmas rush reaches a frantic pitch. With this in mind I am doing some research now into desserts that are quick and simple.

During my research I have discovered a brand of frozen fruit crisps. These come in their own foil tin. Just heat them in a 45-degree oven for 25 minutes and they are ready to eat. A crisp, for those of my readers who may know this popular dessert by another name, is a layer of fruit laid over with a layer of crunchy topping. The frozen crisps I have found use fresh British Columbia fruits. They come in three flavors: apple crisp is 59 cents, while peach and cherry crisps sell for 69 cents each. Each crisp contains 20 ounces and yields four to six servings. Since my family like their crisps served piping hot, I put the dessert into the oven as I serve the meat course. By the time we are ready for dessert, it is cooked and ready for use.

Son Sets Heart on Chef's Cap

Actually I can't complain about cooking this year because one of my sons has decided to learn to cook. He comes into a bit of ribbing from his friends about this strange hobby and I have no doubt that his enthusiasm will lag in time, but right now he has his eyes on a position as a chef in a large hotel. He is quite good already and surprised the whole family the other day by producing a better steamed pudding than I can manage myself. He even thought far enough ahead to pick up a jar of prepared hard sauce to serve with it. (I think seeing the hard sauce in the store may have inspired him to try the pudding, but I'm not sure.) A 12 ounce jar of this sauce is 89 cents. It is ready to serve. As well as the usual amounts of sugar, butter and vanilla, this sauce is spiked with artificial rum and brandy flavorings.

Yorkshire pudding mix is the latest of Jayne's cooking finds. As she will admit herself she is a lazy enough cook to take the time to look for such effort savers. A four-ounce package of this mix is 29 cents. All you need to add is water. The package includes suggestions for both individual Yorkshires (baked in muffin tins) and the large family-size Yorkshire, as well for a dish they call "English pancakes" of which I have never heard. A minor mystery like that is enough to make me eager to give the mix a try.

DEAR ABBY . .

She's Rarin' to Go At 62, but Not Him

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After you have read my letter, please tell me if you think I am "tetched" or not.

I am married to a merchant marine. He is 57 and I am 62. We have been married for 5 years. This is the second marriage for both of us.

Abby, my husband is out at sea 3 months out of 4, and when he's gone I get so lonely for romance I could just die. I don't feel 62, and I don't look it either.

When my husband is home he wants to spend the whole 30 days in front of the television set. He never wants to take me out. He says he loves me, but he doesn't show me any affection, and I still like to be romanced. He supports me, which I appreciate, but I want more out of life. He says at our age sex does not matter. I told him to speak for himself, John. My question, am I expecting too much from him at his age?

62 AND RARIN' TO GO

DEAR 62: The amount of romance each person desires (or requires) depends on the individual's physical condition, attitudes, "get up and go," and a number of other factors. Some people are plum tuckered out at 35, while others are rarin' to go at 70. If your husband says you are expecting too much of him at his age, you'd better believe him.

DEAR ABBY: I'm ashamed of my husband because he speaks English so poorly. He's not a foreigner, Abby. He's had a high school education, but he talks like his parents, and they're foreigners.

On the plus side, Louie is a good provider. He doesn't run around, and he's good to the children and me. But the way he murders the king's English irks me.

I've given Louie books on grammar and I've even suggested he attend some adult education classes. But he never gets around to it. I correct him every time he opens his mouth, but he's either stupid or he doesn't care.

What do you suggest? I've even considered divorce.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: DIVORCE? That's like chopping a man's head off to get rid of the dandruff. Maybe there's something wrong with the way you "correct" him, or "suggest" that he learn. How come his grammar didn't irk you when he asked you to marry him? Or did you plan on making him over after marriage? If so, you'd better find a more effective way to "help" him or learn to live with his deficiencies.

TREASURE VAN AT UNIVERSITY

The University of Victoria committee of the World University Service of Canada will hold its 1968 Treasure Van in the lounge of the Student Union Building next week. The project will begin Tuesday and continue until Friday, with hours of operation being from noon to 5 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.

Junior Auxiliary to Royal Jubilee Makes Record Amount of $7,600 at Bazaar

A record total of $7,600 was raised by members of the Royal Jubilee Hospital's Junior Auxiliary at their annual bazaar, held Wednesday at the nurses' residence.

From the moment the bazaar was opened by the general convener Mrs. K. J. Norgaard at 11 in the morning, shoppers crowded to the stalls which were covered with attractive articles, most of them made during the year by auxiliary members.

Especially popular were arrangements of pampas grass with sprayed leaves, many of them held high above the heads of the crowd as shoppers tried to get them safely to their car.

Tucked away in a separate room was another popular feature, the hat bar, well-stocked with good-as-new millinery, including some very high-fashion creations at bargain prices.

Assisting Mrs. Norgaard as co-convener of the bazaar was Mrs. R. S. Goldney.

Also assisting were auxiliary president Mrs. G. H. Carter; second vice-president Mrs. W. Hughes; Miss L. Maxwell in charge of decorations; Mrs. R. Stacey, supplies; Mrs. A. M. Oswald, invitations and door prize; Mrs. Margaret Carter, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. H. Bamford, treasurer, and Mrs. R. H. Byers publicity.

In charge of the stalls were Mrs. H. F. Yerex, boutiques; Mrs. H. G. Ellis, jewelry; Mrs. J. G. Jones, gifts; Mrs. A. Brand, plants; Mrs. D. Macphail, home cooking; Miss Clare King, jams and pickles; Mrs. E. E. Chamberlin, with Mrs. P. N. Burhett, candy wreaths; Miss A. Parker, knitting; Mrs. A. L. Harvey with Mrs. W. J. Roper, white elephants.

Mrs. W. D. Dickinson was in charge of luncheon arrangements, assisted by Mrs. G. H. Bray as co-convener. Tea convener was Mrs. M. W. McElrae.

The main raffle was convened by Mrs. D. Hunter.

Realize $500

Proceeds amounting to more than $500 were realized when the Evening Branch of Christ Church Cathedral's Anglican Church Women held its Christmas bazaar and tea in the Memorial Hall. The event was opened by diocesan president Mrs. F. Goodwin. Guests were welcomed by branch president Mrs. H. B. Hubbard.

GUIDELINES FOR THE TEEN-AGE GIRL

Ways of Keeping Dates Pleasantly Under Control

By DR. TOM McGINNIS

(Editor's Note: This report on teen-age boy-girl relationships is adapted from the book, "A Girl's Guide to Dating and Going Steady." The author is a well-known New Jersey psychotherapist and professor at New York University.)

With the development of contraceptives which are effective when used correctly, some parents have become more tolerant about their daughters. However, contraceptives often are not used correctly, as high rates of unwed motherhood and abortions clearly prove. Therefore, the consequences of intercourse are still much worse for a girl than for a boy.

At present, then, the general feeling is that it is up to the girl to keep petting from getting out of control and to see that premarital intercourse does not take place.

I suggest three fundamental principles:

1. Always know the boy you are dating: Before you go out alone with a boy it is desirable that you know who he is, what his family and school backgrounds are, where he comes from, and something about his personality and character. Often, among young girls, this is taken care of because the boy is generally a schoolmate, a neighbor, or someone you have known for a long period. If you are going out for the first time with a boy you do not know well, it is often safer to double-date. Double-dating gives you and your boy friend a chance to size each other up and to decide whether you would like to see each other again.

You can probably size up any boy who asks for a date by the way he looks, talks and acts. If he is wearing spotless clothes, he says something to you—perhaps that he is clean-cut, or that he is too nice, or that he is like or unlike the kind of boy you would want to date.

While you are judging, it may be well to remember that you are also being judged. Boys seeing you for the first time notice your clothes, hair, the way you speak and act, and many other things about you. Some may think you are the perfect type for them. Others, for their own reasons, may not want to date you.

Maybe, for example, they think you are too smart for them, or too high class. Maybe they are afraid to ask for a date because they think you are far out of their league.

2. Anticipate what you will be doing on the date: This practice can help prevent boredom, restlessness, and the feeling that you have to do something just for the sake of excitement. The most enjoyable dates are generally those that keep you occupied with no time on your hands—a party at a friend's home, a dance with a stop at the snack bar later, a date at a movie theatre with no time to kill after the film is over. With plans like this, you can avoid feeling that you have nothing to do, for at such moments there often is a tendency to start necking just for the sake of filling time.

Some settings encourage a boy's desire to play the wolf. Parties at homes where no adults are present encourage some boys to become bolder than they would be otherwise. This may be even truer if drinking is done.

They then combine two sets of inexperiences—not knowing how alcohol can dull their sense of right and wrong so that they will do things they would not otherwise do, and not knowing how sexual desire builds up until it becomes more and more difficult to control. This combined inexperience may create a situation in which the desire for complete sexual fulfilment overwhelms them.

3. Learn how to "cool it" graciously: One of the most frequent questions I am asked by teen-age girls runs like this: "How can I stop a boy from going too far, while at the same time letting him know I really like him?" This can be a real problem, since even boys who may feel real affection for you think they should become as passionate as you will allow.

In answering, I generally describe my basic philosophy—that when two human beings want to mean more to each other it is generally best if both of them can know what their true feelings are and express them in a simple, above-board fashion.

I think that perhaps the most effective answer a girl can give to a boy she likes but wants to slow down is to tell him frankly that she enjoys his company, but feels they are not yet ready for what he seeks to promote. Stating her feelings in this way, she does no harm to his ego or to their relationship. In fact she helps them.

IF BOYS ARE 'TOO SLOW'

While most girls report that their big problem is keeping boys from "going too fast," other girls report that their problem is that boys do not seem aggressive enough to suit them. At the beginning of the dating experience particularly, young girls often complain that boys are too shy and backward.

One reason for this condition is that girls generally mature faster than boys. A second and more lasting reason why a boy is "too slow" may be that he is uncertain of his real standing with the girl. He may be afraid that she will rebuff him if he tries to "make a pass" at her. He may lack confidence in his ability to kiss and neck in an effective way.

The girl who feels that her boy friend is "too slow" probably would make a mistake of becoming more aggressive herself. It might be well to determine why the boy acts as he does and then to work to remove the causes. Perhaps the most effective way is to let him know that you like him, enjoy his company, and would not discourage him if he tried to kiss you or neck with you.

SEXUAL DESIRES

While sexual desires can be very real, they can be much more intense when you are doing nothing. As a rule, you can forget about sex when you are taking part in other activities. For instance, if you were in a swimming meet at school you would find it almost impossible to think about sex while trying to beat everyone to the finish line.

Whether you remain single or marry, you will have to learn to control your sexual desires at times. Even married people must do it occasionally. A pregnant woman may be told by her doctor to avoid intercourse several weeks before the baby is born and several weeks afterward. You and your husband might be separated for long periods and you are unable to have sexual relations together. So it is important to know that you can take your mind off the subject by plunging into some activity that will keep you thinking about something else.

When sexual thoughts become too powerful, girls as well as boys may feel the urge to satisfy their impulses by masturbating. It was once generally thought that masturbation was responsible for many diseases and conditions—bad skin, bad hearing, insanity, feeble-mindedness—that those who did it revealed themselves to others by these signs. Medical doctors now say that this practice does not cause physical damage.

There can be other consequences, however. Girls who believe that masturbation is morally wrong may have deep feelings of guilt. Sometimes they are so troubled by this that they cannot even bring themselves to tell anyone about it. They therefore carry their sense of shame inside themselves, feeling unworthy.

From a psychological point of view, the fact that a girl occasionally masturbates may be far less important than why she does it. Masturbating for physical satisfaction or to gain relief from tensions is one thing.

I would be concerned, however, if she does it as a way of gaining satisfaction in her private world when relations with friends or family are not going well. For then she is using it as a crutch to get over the rough spots in life.

NEXT—Deciding if it is really love.

MITE OF A MODEL

Four-year-old Michele Hughes, seen with her mother, Mrs. Syd Hughes, will be one of the models when the merchants of the Estevan Shopping Centre and the Oak Bay Kiwaniannes combine to present a fashion show at Jiminy Crickets Kindergarten, 3410 Shelbourne Street, on Monday. There will be two presentations of the clothes from Boutique de Laine, Estevan Junior and Teens Wear and Karolyn's Style Shoppe; one at 2:30 p.m. and the other at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served. Door prizes will add to the events.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Hazards of Overweight

Q. Why are overweight women often turned down when applying for jobs? Do the bosses really care more about a woman's looks than her skill in her work?

Lowman

A. While it is only human to prefer a pleasing appearance, this is not the reason firms hesitate to employ overweights. Too many pounds are a health hazard. As a rule, the heavy woman tires more easily, is more likely to become a victim of chronic disease, and is more accident prone.

There have been many instances when a woman was turned down for a job, and later after losing weight, landed the same one. Of course, it is possible the improvement in appearance may have played some part; but generally speaking, the reasons I have given are influential.

Q. A friend tells me canned and frozen vegetables and fruits are just as good nutritionally as fresh ones. I cannot believe this is true. Is it?

A. Yes. With modern techniques, canned vegetables and fruits are approximately as high in health value as fresh ones. There may be a little loss of vitamins B and C content. Be sure to use the liquid in the canned products. Quick-frozen fruits and vegetables may be even higher in nutrient value.

Q. One side of my face is bigger than the other. One cheek is fuller, too. How can I make myself look equal-sided?

A. Makeup can help. Place the rouge nearer the outer edge of your face on the small side and closer to your nose on the larger side of your face. Also, use a foundation and base which are slightly darker on the large side. Naturally, this must be a very slight difference — one which is not noticeable.

Q. Why is lubricating cream necessary when doing facial exercises? You always say to apply cold cream before doing the exercises.

A. It is wise to have the skin lubricated rather than dry when doing exercises, because some of the facial gymnastics crease the skin. The cream prevents the line from becoming permanent.

Controlling your weight is essential for good health. If you would like a copy of Josephine Lowman's free leaflet, "General Reducing Diet," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Oscar Sweeps Begin

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One of the movie hits of the thriving fall season appears to be Ice Station Zebra, a somewhat farfetched yet absorbing adventure of the Cold War.

The chilling epic is one of many expensive films that the studios are pushing into roadshow theatres to capture the lush holiday trade and, incidentally, to qualify for the Oscar sweepstakes. Others include Funny Girl, Finian's Rainbow, Oliver, Shoes of the Fisherman, Romeo and Juliet, The Lion in Winter, Star, MacKenna's Gold, Isadora and Chitty Chitty Bang Bang.

At its Hollywood premiere, Ice Station Zebra seemed to have that rare quality of capturing the audience's complete attention despite the imagination-stretching adventures on the screen.

RARE FILM

That is a rare kind of film and one in which director John Sturges excels: he also directed The Great Escape.

One of those who greatly enjoyed the premiere of Ice Station Zebra was Rock Hudson, who also happens to star in it.

"I have a yardstick to determine whether a picture of mine is good," he remarked afterward. "If I am conscious of my own acting, then I know that the picture isn't successful.

"But if I can lose myself in the story and the characters, then it's a good picture. And I did that iin Ice Station Zebra."

The film appears to mark a turnabout in Hudson's career, which seemed to have been bed-ridden after too many sex-oriented farces with Doris Day, Gina Lollobrigida and other leading ladies.

NOT OUT YET

"Not that I'm out of bed yet," he remarked. "In this last picture I did in Italy with Claudia Cardinale, I come into her apartment as she is taking a shower.

"What happens? I get right into the shower with her, and then the picture goes into a sex montage."

The film, as yet untitled for the American market, has been released in Italy, but not in the United States.

Rock Hudson will be 43 on Nov. 17, and his brown-black hair is beginning to sprinkle with grey.

Lennon's Wife Granted A Divorce

LONDON (Reuters) — Beatle John Lennon's wife Cynthia was granted a divorce here today on the grounds of her husband's adultery with Japanese artist Yoko Ono.

The petition was uncontested.

Joseph Jackson, Mrs. Lennon's lawyer, said in the divorce court that 28-year-old Lennon has made "generous and proper provision" for his 27-year-old wife and five-year-old son.

Lennon and Miss Ono announced late last month she is expecting a baby at the end of February.

Miss Ono, 34, wife of American movie director Anthony Cox, was taken to hospital here earlier this week following fears she might lose the baby.

Lennon and Miss Ono are scheduled to appear in a London court Nov. 28 charged with illegal possession of marijuana.

Miss Ono's marriage to Cox also is the subject of divorce proceedings.

Younger Jimmy a Boon to Older Jimmy

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The average longtime Hollywood star is likely to hate those television reruns of his old films.

James Stewart, who has appeared in close to 75 motion pictures over more than 30 years in the acting business, is an exception to the rule.

The continued use of some elderly Stewart films, including Mr. Smith Goes to Washington and The Philadelphia Story, on late-night and late-afternoon TV, often shows us the young Jimmy Stewart, skinny and diffident.

On a recent night, the frankly middle-aged James Stewart played a cattleman in a 1966 Western. The fact that the Stewart film, The Rare Breed, was considered to be one of the big shows in NBC's feature stockpile indicates the staying power of the actor.

"I think showing old movies is great," said Stewart with genuine enthusiasm. "In this acting business you've got to have an audience.

"What television has done, using my old movies, is to bring me a whole new audience—not just kids but people who didn't go to the theatre before. It's like a reprieve!

LIKES TELEVISION

"I enjoy doing an occasional television show," he continued, "particularly Dean Martin's.

"It's professional, and it's fun—and the coverage it gets!

"I've done the Carson show in New York and I did Password several times and was a stock character on the Benny shows. At one time I even began to wonder about overexposure.

"Generally, I think the appearances are good for a guy, and good for any new picture you've made. It reminds people that, after 30 years, you're still around."

The years have, of course, touched the actor, but lightly. At 60 he has the same tall, spare build and agility of a romantic star. His forehead is higher these days and the hair is more grey than black. There is the same gentle hesitancy of manner, but there also is enormous dignity and reserve, leavened by humor.

Stewart is one of filmdom's important holdouts where television is concerned. Now that Doris Day has a weekly situation comedy series, the other really big holdout is Cary Grant.

FOUND DEAD in bed Wednesday morning was Charles Munch, 77-year-old conductor of the Paris Symphony Orchestra. He had been scheduled to conduct his 120-man orchestra in Richmond, Va. in the evening.

Majority Will Frustrated Three Times in U.S. Politics

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The spectacle of Richard M. Nixon being elected president with less than half the votes cast, and only a handful more than Hubert H. Humphrey, is nothing new to U.S. politics.

Although the popular vote usually reflects the balance in the all-important Electoral College vote, there have been similar cases before.

Even more surprising, the majority will has been frustrated three times in the last century with the man who lost in the popular vote gaining the White House.

And three other times—in the election of Woodrow Wilson in 1916, Harry Truman in 1948 and John F. Kennedy in 1960—the country has come perilously close to a similar situation.

The latest tabulation of Tuesday's vote shows Republican Nixon with 30,446,028 votes, Humphrey with 30,175,835 and third-party candidate George C. Wallace with 9,186,703.

In percentage terms, Nixon has a fractional edge over Humphrey while the combined Humphrey-Wallace total makes Nixon a minority choice.

TWO TO COME

But Nixon won in electoral votes, getting at least 287 of a possible 538, which is 17 more than the required majority of 270. And he could wind up with 302. He is leading in two undecided states, Missouri with 12 and Alaska with three, where the closeness of the race and other factors have delayed the final count.

Nixon won 30 states. Humphrey won 12 states and the District of Columbia with 181 votes and is leading in Maryland with 10.

TRUMAN
. . . no stranger

Wallace won five states with 45 votes.

Pre-election concern that none of the candidates would hit the magic number in electoral votes and the decision would have to go to the House of Representatives—as it had twice before—revived demands that the system be changed.

But more than 100 attempts in Congress over the years have come to nothing.

Any revision would mean an amendment to the constitution requiring approval by two-thirds of the Senate and House and ratification by three-quarters of the states.

SEEMS REMOTE

Since there is wide disagreement on what should be done—if anything — such broad agreement seems remote in the view of many observers.

Under the present system, each state has electoral votes equal to its representation in Congress—New York having 43 votes and some states only three. The winner, even by bare plurality, in any state takes all the state's electoral votes.

If none gets the 270, the decision goes to the House where each state delegation has one vote with 26 required for victory.

WILSON
. . . to close races

The closest previous election in modern times was that of 1960 when Kennedy defeated Nixon by 118,550 votes although his electoral edge was mor edecisive—303 to 219.

Truman actually had fewer votes than his opponents combined but that was an unusual four-way race and his total was a couple million greater than his closest rival.

In the early days, the national popular vote wasn't even recorded, the practice only starting in 1824—another crisis year.

WENT TO HOUSE

Andrew Jackson had the largest plurality in both the popular and electoral votes in that four-way race but the decision went to the House since no candidate had enough electoral votes. John Quincy Adams was named president after a deal with one of the other candidates, Henry Clay, who threw his support to Adams. The new president made Clay secretary of state.

In 1800, the House decided in favor of Thomas Jefferson after he and Aaron Burr tied at 73 electoral votes each in the days before the popular vote was tabulated.

In 1876, Republican Rutherford B. Hayes got some 200,000 fewer votes than Samuel J. Tilden, the Democrat, but several state returns were disputed. Finally, after months of debate, the House and Senate in joint session ruled in Hayes's favor, awarding him 185 electoral votes and Tilden 184. In those days, the winner of most electoral votes took the prize.

In 1888, Democratic President Grover Cleveland, running for re-election got almost 100,000 more votes than Republican Benjamin Harrison, but Harrison won the presidency on electoral votes— 233 to 168.

SPIRO'S SPIRAL

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Spiro Theodore Agnew, vice-president-elect of the United States, is the son of a Greek immigrant who shortened the family name from Anagnostopoulos and a Virginia-born mother who, as the Maryland governor likes to recall, "never let us forget her heritage."

The Baltimore city native, who rose from helping his father hawk vegetables on the city streets to become the fifth Republican governor in the history of Maryland, saw affluence, depression and mediocrity before he launched his meteoric political career.

Agnew, who celebrates his 49th birthday just four days after his election, was not deprived, however.

His father was a successful restaurateur, and leader in the Greek community who lived in a fashionable suburb of Baltimore.

'No Reason to Close' Constitutional Meet

By JAMES NELSON

BENSON
. . . all reported anyway

OTTAWA (CP) — If provincial premiers agree, next month's constitutional conference probably will be open to direct press, radio and television reporting.

Prime Minister Trudeau is reported by one of his spokesmen to favor public debate in such sessions.

Traditionally, federal - provincial conferences for the most part have been closed to the press and public, as were this week's conferences of finance and health ministers.

But tradition was broken one year ago when provincial premiers met in Toronto for their Confederation of Tomorrow conference, and again last February at the first of the current series of constitutional conferences here.

At the February meeting, Prime Minister Trudeau—then justice minister in Lester B. Pearson's cabinet—and Daniel Johnson, the late premier of Quebec, played starring roles with their confrontation on the meaning of federalism.

There was widespread acclaim for the fully-reported, broadcast and televised meetings among newspaper editorial writers, columnists, and broadcast executives. The public reacted with a flood of letters and telephone calls to newspapers and broadcasting stations, about two-thirds of them in favor of the open sessions.

LITTLE PRIVATE

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said this week there was little or nothing at his meeting that could not have been said or reported publicly.

The main reason the finance ministers met in closed session was the lack of space for reporters and cameramen in the conference room in Ottawa's old Union Station. Parliamentary committees kept all space in the Parliament buildings fully occupied.

Gurney Evans, finance minister of Manitoba, formally proposed at Mr. Benson's meeting that federal-provincial conferences adopt an open, parliamentary-style format. He noted that such conferences now have become an integral part of the process of government, and said the public should be let in on them.

The argument for closed sessions has been that delegates—ministers and officials—feel freer about arguing and bargaining.

But the conferences themselves have become so large, with 60 to 100 people not unusual in attendance, that they might as well be open, many delegates say. Rarely is anything said in the privacy of them that could not be said in public.

In fact, experience indicated this week that things may go the other way.

Dr. J. Donovan Ross, health minister of Alberta, emerged from one of the closed sessions to say he had proposed that the federal government "take over the whole damn thing," referring to medical care insurance.

Mr. Benson said later he hadn't regarded Dr. Ross' suggestions as a formal proposal, and that he hadn't heard language like that in the conference.

When such meetings are closed, reporters have to depend on post-conference briefings by either government officials or ministers.

No matter how frank the briefing officers seem to be, reporters are suspicious that actual conference happenings are being toned down, or otherwise modified, before they are passed on to reporters.

When a federal cabinet minister reports on conference proceedings as chairman of the meeting, he speaks mainly for the federal government point of view rather than for the provinces.

The only other access reporters have to conference news is to fire questions at delegates as they leave a meeting. There is inevitably a crush around the conference room door when 50 or 100 reporters and technicians try to cover such question-and-answer sessions.

There is a gentleman's agreement among delegates that they speak only for their own province, and do not try to interpret what other delegates say.

This compounds the difficulty of trying to sort out conflicting reports of just what was said or done at a meeting, and arrive at a fair interpretation of the fact.

CANADA STUDENTS FREE?

Canadian student unions have more power and indepndence than their counterparts in the United States.

In fact, says University of Victoria student councillor Paul Watson, "Canadians are over-powering the Americans."

Mr. Watson, co-ordinator of students activities, attended a national conference of college unions in Oregon at the week-end.

The University of Victoria is in the 14th district of the American College Unions association.

The freedom Canadian students have over their own union activities turned out to be the major topic at the conference, Mr. Watson said.

At Uvic and most other Canadian universities, unions are subservient only to the elected students' council. In the U.S. they are appointed by the university administrations and must answer to them, he said.

The unions, which run student buildings, must act as guides to the students in the U.S. and must balance the political views of speakers or groups on campus.

Another difference between the two countries discussed at the conference was the position of power groups on campus.

The Americans "were asking if power groups should be in the student union or not," Mr. Watson said.

"In Canada, they tend to work from within the student union."

Other Uvic delegates to the conference were councillors Jim Bennett and Rhys Phillips and S.U.B. manager Dick Chudley.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

West led his ace of hearts and continued with the queen. South ruffed, looked over dummy and asked his partner why he hadn't rebid his spades. North replied that he would have done so if South hadn't gone to three clubs but by this time South was absorbed in the problem of making his three club contract.

As you can see, South might well have made two over-tricks by the simple expedient of conceding a truck to the king of clubs but South worked out a play to go down. See if you can figure out how he managed this. East did come up with a good defensive play.

South started working out his downfall by playing the ace of diamonds at trick three and ruffing a diamond at trick four. He was still in good shape but things took a nasty turn shortly thereafter.

His next play was to enter his hand with the ace of spades to lead another diamond. He ruffed this with the six and East came up with the good defensive play. He forgot to overruff. He also was careful to discard a spade, not a heart.

South smiled cheerfully, entered his hand again by ruffing a heart and led a fourth diamond for dummy to ruff with the queen of trumps. This time East remembered to overruff. Then East led a fourth round of hearts. South ruffed with the nine, and West overruffed with the 10.

West led his king of diamonds whereupon East came up with his second key play of the hand. He ruffed his partner's trick with his five of trumps and played his last heart.

South ruffed this, whereupon West was able to discard his losing spade and South wound up making the ace of diamonds, two diamond ruffs, one spade and four of his five trumps for a total of eight tricks. Down one.

WHITE STUCCO RANCHER

Let me have the pleasure of leading you through this quality home, after a scenic 15-minute drive from downtown. First, let us look at the neatly landscaped garden, lots of shrubs, easily kept, but they always look so neat. Here is the patio, completely secluded, lovely for a summer evening. Being on a corner there is lots of parking space, all blacktopped, a good drive-in garage and a large workshop and storage area. Now let us step into the house, spacious rooms—yes the living room would take a grande piano. Let me show you the kitchen, lots of cupboards and the built-in range and oven stay of course. The utility room right off the kitchen is very handy too. Yes, you could entertain quite a number in the dining room and look at the size of that living room again. Having a bathroom off the master bedroom is nice and you could use one of the other bedrooms as a den or TV room. Yes, Sir! It's quite a home, 1,800 square feet—couldn't be replaced on today's market for the asking price of $27,950 and with a 6 per cent interest rate on the $15,000 mortgage you'd better make your offer today. A personification of prestige results by natural waterfalls on property of 100x170, plus overlooking miles of the blue Pacific, enhances the architectural beauty of the sparkling exterior design while the equally attractive interior provides an unusual functionality.
A renowned Toronto firm of interior decorators has given a unique ensemble of walls, light fixtures, plus luxurious carpeting, has kept this Spanish welcome, yet modern in every way. Main floor consists of an impressive foyer entrance, with closet for wraps, mammoth entertaining room of 14x23 with red brick floor-to-ceiling fireplace with raised hearth. Two king-sized bedrooms with louvred closet doors. More than ample space bathroom, utility room. Up the wrought-iron stairway to the upper level, with an extra-large living room, again with elegant fireplace, and a view that makes you want to rest forever, another bedroom at its best, bathroom of exquisite design with colored glass, infra lights and vanity. Formal dining room one step from impressive kitchen with eating area for a family.
Let's step out on the wrap-around promenade to the large sundeck, over the double garage. Viewpoint, yes — the Spanish courtyard with curved stairway, the waterfalls blending themselves with the distant waters of the ocean. There is just too much in this home for us to adequately describe. All we can say is . . . if you seek the superlative in location, the quiet dignity of yesterday, livability and quality, we urge your inspection of this home.
Also extensive landscaping and retaining wall to be completed by vendor.

DE LUXE DUPLEX $47,650

In this day and age (and really it has always been that way, even when butter was only 25c per lb.) you only get what you pay for. After viewing this well-planned 3½ yr. old, 2-bedroom duplex conveniently located in the MT. TOLMIE area and considering what each side as an individual home has to offer you will agree it is TOP DOLLAR VALUE.
The owner's side features:
—Wall-to-wall carpeting.
—Built-in stove and oven in beautiful cabinet kitchen.
—Large family room with fireplace and bar which can also be served from the kitchen for informal eating.
—Large master bedroom with en suite bathroom.
—Self-contained in-law suite in basement.
—Sundeck leading from the family room.
The tenant's side is the same except it has hardwood floors and does not have the family room and in-law suite. However the full basement is roughed-in.
This MEDALLION home has a large 6¾ per cent N.H.A. mortgage with monthly payments of $168.

Sheep Range Purchased

The provincial government has acquired close to 35,000 acres of sheep range in the Similkameen district, about 35 miles southwest of Penticton.

The land is for use as wintering range for California bighorn sheep by the fish and game branch, Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan said Thursday.

Some of the money used to purchase the land formerly used by domestic stock comes from the increase in licence fees, the minister said. The range is complemented by 792 acres of deeded land which will be used in part for recreational development in connection with the adjoining Cathedral Lakes Park.

Mr. Kiernan said the area is well-known and used by hunters, fishermen, hikes and sightseers and added that no change is expected in use of the area for hunting.

Fire Sweeps Motel

RADIUM, B.C. (CP) — Guests escaped unhurt Wednesday night when flames swept through a luxury motel near the gateway to Kootenay National Park. The blaze destroyed half the Sun Deck Motel. It was out of control for two hours while firemen fought to keep flames from nearby bush.

Brothers Soothes Gym Campaigners

CAMPBELL RIVER — Education Minister Donald Brothers hit two of the current hot spots in the provincial school scene Thursday.

He met school boards here and at Port Alberni, both sites the scene of recent student demonstrations against the government's school construction freeze.

And while he made optimistic comments at both confrontations, there were no firm commitments.

Mr. Brothers was handed a petition signed by 500 students and several hundred taxpayers here calling for gymnasium construction.

UP TO PREMIER

He promised the school board he would seek Premier Bennett's approval to let tenders be called now with construction to begin April 1.

Tht premier said a week ago an inproving economic situation would allow construction of currently banned school gymnasiums by that date.

At Port Alberni, where 400 students boycotted classes three weeks ago to protest the lack of a gym at E. J. Dunn junior secondary school, the word was a little more optimistic.

Mr. Brothers suggested the school board change its proposed referendum in December to include a gym on a shared cost basis.

In a referendum two years ago taxpayers rejected the gym on a non-sharable basis.

"I hope the people will support the proposed referendum," said the education minister, "and I hope the students at E. J. Dunn will help the school board to bring their needs to the attention of the voters.

"If the referendum receives the support it requires, the gym could be under construction next April."

At the annual convention of B.C. school trustees last month Mr. Brothers promised to visit school boards in each of the province's 83 school districts.

Appointed to the education portfolio last May, he asked trustees not to judge him yet but to judge his actions over the current year.

the channel unwisely chosen by a few," he said.

"Confrontations that bring alienations between faculty members and students are not the answer."

He added that the AMS was against the action and that president Frank Frketich was at an Ottawa conference and not here to "squash the movement."

Council passed a motion endorsing the subcommittees and the investigative procedure now being followed.

Taxless Bond For Housing Suggested

The former housing director for the federal finance department, F. W. Nicolls of Victoria, told the Hellyer housing inquiry that a tax-free, four-per-cent bond would draw money for housing.

A consulting architect and an author of the original National Housing Act in 1935, Mr. Nicholls submitted a detailed brief Wednesday suggesting a number of economic moves to be taken by the federal government.

"The federal government could well afford to issue tax-free bonds at say four per cent to provide funds exclusively for housing and then participate on a 50-50 basis with the approved lending institutions to make joint loans under the National Housing Act," he said.

MASTER PLAN

He said all municipalities and regions should be required to have an approved master development plan. All land zoned or planned for residential or commercial use should be assessed at 100 per cent of current market value, and improvements should be assessed at 50 per cent of current value.

It would tend to prevent owners from holding land in expectation of future gain.

Mr. Nicolls, housing director from 1935 to 1945, said it is not realistic to ask lending institutions to make high percentage loans in Canada unless foreclosure laws are revised.

Co-operative and condominium housing should be encouraged.

And he said public low-rental housing has not been a success anywhere in North America.

Naval Commander Appointed Aide To Gov.-General

Cmdr. Douglas R. Learoyd, commanding officer of Vancouver's naval reserve unit, HMCS Discovery, has been appointed honorary aide de camp to his excellency the Governor General of Canada.

Cmdr. Learoyd, currently a personnel administrator with the regional office of the public service commission, served with the RCNVR during the Second World War, and at the time of the Korean war, spent six years on naval duty. His appointment follows a long association with naval activities in Vancouver and Victoria.

Socreds Plan To Contest Nanaimo Vote

The Social Credit Party plans to contest the Feb. 10 byelection in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands federal riding.

Cyril Dawkin, president of the Social Credit constituency association at Nanaimo, said today a nominating convention will be held late this month or early in December to choose a candidate.

NDP National Leader T. C. Douglas, defeated June 25 in the Burnaby-Seymour riding, has been nominated by his party to contest the seat.

Eric Winch, a former Nanaimo magistrate, is the Liberal condidate. The Progressive Conservatives have yet to nominate a candidate.

The vacancy was caused by the death of New Democrat MP Colin Cameron a few weeks after the election.

Arbutus Troop Wins Trek Award

The 3rd Arbutus scout troop will receive the Provincial Commissioner's Award for the "most imaginative and adventurous Scout activity in the Province."

Presentation of the award, by Col. John Cave, commissioner for Greater Victoria, will take place Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the View Royal Community Hall.

During the summer the troop followed the route of the old West Coast lifesaving trail.

After flying from Victoria to Brown's Bay, the troop hiked southwest to Clo-oose and Carmanah, returned and crossed the Nitinat River, then went on to Pachena Beach, Bamfield and Cape Beale.

Distances travelled by the troop are: 70 miles by air, 56 miles on foot, 40 miles by boat and 120 miles by bus.

'Fasten Belts, Put Out Pot'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for Western Airlines says a few of the company's patrons have been flying higher than the company's DC-8 jetliners in recent weeks — on marijuana cigarettes.

Wayne Lichtgarn, manager of customer relations, said Friday the smell of marijuana has begun to appear in enclosed aircraft cabins when passengers light up.

Wife Pays Kidnapper; Daughter Found Safe

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — A man kidnapped the 11-year-old daughter of a bank president by locking her in her room Thursday and threatened her harm before he collected a $50,000 ransom, police said.

He was hunted today by police and the FBI.

Police Chief William K. Davenport said Mrs. A. D. MacDonell Jr., wife of the president of the Metropolitan Bank of Lima, paid the ransom and found her daughter Amy unharmed at home, police said.

Lawerence Huffman, assistant prosecutor, said that although the child had not been taken from the house, on the basis of Mrs. MacDonell's statement a kidnapping had taken place.

Mrs. MacDonell told police she encountered the man, wearing green overalls, knitted cap, penciled-on moustache and sunglasses, when she returned home Thursday morning after taking her son to school.

She said the man told her he had locked her daughter in an upstairs bedroom and threatened to harm the child if Mrs. MacDonell did not give him $50,000.

Davenport quoted Mrs. MacDonell as saying the man instructed her to cash a $50,000 cheque at a nearby branch of the Metropolitan Bank, then wait there for a phone call.

She told police she followed the man's instructions, and when he called she was told to borrow a bank employee's white convertible and drive back home.

Police said the man flagged her down about two blocks from her home, took the car and the money and told her to walk home.

Mrs. MacDonell said she found her daughter at home, unharmed.

Police and FBI officials put out an alert for a man about 36 years old and five feet, nine inches tall.

The borrowed car was found later near where it had been taken.

NANAIMO ASKS FREIGHT RATE EQUALIZATION

NANAIMO — The Chamber of Commerce will meet with the provincial trade and commerce department on Nov. 21 to seek freight rate equalization with Victoria and Vancouver.

"Nanaifo is handling enough freight to be considered at least equal to Victoria in volume," a chamber spokesman said. "But it lacks the advantage of being classifed as a terminal port.

"Therefore Nanaimo has to pay additional freight charges from Vancouver, which Victoria does not pay."

The chamber committee will include Mayor Frank Ney, Nanaimo harbor master John Dunham and harbor commissioner R. G. Chase.

TREATMENT UNIT 'MUST' BY 1972

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today announced Richmond municipality's application for a permit to build a $20 million sewer extension has been approved on the strict condition that it has a primary treatment plant in operation by the end of 1972.

Mr. Loffmark, who earlier turned back the lower mainland's initial application for a permit excluding any treatment plant, said the approved application was the third submission.

He revealed that the Greater Vancouver sewerage and drainage district, in the second sumbission, had agreed to provide a treatment system to Richmond later than 1972.

"This program was rejected by the (health) department on the grounds that the proposal did not provide for construction and operation within a reasonable time," Mr. Loffmark's statement said.

DATE ADVANCED

"Thereafter the (GVSDD) again on behalf of Richmond, amended their proposal by advancing the target date for commencement of operation of a sewage treatment plant."

Mr. Loffmark said the department's own engineers, and two engineering consultants retained from the outside, examined the third proposals and set up a meeting with the municipal officials to determine if even the third bid's deadline could be speeded up.

"It was determined that the most realistic date that could be expected to be met to complete a program for primary treatment was Dec. 31, 1972," the health minister said.

"The Greater Vancouver sewerage and drainage district has undertaken to start this program and the department of public health is satisfied that the date is the most realistic date upon which primary treatment facilities can be afforded."

QUICK REPRISAL

But he warned reneging of the schedule would bring swift reprisal.

"In the event that the municipality of Richmond at some time in the future is not prepared to abide by the target dates set out in te program, the department will require that the strict terms of the department's policy statement in respect of real estate development will be strictly enforced," he said.

He was referring to the announcement that no new developments would be allowed if they increased pollution of waterways.

"And any application for certificate of construction of sewer systems (in Richmond) which do not conform with the principles relating to primary treatment will be refused."

Morse's Foe Claims Win

PORTLAND (AP) — Robert Packwood, the young Republican challenger, claimed victory today in his election campaign against veteran Senator Wayne Morse.

"This is a victory statement," he told a news conference shortly before leaving for a holiday in Hawaii.

"Barring some horrendous, mechanical miscalculation," said, "I think we can count this a victory."

As he spoke his margin over Morse was 3,499. More ballots were still being counted but Morse would have to win at least 80 per cent of the 6,000 remaining to catch up.

Nixon May Woo Hubert

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Senator Vance Hartke says he expects President-elect Richard M. Nixon to offer Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey, the man he defeated for the United States presidency, a high position in his administration.

"My guess would be that it would be the ambassadorship to the United Nations," Hartke, Indiana Democrat, said Thursday. He would not say whether he felt the vice-president would accept.

Make Use of Greenhouse

By HILDA BEASTALL

The number of hobby greenhouses has probably doubled in the Greater Victoria area during the past 10 years, yet many of these fine little structures stand empty for much of the year.

Hilda

Apparently less than half are equipped with any form of heating, but this need not result in lack of use during winter months.

Dozens of interesting subjects require no winter heat, and indeed will bloom more perfectly in shelter from the severest of the elements which a greenhouse supplies, even though unheated.

Frost may penetrate, but searing winds will not, and should temperatures show signs of falling below our winter normals, coverings of newspapers or openweave burlap sacking will keep the plants safe. Coverings should be put in place by four on a winter's afternoon and removed next morning before the sun strikes the plants.

A few early flowering rock garden plants may be started now by the beginner. Purchased in pots, or out of pots, there is no hazard of root disturbance.

Instead of the conventional tall flower pot, a lower type known as a bulb pan, is often used. Since perfect drainage is necessary, this may be achieved with an ordinary tall pot by half filling it with broken crock, or stones, before adding soil.

Early blooming small bulbs such as anemones, muscari, scillas, chionodoxas, winter irises, hardy cyclamens, and species narcissi and tulips are other suggestions for cold greenhouse culture.

If desired, and the greenhouse is not used for raising flats of annuals later in spring, a permanent bench could be contrived deep enough to contain a specially prepared mixture.

An assortment of flowering small plants would be a delight for months, all without the cost of heat.

Interesting Discovery Of Insulin

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Probably few people realize that when a cure for cancer is found it will come as a result of a chain of medical discoveries. I thought of this just now as I was reading an article on the history of the discovery and development of insulin by Dr. Moses Barron of Minneapolis, published in the official journal of the Twin Cities Diabetes Association, "The Diebetic," founded by Mr. Harold Rivkin. This journal is sent free to 130,000 diabetics throughout the U.S. who are now happy to learn much about the care of diabetics, and the treatment of the disease.

Alvarez

As Dr. Barron said, diabetes was known in Egypt some 1500 years before Christ. In the early days observant persons noticed flies in large numbers settled on the urine of certain people: people who had a peculiar illness in which they urinated often, ate much, and still lost much weight. The Romans also knew about the disease but had no idea what it was due to. In 1869, a German physician, Dr. Paul Langerhans, noticed the pancreas (the big gland back of the stomach) had two types of tissue; one of which supplies the powerful digestive juice that goes out into the small bowel, and the other, now called the "islets of Langerhans," sends a secretion directly into the blood. This is why we speak of internal secretions. There are several such glands of internal secretion in the body. One is the pituitary gland just below the brain, others are the thyroid, the parathyroids, the thymus, the islets of Langerhans, the super-renal glands just above the kidneys and the sex glands in the ovaries and the glands in the testes.

In 1889, Drs. von Mering and Minkowski found the removal of the pancreas in a dog would make him diabetic. In 1902 a man named Ssobolew tied off the duct, or tube which leads from the pancreas into the bowel of rabbits as well as tion of its normal size. Evidently the shriveled pancreas still contained normal islets of Langerhans.

Then in 1917 Kamimura in Japan obstructed the duct of the pancreas in each of a large number of rabbits and then watched what happened to the pancreas of each. He noticed as time passed that the big glandular cells which supplied juice to the bowel disappeared.

Around 1920 Dr. Marron made similar studies and similar observations, and his work gave Dr. Fredrick Banting, a surgeon in a small town in Canada, an idea; he saw that by tying off the pancreatic duct in animals, and causing destruction of the digestive juice — making part of the pancreas, he might be able to extract from the remaining islets the substance which, on going into the blood and throughout the body, enables the body to use sugar. When Dr. Banting read Dr. Barron's paper, he said he was so excited he was unable to sleep. He went to Professor MacLeod at the University of Toronto and got permission to use a room in the laboratory.

After many months of laboratory work, an extract was finally made of the islet tissue. This was injected into diabetic dogs, and it caused the blood sugar to be lowered, as was expected.

On January 11, 1922, the extract was first used on patients in the Toronto General Hospital. I can remember reading about the boy who was dying of diabetes, and probably would have been dead in a day or two, but when he was injected with the new extract, he got out of bed and started running around the hospital.

Trent Affair Put Canada in Danger

By BOB BOWMAN

James Mason has produced and starred in a number of good movies. It is surprising that he has not done one called "The Trent Affair" because James Mason took part in an incident that nearly caused a war between Britain and the U.S. in which Canada would have been the battleground.

Bowman

It was during the American Civil War. On Nov. 8, 1861, a U.S. warship stopped a British ship, "Trent" out on the Atlantic and took off two passengers. They were James Mason and John Slidell, who were going to London and Paris to be ambassadors for the Confederate states.

The incident caused great anger in Britain and Lord Palmerston was on the point of sending a note to the U.S. that was almost a declaration of war, but Queen Victoria's husband, Prince Albert, made him tone it down.

Even so, the situation remained critical throughout the winter of 1861-62. Britain rushed about 14,000 troops to defend Canada in case the Americans attacked. As the St. Lawrence was frozen they landed in Halifax, St. Andrew's and Saint John from where they were transported to Quebec in sleights. Some of the British troops even marched on snowshoes and must have been a comical sight as they struggled through the snowdrifts on their strange footwear! Even more amusing, in retrospect, was that the Americans allowed the British troops to travel through Maine to get to Quebec!

Fortunately war was averted. President Lincoln knew that the North had all it could do to defeat the Confederates, and Canada was not attacked. Nevertheless bad feeling about the Trent Affair and some other incidents persisted on both sides and was one of the factors that led to Confederation. The British North American colonies realized that they must unite if they were to survive.

Other events on Nov. 8:

1603 — Sieur de Monts got royal commission to colonize Acadia.

1631 — Cape Breton was given to Sir Robert Gordon to form the province of New Galloway.

1775 — U.S. General Benedict Arnold arrived at Levis to attack Quebec.

1873 — Winnipeg was incorporated as a city.

1919 — Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden left Ottawa to attend peace conference at Paris. British naval hero Viscount Jellicoe began tour of Canada until Jan. 1.

1902 — Railway was completed between Calgary and Edmonton.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Barb Steen, age 10, of Le Roy, New York, for her question:

How do petals open and close?

A plant is rooted to the spot and we do not expect it to move. Nevertheless it does. As it grows, it lifts its top higher and spreads its twigs wider. All this is done in slow motion, too slow to watch. But many flowers can open their petals wide or close them shut in just a few minutes.

You use lots of little muscles to open your hand and you have lots of little bones to hold your fingers out stiff and straight. Those same muscles and bones can close your had into a fist. But there are muscles and no bones in the silky smooth petals of a pretty flower. A rose bud is a young flower with its petals tightly furled and neatly folded together. As it grows older, its petals spread apart and the rose opens its full face to be seen and admired. Many daisy-type flowers open their starry petals at sunrise and close them together soon after the sun sets. The flowers of the morning glory open their bright blue eyes at dawn and close them at noon.

To understand how all this is done we must know how petals are put together. They are made of miniature building blocks called cells. We need a microscope to see them because it takes several thousand of them to measure one inch. The tiny cells in the petals of a flower are living things and very busy carrying on all sorts of complicated chemical processes. Each cell has a special skin called a cell wall that touches the walls of other cells. The inside of the cell is stuffed with a watery mixture of busy chemicals. The cell wall keeps the cell together but it also acts like a miraculous sieve. It lets in the chemicals the cell needs and keeps out those it does not need.

Closes at Night

Water oozes through the thin wall and when the cell is filled it stretches to the limit like a firm, fat balloon. So do zillions of cells around it. Together they puff up a petal and make it spread out stiff and firm. When all the petal cells are filled, the flower opens wide. But when all the cells lose some of their water, they sag and the petals droop. In order to open and close, a flower needs a number of soft, saggy cells and a number of stiff ones. The hinges are at the base of the petals. In these places, at certain times, some of the water seeps away from the cells and here the petals become soft and bendable. The rest of the petal cells remain stiff and filled with water. As a rule the changes that create these hinges happen at dawn and sunset.

Different plants have their own schedules for opening and closing their blossoms. And certain leaves also open and close each calendar day. Clover leaves and bean leaves usually fold themselves together when the sun sets and open up again in the morning. They also close up when you put them into a darkened room.

Plants, of course, have no sense to know what they are doing. Their changes are triggered by outside factors such as gravity, temperature, water and chemicals. We do not know what triggers the changes that cause a flower to open and close. One factor may be sunlight, another may be temperature.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to W. G. Henson, age 14, of Gastonia, North Carolina, for his question:

How can a bee carry pollen?

The honeybee carries built-in tool kits to cope with her chores and her personal grooming. The items are spikes and spurs and brushes on various sections of her three pairs of legs. When she visits a blossom to gather sweet, syrupy nectar, grains of golden pollen stick to her legs and her big, round eyes, to her antenna and her furry body. On each front leg she has an eye brush and a spur to comb her antenna, plus two fringes of hairs to brush the front of her body. Each middle leg as a hairy fringe used to brush pollen from her thorax and front legs. On each back leg she has hairs to scrape the golden dust from her furry tummy and back, plus spines to clean the other back leg.

The neat little lady gathers her pollen by using the right tool to clean it from each part of her body. She stuffs the golden dust into her pollen baskets, one on each back leg. One section of each back leg is wide and flattish and slightly hollow on the inside. Its edges are fringed with stiff hairs that slope in toward the centre. They form the caged sides of a tiny market basket. The pollen grains tend to stick together and when each basket is stuffed full, the busy bee returns to the hive and delivers the groceries for making beebread, honey and royal jelly.

A Bloom And No Toronto

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Today I'm going to tell you about a fuchsia. One that has held a place of prominence all summer on a patio veranda at the home of long time friends, Nancy and Don.

Forbes

These two nice people lived in Toronto for almost 35 years while Don was active in his profession.

Early in 1967 he retired. Immediately they made plans to return to Victoria where Nancy grew up and where she and Don met and were marired.

Their choice of a place to live was a house on a slope looking out across the Straits of Juan de Fuca to the Olympic Mountains, from which they had been "exiled", as they tell you, for so long.

Best part of this year has been spent renovating the new home. There's been no time for the garden. That's a project for 1969, Don says.

However, on the patio veranda, they did place a large planter with a gorgeous pink and white fuchsia.

It bloomed extravagantly throughout the summer. Now, in thes early days of November, it still shows blossoms.

* * *

Both the blossoms and Victoria's weather that allows a fuchsia to remain outdoors in early November are facts Nancy and Don enjoy to the full.

They are doing a little boasting, too. Letters that go off to their many friends in Toronto tell about the pink and white blossoms and that the plant is still outdoors and on a relatively unprotected patio.

They confess that in a way, it's a shame to do this to their friends. Especially as down there the time is near — if not already there — for sleet and snow and biting winds off Lake Ontario.

In memory they go back to the many winters when it was almost an every-day occurence for them to drive home after office hours over dangerously icy roads.

They remember the mornings Don had to dig out from his garage to the road after a hard snow, only to come home at night to find the plow had been along during the day and a solid bank of snow again blocked the drive. You almost had to chop it down to get in, they say.

It's then that they look down the slope of their Victoria garden where a few late chrysanthemums are showing. They touch the pink and white fuchsia blossoms. And if someone says "rain", they merely shrug and tell you "let it rain ... we love it."

* * *

Those of us who have lived almost continuously in Victoria or its environments take our mild winters as a matter of course.

We shiver if the thermometer goes down a degree or two. We complain about the rain. And we consider the months from November to March as bleak and dreary. Too miserable in some instances to drive any distance from the city.

Yet, the countryside during the months from November to March has it own kind of beauty. This was brought home to me yesterday when I drove the few miles to Cowichan Bay. Certainly the day was grey and chilly. But there was color in the bracken and the fallen leaves along the roadside. In the reds of the dogwood trees, the clear greens of new moss on wet rocks and the brown and orange tones of the alders.

At the summit of the Malahat the Gulf Islands were etched against a grey blue sea and sky. In the background Mt. Baker and the adjacent peaks were clear and sharp.

Heart Patient Sues 19 Drug Companies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) A heart patient from Cleveland has brought a price-fixing suit in Philadelphia federal court against 19 drug firms.

Richard J. Cusick contended in Wednesday's suit that the firms internationally controlled the manufacture and distribution of quinine and its synthetic equivalent, quinidrine, to set "artificial prices."

His suit is based on the federal grand jury indictment brought against the same firms Oct. 25 in U.S. district court in New York.

3-YEAR SENTENCE IN $492,000 THEFT

PENTICTON (CP)—Kathleen Ann Spiller, 26, was sentenced in magistrate's coure today to three years for her part in the disappearance of $492,000 from the Royal Bank of Canada's Penticton branch.

Miss Spiller pleaded guilty last week to charges of theft over $50 and falsifying bank records.

As soon as sentence was passed, Miss Spiller gasped, clasped her hands to her face and dashed out of the courtroom with her lawyer Fred Herbert.

Still facing a theft charge in connection with the money disappearance is Francis (Bambi) Shubin, 41, a bookkeeper who shared a luxurious home in nearby Naramata with Miss Spiller.

She has not entered a plea on a charge of theft over $50 and will next appear in court November 25.

Saigon Wants To Head Talks

SAIGON (AP)—President Nguyen Van Thieu proposed today that his South Vietnamese government replace the United States as the leader of the anti-Communist negotiating team at the Paris peace talks.

Thieu proposed a new formula for organization of the Paris conference under which the Communist side would be led by the North Vietnamese. He said it could also include the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Even if the United States agrees to take a back seat at the Paris talks, North Vietnam appears certain to reject Thieu's attempt to give his government the No. 1 place on one side of the table while relegating the Viet Cong to a secondary role on the other. Hanoi has said repeatedly that the National Liberation Front is the only authentic representative of the South Vietnamese people.

TRIES TO COUNTER

Thieu's proposal was made in an attempt to counter the adverse reaction in the United States and elsewhere to his refusal to join the Paris peace talks this week.

President Johnson, in halting the bombing of North Vietnam, proposed that the Saigon regime and the NLF send representatives to the talks without specifying the status they would be accorded.

U.S. officials said Johnson envisioned a "your side-our side" conference with the position of the NLF and South Vietnamese delegations left vague. But Thieu refused because he said this was opening the door to recognition of the NLF, and he feared this would be the first step toward a coalition government which the Communists eventually would take over.

•

. . . And U.S. Studies Suggestion

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials promised prompt and careful study today of the South Vietnam government's proposal to take over from the United States the leading role in the Paris peace talks with North Vietnam.

Diplomatic officials feel South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu's position increases the urgency of a meeting between President Johnson and President-elect Richard M. Nixon and administration authorities are expected to consult quickly with Nixon or his representatives.

There is a widespread belief in the U.S. government that Thieu hardened his position on negotiating with the Communists—including his boycott of the Paris talks—because he expects more support from Nixon than he felt he had received from Johnson.

U.S. officials say Thieu originally agreed South Vietnam would participate in the Paris talks on the U.S. side of the table and the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front would join North Vietnam on its side.

MEETS OPPOSITION

But U.S. informants said Thieu ran into strong opposition among his own supporters and officials after Johnson got word from Hanoi Oct. 27-28 that North Vietnam would accept the "two sides" formula.

Thieu backed out of the "two sides" agreement Oct. 29, U.S. officials reported later.

Authorities here believe he acted not only because of the opposition of many of his own officials but also because they believe Nixon would take a much firmer stand than they thought Johnson was taking on this issue.

Their objective has been to establish a strong position for their government in the talks and to compel North Vietnam to downgrade the National Liberation Front, the Viet Cong guerrillas' political arm.

Better Tax Deal Demanded Before BNA Act: Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said Ontario will not negotiate constitutional changes at next month's conference in Ottawa until the province gets a better tax deal from the federal government.

Mr. MacNaughton said in an interview Thursday, Canada must first resolve federal-provincial shared-cost programs before constitutional problems can be solved.

Mr. MacNaughton added that Ontario is more interested in fundamental questions of taxation than in constitutional changes.

The constitutional conference is scheduled for Dec. 17-18, followed by a conference Dec. 19 on federal-provincial taxation problems.

Queen's Park officials, who returned this week from taxation sessions in Ottawa said it would be impossible for the bitter atmosphere of the taxation talks not to seep into the constitutional sessions.

They gave Ontario's taxation problem top priority over such federal projects as putting the Bill of Rights in the constitution—something the federal government cannot do without provincial agreement.

Mr. MacNaughton said both he and Premier John Robarts are determined not to leave the taxation question in its present state.

WILL USE POEWR

He added that Ontario wants a full reorganization of the system of federal, provincial and municipal taxes, and to get this the province is prepared to use its full constitutional power.

It is one thing for Ottawa to provide money in shared-cost areas such as health and education programs, but another to dictate how it would be spent.

"The two-per-cent social development tax in the Benson budget will be used at least partly for medicare, and there is some doubt about Ottawa's right to impose it on that basis," Mr. MacNaughton said.

Quebec is expected to introduce the question of shared-cost programs at the constitutional conference and to support Ontario's position in demanding a better system of distributing federal money, a government spokesman said.

Canada Will Abstain

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today Canada will take "the usual position" of abstaining on the Albanian motion to seat mainland China at the current session of the United Nations General Assembly.

Snow in Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canada's biggest city was hit today by its first snowfall of the season. Snow mixed with rain resulted in traffic tieups that were complicated by the fact that many people who normally commute to and from the city by train or bus use their cars on Fridays.

Czech Troops, Police Crack Down on Riots

PRAGUE (AP) — Thousands of anti-Soviet demonstrators marched through Prague Thursday night, shouting "Russians go home!" and burning Soviet flags in the biggest demonstrations since the Russian invasion in August.

Large numbers of Czechoslovak troops and police, under orders to crack down hard on the demonstrators, used water cannon, tear gas and clubs to break up the rioting.

Many persons were knocked down by police clubs, and many appeared to have been arrested. Ambulances carried away unknown numbers of wounded.

The six hours of rioting climaxed a tense, uneasy observance of the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, normally a day dedicated to Czechoslovak-Soviet friendship.

The tough police reaction contrasted sharply with the lenient manner in which anti-Soviet demonstrations were handled on Oct. 28, the 50th birthday of the Czechoslovak republic. Local leaders apparently were afraid that unchecked demonstrations would bring Soviet tanks rolling back into Prague.

Earlier, during a ceremony honoring Soviet soldiers killed during the Second World War, hard-line opponents of Czechoslovakia's liberal Communist party leader, Alexander Dubcek, grabbed him and shouted, "We're for the Soviet Union!"

Dubcek, who was with Premier Oldrich Cernik, managed a smile as several persons in the crowd shook their fists at the two leaders and shouted pro-Soviet slogans.

But in contrast to the thousands of anti-Soviets who turned out Thursday night, only about 500 pro-Soviets attended the memorial ceremony.

Nixon Sees Hubert

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — An aide to Richard M. Nixon said today the president-elect would meet with Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, the man he beat in Tuesday's U.S. election.

The meeting was arranged after Nixon phoned Humphrey earlier in the day and learned that the vice-president was bound for a Caribbean vacation.

'Time to Get Younger Man'

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today announced he is withdrawing as leader of the provincial New Democratic Party to make way for a younger man.

In an emotion-choked voice he read a prepared statement to reporters during a recess in an NDP caucus in the Legislative Building.

STRACHAN
. . . move a surprise

Mr. Strachan, who turns 55 next month, said the NDP is on the verge of becoming the government and he would remain leader only until the spring convention when the party could choose the next man it expects to become permier.

Mr. Strachan is the second party leader to become a casualty this year of the rapidly-changing political scene. Ray Perrault dropped out as Liberal leader to win a federal seat and he was succeeded last month by Pat McGeer.

Premier Bennett was reaffirmed at last week's convention as Social Credit leader but the government party took steps to write succession machinery into its constitution for the first time.

Mr. Strachan's statement to reporters said:

"I have today informed the provincial caucus of the New Democratic Party that I will not accept renomination as the provincial leader of the party at the next regular convention to be held in April, 1969.

"I will continue to fulfil my duties as leader of the party until that time.

"By that time I will have been leader of the party for 13 years and in those years the party has been growing in strength until it is now stronger than it has ever been.

Party 'Close to Electoral Win'

"The New Democratic Party is very close to electoral victory and I feel that a younger man should be in the position to chart the course and carry the load of leadership through 20 years of government.

"I am making the announcement at this time to allow the party members adequate time for thought and decision as to whom they will choose as my successor.

"Being leader of the Democratic Socialist movement in British Columbia has been and is a fruitful and enjoyable experience and I pledge my full support and help to the individual who succeeds me, no matter who that may be.

"I want to thank the thousands of people all over the province who have given me their support and help during my years as provincial leader.

"They were the people who made it all worthwhile and possible."

SIT AS MLA

At the end of his prepared statement, Mr. Strachan, answering questions, said he planned to continue sitting out his current term as MLA for Cowichan-Malahat and has not decided yet whether he will seek re-election.

There was no immediate announcement from other members of caucus as to plans for entering the leadership race.

Alex MacDonald, deputy leader for the past three years, declined to make any statement but he is not expected to run for the post.

CONTENDERS

Leading potential candidates are David Barrett, young social worker and veteran MLA and party organizer, and Robert Williams, a young planning expert who has become a power during his freshman term as MLA.

Lawyer Tom Berger also is expected to make the move for a second time after having been repulsed two years ago when a convention rejected his challenge of Mr. Strachan's leadership.

A possible draft choice, in the event of deadlock among candidates, is seen in David Stupich, fiery accountant representing

Train Theft 'Ringleader' Arrested

TORQUAY, England (AP) — Bruce Reynolds, a suspected ringleader of Britain's Great Train Robbery five years ago, was arrested today in this favorite holiday resort of British millionaires on the southwest coast.

A police announcement said Reynolds was arrested in connection with the £2,500,000 train robbery Aug. 8, 1963. About £400,000 of the loot has been recovered.

The British press in past years has portrayed Reynolds as a ringleader in the robbery. Police made it clear he was a major quarry of theirs but did not spell out publicly his suspected role.

Before devaluation a year ago, the stolen loot was worth $7,500,000.

The capture of Reynolds left only Ronald Biggs, a relatively minor figure in the robbery, still at large. Biggs escaped from London's Wandsworth prison in July, 1965.

Reynolds, 37, will be brought to London for questioning.

Reynolds has been Britain's most wanted fugitive since 12 days after the 1963 robbery.

Special Canvassers Ready . . . Just Give Them a Call

People who were missed during the residential canvass of the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal and want to make a donation may telephone the Community Chest office at 385-6708 and ask for a special canvasser to call on them.

Bill Patton of the Community Chest said today that many people were not home when the canvasser called and that a good percentage of these people likely will want to give.

"All they have to do is call us and we'll send a canvasser out to see them," he said.

He added that donations may be made to the United Appeal drive at the main branches of all Victoria banks, Woodward's, The Bay, Red Cross House and at the Community Chest office in Spencerhouse.

At noon today the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal fund stood at $431,950, or 65.6 per cent of its $655,000 objective.

Appeal officials hope to be "very near" the target within two weeks.

Warehouse of Books, Files Subject of Intensive Probe

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson today said a 10-man team of specialists has been assigned to go through a whole warehouseful of books and documents seized by RCMP Wednesday night from some 35 firms connected to the network "of what is known as the Commonwealth group."

He said the provincial government had frozen the bank and six individuals involved with the companies and indicated the federal government independently had seized other documents connected with the securities investigation.

The six individuals have been identified as A. G. Duncan Crux, Vancouver lawyer who was replaced in August by government-appointee A. D. Stanley as president of Commonwealth Trust (not under investigation now); Louis Lance Wener of Calgary; and Vancouverites Margaret Harling, H. S. Harrison Smith, C. G. Cornelis, G. Polvliet and Meredith D. Saunders, all reported as connected still to the company or rencently resigned.

Mr. Peterson emphasized that no trust companies in B.C. are included in the current investigation and blamed the "unfortunate" blanket wording of an RCMP official's statement to a House of Commons committee for touching off a flurry of "runs" by investors and depositers of several trust companies in the province.

In Vancouver Thursday night, Mr. Stanley — who also was appointed by a court order as receiver and custodian of the frozen assets of four specifically-named companies in the network — denied that he had estimated the potential loss as high as $80 million.

But he did say the sudden action was prompted by a fear that millions of dollars were about to be spirited out of the country from the companies and he confirmed that since his appointment he had discovered "some persons and companies had used funds for their own purposes."

Mr. Stanley said "we couldn't possibly say now what the figure is."

"If the attorney-general and the securities commission had not taken the action they did Wednesday (obtaining the freeze orders and seizing documents)

Before the Magistrate

Magistrate William Ostler Thursday expressed "utter dismay" over the mushrooming number of shoplifters.

He made the statement as four more appeared before him.

The magistrate said he had checked the records and found the number of convictions in October equalled the previous two months' total.

"Warnings from the bench printed in the press apparently are being scorned," he said.

Some other "disposition" is going to have to be made.

About two weeks ago he warned jail terms may be meted out.

"Instead of getting better it's getting worse," he said then.

In the case of a "dedicated community worker," the magistrate said:

"It's inexplicable that people in this position in the community should do this."

He fined Mrs. Margaret Doneley, 35, of 953 Cloverdale, $150 for stealing a $3.89 carton of cigarettes from the Town and Country shopping centre Safeway store on Oct. 18.

Her lawyer, Alan Bigelow, caled her a "very chastened woman."

In fining the woman, the magistrate said he was "reluctant to send otherwise respectable people to jail."

Two other women pleaded guilty to shoplifting from the same store on the same day.

Court was told Joan MacKenzie, 431 Forward, took $3.44 worth of meat and Ida Matheson, 1214 Carlisle, stole $2.25 worth of sandwiches and a carton of pickled eggs.

LOT OF PROBLEMS

Mrs. MacKenzie, who told the court she had three children, said she had lots of problems and didn't know why she did it.

Magistrate Ostler said everyone said that and he believed them but still persons continue to take things.

"The agony you've suffered since isn't worth it, is it?" he asked.

He asked Mrs. Matheson if she had intended to eat the sandwiches outside the store.

"It's tragic to see a person convicted of a criminal offence for stealing this sort of thing," he said.

A 19-year-old youth, who earlier pleaded guilty to stealing $1.25 worth of cigarettes from a downtown store, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a $500 one-year good-behavior bond.

TREATMENT

Magistrate Ostler told Timothy Seipp, 745 Goldstream, what he did was most reprehensible and the only reason he was being placed on probation was because he needed hospital treatment.

At an earlier hearing police said the accused told them he took the cigarettes because he had forgotten his own and didn't have any money with him.

Bruce Patterson, 20, of 1055 Nicholson, was sentenced to one month in jail for taking $18 from an envelope containing money collected for the United Appeal.

Magistrate Ostler said it was "perfectly outrageous" that a person should do such a thing and that the aspect of deterrence was so great he couldn't grant probation.

At an earlier hearing court was told the youth took the money from a fund at HMC Dockyard, CFB Esquimalt.

A charge against a man of attempting to break and enter the Medical Arts Building, 1105 Pandora, was dismissed.

Norman Robinson, of Campbell River, was charged July 28 with another man.

Robert Stephen Walker, 21, of 820 Fisgard, was sentenced to two years less a day after he pleaded guilty to possession of stolen property—four automobile wheels and two radios court was told were worth $246.15.

Police said the goods were the property of Firestone Stores, 833 Fisgard. The accused is serving a entence of two years less a day for charges of breaking and entering and theft, attempted breaking and entering and theft of an automobile.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said his record included convictions for breaking and entering and theft in 1967 and 1966.

Two men who pleaded guilty to several charges of false pretences were remanded to Nov. 14 for sentence.

Stephen Baxter pleaded guilty to three charges of cashing worthless cheques in Victoria totalling $86.98 between Oct. 19 and Nov. 4. Court was told he wished to have other similar pending matters also disposed of at this time.

Magistrate Ostler said he was wise to get it all cleared up. Any additional charges will be read Nov. 14.

Henry D'Aoust, no fixed address, also pleaded guilty to three charges of false pretences involving worthless cheques totalling $112.27. Police said he cashed the cheques at The Bay Oct. 22 to pay for various purchases.

D'Aoust asked for a presentence report and said he'd done the same thing in Vancouver and Winnipeg. Court was told he surrendered himself to the RCMP in Burnaby.

Robert Seddon, South Wellington, was fined $100 for driving while under a licence suspension. He drove on Hillside Avenue Oct. 2.

Fined $300 each for impaired driving were: Albert Clare, 411 Marigold; Gordon Roberts, 3044 Orillia; Murray Hurst, 214 Wildwood, and Walter Tonn, Work Point Barracks.

Population Will Double By 2006

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—There were about 3,420,000,000 people on this planet at mid-1967 and if the present growth rate continues the number will double by 2006.

A female born in Iceland has the best chance of a long life—76 years—while an infant girl born in Upper Volta has the worst chance—31.1 years.

In all parts of the world, married men and women live longer than single, widowed or divorced people.

Heart disease and cancer are the leading causes of death in most developed countries.

These are the conclusions of the 1968 UN Demographic Yearbook, full of statistics, charts and projections which generally add up to the fact that the world is getting more crowded.

The report shows the world populaion jumped by 6,000,000 from mid-1966 to mid-67. This means that at last count 180,000 children were being born each day.

Three-quarters of the earth's inhabitants live in what commonly are known as underdeveloped areas, which is taken to mean in relative poverty.

And half of the world's people make their home in Asia, including some 720,000,000 in mainland China.

16 Western Oils	232.75, up 3.82

Shares: 4,879,000.

Banks continued to climb to record levels in early afternoon trading in Montreal. Senior mines and oils were strong.

Pre-noon trading at Vancouver reached 2.8 million shares.

AT TORONTO on index, industrials gained 1.52 to 181.99, golds rose .33 to 203.76, base metals climbed .39 to 114.60 and western oils advanced 3.82 to 232.75.

In industrials, Computing Devices gained 3 to 26, Magna Electronics 2⅞ to 16¼, Dylex Diversified 2 to 80 and Great West Saddlery 1½ to 17. Union Oil fell 2 to 50 and Erie Flooring B 1¾ to 2.

Dome Pete jumped 7 to 88, Home Oil A 2 to 33⅛ and Scurry Rainbow 1¾ to 38¼.

Hudson Bay Mining was up 1 to 74, La Luz 5 cents to $9.80 and Teck Corp 45 cents to $6.35. Dynasty lost 1 to 13 and Placer ½ to 33½.

Final volume was 4,879,000 shares compared with 4,786,000 Thursday.

AT NEW YORK, a four-point jump by Johns-Manville boosted the industrial average. The stock continued to climb despite Thursday's disavowal by the company of a uranium find of commercial quantities in Canada.

A climb of nearly three points by General Foods also boosted the average of blue chip industrials.

American Motors, up a fraction, climbed to the top of the most-active list.

Also active, Grumman and Sinclair Oil gained about two each. Mohasco, whose proposed merger with American Standard was broken off, dropped about 3.

In Canadians, Canadian Pacific and Hudson Bay gained ⅝, Massey 1, Granby and Inco ⅜ and McIntyre Porcupine ⅛.

Prices advanced on the American Stock exchange.

Among Canadians, Scurry Rainbow was up 1⅝ and Brazilian Light and Power ⅛. Jubiter lost ⅛.

AT MONTREAL Royal edged up ⅝ to 23¾, Montreal ½ to 15⅞, Provincial ¼ to 9⅝ and Imperial ⅛ to 19¼. Nova Scotia lost ¼ to 24½.

Southam climbed 1½ to 58, Calgary Power 1½ to 27, Imperial Oil 1⅜ to 77¼, Hudson Bay Mining 1 to 74 and B.C. Telephone 1 to 66. Canadian Hydrocarbons fell 1½ to 20¾.

Dome Pete soared 10⅞ to 86 on only 600 shares.

Candore gained 2 cents to 50 cents on 112,000 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT VANCOUVER leading volume traders were Trojan and Buttle Lake, two mining companies with similar directors and many common properties.

Buttle gained .15 to $2.95 on a volume of 238,400 shares. Trojan added .03 to .58 on 396,800 shares.

Other mining action saw Arctic slip .08 to $1.87 and Alwin jump to $2.01.

Allied Roxana in the oils was up .06 to $1.70. Royal Canadian Ventures gained .10 to $2.90.

Among the industrials, MacMillan Bloedel was up .50 to $26.75. Great National Land lost .05 to $2.95.

AT LONDON, the stock markets were firmer today and most leaders recovered well. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel eased, still affected by the recent price cuts.

Woolworth's, Shell, Gillettes and Ford all managed to rise and Chrysler showed a six-point gain.

In Canadians, Hollinger, Hiram Walker and Inco were $2 lower. Hudsons Bay Oil and Gas and Consolidated Bathurst also fell. Those to advance included Noranda and Massey-Ferguson, with rise of $3 and $2 respectively, and Trans-Canada Pipe Line and Power Corporation.

Canadian banks were firm, led by Royal Bank of Canada, up about eight shillings. Bank of Montreal and Canadian Imperial both added about four shillings.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most prices moved in a narrow range in moderate activity on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Flax and rye came into some scale down buying as the session proceeded. Offers were light and the market steadied.

Rapeseed showed strength on exporter buying and light hedge offers and a sale of 150,000 bushels was made to Japan.

Oats and barley displayed fractional strength on curtailed offers by the wheat board in a domestic operation.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOV. 8, 1968 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

One morning this week, a man who belongs to the Royal Canadian Legion dropped in. With him he brought a carefully-typed piece about Remembrance Day . . . the usual pitch . . . and he hoped we would help poppy sales by printing it.

His name is Bob Scott, and we have talked a time or two about other matters.

I'm not sure that veteran Bob laid his screed on the right desk. Perhaps I've stood by at one Cenotaph service too many. But I respect plain men who fought wars; so here, stripped of the trimmings, is Bob Scott's message from the Legion:

"November 11th should not only be an occasion of remembrance of the Glorious Dead, it should also be a time for practical remembrance of the disabled veterans, widows and dependants of the fallen who are in need of a helping hand. Poppy Day, organized by Legion branches, provides everyone with an opportunity for practical remembrance. It is hoped that the people of Greater Victoria, as in years past, will wear poppies."

Sure, I'll wear a poppy, and hope you will, too, even though the great wars are long past, and though I sometimes wonder whether we should go on resurrecting them year by year. The poppy, after all, is not the flower of remembrance but of forgetfulness. Still, the kids would miss the holiday, and some would lose more than that.

★

There are children of servicemen whose deaths were hastened by the war, even though they survived it. Some of the poppy money goes to provide high school or university bursaries for them, or to supplement their mothers' pensions with a few needed dollars.

Also, the take from those Vet Craft poppies buys small comforts for the men in our DVA hospital—a place which out of sheer cowardice, I have yet to visit. Why take the lid off hurtful memories of another veterans' hospital and a man who, increasingly as his life progressed, paid for a plain soldier's part in a war?

For war never really takes its claws out of a man, even if he survives it, and comes home, and picks up his life again. That, I suppose, is why the Legion keeps reminding us with its stiff red poppies each November of something that should have faded into history.

There, the children of the Bomb might prefer to let old wars remain. They have their own worries.

Even so, very many of them wear poppies. Their reasons make sense:

From a girl: "I don't believe in war. I guess just because they were brave men."

From one young man: "I'd feel kind of guilty if I didn't. Anyway, the money does some good."

★

They were men, and perhaps their chief bravery was that they endured from one day to the next.

"Mon., June 25, 1917.

"Rainy night. Arrived back at dugout after making two trips to front line, 2:30 a.m. An officer of Engineers was killed, the Tenth buried a man. Slept from 6 a.m. till 1 p.m., lucky to find a blanket. Heavy shellfire all day, but in spite of that, Prior and I went to spring for water and a wash. On way back, we gathered a bouquet of lovely white, cream, red and pink roses and put them on graves. Went out on carrying party at 10:15 p.m. . . ."

But there were damned few roses, or poppies either, and for July 23, that determined, workaday diarist managed only one feebly-scrawled word.

"Painful."

This after four blank days. The same shrapnel storm fatally wounded Prior, his best friend.

So I wear a poppy—which is also the flower of sleep—for his pain, and his yearning for peace, and for all soldiers of all armies who shared the pain and the yearning. Perhaps in some far millenium that peace will be universal.

Wage Bid Reduced By Teachers

Greater Victoria teachers dropped their pay increase request from 10.17 to 8 per cent Thursday but failed to evoke any response from the school board.

Negotiations are "virtually stalled" because of the board's refusal to make an offer, said teachers' negotiator Burke Cahill.

The board is still waiting for a reasonable proposal before making an offer, said E. E. Pearlman, the trustees' negotiator.

At issue is more than $10 million in salaries for the district's 1,280 teachers. They settled for a seven per cent increase plus fringe benefits a year ago.

The board did request a further meeting Thursday.

Both teachers and trustees in the Sooke school district have declined issuing statements on negotiations there.

And in the school district covering the Saanich Peninsula a teachers' spokesman said negotiations are proceeding amicably and agreement expected without arbitration. Teachers are asking for a 7½ per cent increase.

$300 Scholarship Given Uvic Grad

Martin Moseley, a science graduate of the University of Victoria, has been awarded a $300 scholarship for engineering studies.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moseley, 962 Page, he is in his graduating year at the University of British Columbia. He graduated from Uvic in 1964.

The scholarship was awarded by Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd., as one of seven presented to UBC students.

Mr. Moseley is married and now resides in Vancouver.

ARSON BID RULED OUT AT SCHOOL

Further investigation of a small fire overnight Wednesday at the old North Ward School has revealed it was caused by sparks from a fire lit earlier in the day in a boiler.

Fire officials said the boiler was connected to a partially dismantled chinmey. Earlier it was believed arson might have been involved.

A spokesman for the fire department said the terms of the demolition contract with the city forbid any burning on the premises and the department intended to enforce the regulations.

He also said the building will have to be supervised because it is now classed as a fire hazard.

Mailboxes Wrecked In Saanich

Saanich police are investigating nearly a dozen "deliberate acts of vandalism" in which mailboxes have been torn from their posts and smashed.

Reports of the incidents trickled into police headquarters all day Thursday and today from residents in the West Saanich area. Police believe youths driving around in a car were responsible.

One resident on Prospect Lake Road reported his mailbox had been torn down for the 10th time. Another, on Viaduct, said it was the fourth time the box had been damaged. Vandals ripped the boxes from their posts and then stove them in with large rocks.

Of the 12 incidents reported three took place on Wallace Drive and Goward Road, two on Prospect Lake Road and one each on Viaduct, West Saanich, Old West Road and Burnside. In one case a sign was taken also.

Brothers Likes Merger Proposal

By DON VIPOND

A school board plan to phase out two old elementary schools serving James Bay and consolidate operations in a third has drawn encouragement from Education Minister Donald Brothers.

The schools are James Bay, Beacon and South Park, the latter now the oldest school in the district with the demolition of North Ward.

In a tour of South Park this week Mr. Brothers was enthusiastic about the idea of merging facilities at the James Bay site.

School board chairman Peter Bunn said today the education minister's reaction leads the board to seek "some really meaningful discussions with our friends at city hall right now."

There is no room for additions on the James Bay school site as it stands and this is where discussions with the city come in.

The school is alongside Macdonald Park which the city controls. But the school board can point out that the South Park and Beacon school sites go to the city when they are no longer needed.

The school merger idea has been simmering for some time but the possibility of an urban renewal project in the James Bay area has been a factor in delaying action.

COMPLAINTS

Mr. Bunn said the school board has had complaints about sub-standard school conditions in James Bay and is well aware of them.

There is money approved by referendum for the work but no sense in going off "half cocked."

"We've had to hold off for a really worthwhile over-all plan."

The school board chairman said Mr. Brothers showed keen interest in trustees' longe-range planning and complimented former board for their foresight in acquiring economically school sites years in advance of need.

He Was Sick, Knew It And Made Right Move

By PETE LOUDON

"I was going to work every morning with butterflies in my stomach—sick afraid.

"When I got home at night, my impulse was to go to bed and pull the covers over my head.

"I didn't want to read or watch TV or talk to the kids. There just wasn't any point in doing anything."

The speaker's name, if he would reveal it, would be familiar to many Victorians. They would wonder what could inspire such fear and despondency in him.

He couldn't tell them himself.

"There was no reason for it, but there it was. I had a secure position which previously I had enjoyed. My family relationships were good. Our future was bright. But suddenly it all meant nothing."

He was experiencing, as he found out later, a mental illness, the one called depression. About 20 people a year in a city the size of Greater Victoria commit suicide because of depression.

The man telling the story said he had an advantage over some depressives; he recognized that he was sick and he went to his doctor. He was sent to a psychiatrist; they had some talk sessions and an antidepression drug was tried.

• • •

After a few weeks the trouble was gone. Now he talks quite freely to friends about the time he had to go to a "head shrinker" and went on "happy pills."

But he won't put his name in this story.

"I figure there are still too many people around who would never forget I had a mental illness. They would never quite trust me again."

Statistics show that three out of 10 Canadians experience some mental problems in their lifetime and one out of 10 spends time in a mental hospital. That means mental illness probably has touched the family circle in every fourth home on your block.

When everyone fully understands that, when it's accepted that a mentally-ill person can be cured, often faster than he can mend a broken leg, people will seek help earlier, be cured more easily.

Public education to that end is one of the jobs of Canadian Mental Heatlh Association. The Victoria branch office at 2316 Lee also works at helping some of the 78,000 Canadians in mental hospitals back into a useful life.

Just a f[illegible]ars ago there were more people taking [illegible] beds in mental hospitals than there were in all other types of hospitals combined, says Mrs. Joan Dumka, executive director. Now, because so many mental ills can be treated on an out-patient basis, mental hospital occupancy is less than in other hospitals.

• • •

Part of the reason is the CMHA program for persons who have come out of the mental hospitals or who might be going in, if someone here didn't show they cared.

It's the experience of being lost and alone and out of touch that makes the minor case slide down to the major illness level. CMHA counters with acceptance, companionship, hobbies, advice on home problems.

The patient who can't communicate with his own family finds comfort in the company of others who know his problem. CMHA has active drama clubs, discussion groups, hobby classes, some even geared to match age categories and income levels.

Last year 115 Victoria residents used the CMHA centre as a haven. Some came every day. Most days a couple of dozen drop in. Without the centre many of them would sit at home until they completely lost touch and needed institutional care.

The volunteer helpers, the home-made cakes, the soothing effect of painting or woodworking, of listening to music, keeps dozens of people out of hospital each year. And each year 10 or 11 people who were sick climb back to useful jobs through the doors of the centre.

That's why it has a usefulness to Victoria. That's why United Appeal provides two-thirds or more of its $30,000 budget. That's why Victoria backs United Appeal.

Action Ordered To Expropriate Pool Site Land

Firm Pays Fine For Breaking Nematode Law

Plants Transported Without Authority

A firm which violated the British Columbia Plant Protection Act has been fined $100 in Duncan magistrate's court.

The act contains regulations which control the spread of the dreaded golden nematode.

Duncan's Farmer Auction, Ltd., pleaded guilty to removing plants with soil attached from Victoria lands to Cowichan Station without the authorization of a provincial or federal plant inspector.

The charge was laid by the federal department of agri culture which administers the act.

It is the first crackdown under the act which designated in 1966 the whole of southern Vancouver Island a plant quarantine area following an outbreak of golden nematode.

The area involves all of the land south of the Malahat. This includes the Saanich Peninsula, Victoria, and the unorganized districts right through to Port Renfrew.

COSTLY PROJECT

Under the act no person may remove plants with soil attached from the quarantine area. These include house plants.

The department to date has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to control and eradicate the pest, first discovered on a Saanich bulb farm.

Golden nematode attacks the roots of potatoes and tomatoes and if allowed to spread to other parts of the Island and the mainland, would affect Canada's farm economy.

"So far we have been successful in controlling the pest," said federal plant inspector Roy Messum. "This would not have been possible without the cooperation of farmers."

VISITING Victoria to autograph copies of his new book "Distemper of Our Times," Canadian political analyst Peter C. Newman will be at Eaton's book department Saturday at 1 p.m. A 12-part condensation of Mr. Newman's view of the Pearson era is currently appearing on Page 5 of the Times.

Youths Jailed For Attempt To Rob Store

Two youths who earlier pleaded guilty to attempting to break into a city grocery store today were given lengthy definite and indeterminate sentences in the Young Offenders' Unit.

Magistrate William Ostler sentenced Marko Smart, 18, to 12 to 30 months and Neils Larson, 20 years, to 12 to 24 months. Both gave addresses to the police as 2809 Nanaimo Street.

At an earlier hearing court was told the youths together with a 16-year-old juvenile attempted to enter the Busy Bee store, 1134 Hillside, Oct. 28.

THWARTED

Police said Smart tried to cut the window with glass cutters and after failing put his jacket on the window and broke the glass.

The youths then attempted to cut a steel mesh on the inside of the window which was also unsuccessful. They were later apprehended in front of the store by city police officers.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said Smart had a lengthy juvenile record and had received a 14 to 20-month term for theft in February, 1967. He said Larson had also admitted having a record.

At that time Magistrate Ostler told the youths there was no need in this country to break and enter for food. He made the comment after police said they told him they hadn't eaten for five days.

Moist Weekend Seems Likely

It's going to continue cloudy and moist.

Rain will continue to fall tonight, possibly break slightly Saturday afternoon, then return Sunday afternoon and evening, the weather office predicts.

That could be the story for Remembrance Day, too, although forecasters did not want to put their necks out that far.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me whether the HMS ship the Hood was ever salvaged? Was it ever proved that one shot from 17 miles away was responsible for her going down?—M.S.T.

A. The Hood was sunk in a Second World War battle with the German ship the Bismark and went down in 6,000 feet of water. It has not been salvaged. An eyewitness to the battle says visibility at the time was poor and it is "unlikely" that the fatal shot was fired at a range of 17 miles. He said the shot was more likely fired at a range of six or seven miles. The shot hit some ammunition supplies in the Hood and caused the explosion which sank her.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Price Hangup With Eight Householders

Victoria moved two steps closer Thursday to its new swimming pool to replace the Crystal Garden.

The first came when the city's recreation and community services committee ordered start of expropriation proceedings against eight hold-out property owners on the new pool site.

The second when the same committee ordered the launching of an immediate search for the best swimming pool consultant in the west.

Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman of the committee, reported that half the land required for the pool had already been purchased but that eight property owners had failed to come to agreement with the city on price.

Expropriation of the properties, generally believed to be in the vicinity of Central Park, is expected to take place following next Thursday's city council meeting.

Expropriation means that the courts will set the final price to be paid the property owners.

LOCAL DESIGNER

Committee members agreed that a top consultant should be called in to advise on what type of pool should be built but they dug in their heels when it was suggested that an out-of-town firm might also be the best designers of the new pool.

Bob Hutchison said he agreed with calling in an expert as a consultant but insisted a local architect should do the actual design.

Michael J. Griffin agreed.

SEPARATE STAGES

Mr. Young and Ald. Frampton both assured the committee that the planning and design of the pool would take place in separate stages.

"It will be carefully spelled out that the consultant will be just that," he said. "The actual design should certainly go to a local architect."

This morning committee members expressed surprise at published reports that a last-minute bid to save the Crystal has failed.

A Colonist story stated that "a final pitch to keep the Crystal Garden from being demolished was made Thursday by architect Peter Cotton and swimming coach Gerald Vowles."

Mr. Cotton is quoted as saying demolition would deprive the city of a distinctive and unique building. Mr. Vowles is quoted as saying demolition of the Crystal would eliminate any chances Victoria ever had of developing champion swimmers.

The story subsequently stated that "the men who decide the city's recreation policy were not swayed by either argument."

PUZZLED

Committee chairman Ald. Frampton said he was puzzled by the report.

"It's a little bewildering to read about something that never happened," he said. "Neither man was at the meeting and neither man has ever protested to me either verbally or by letter."

Mr. Griffin, a former alderman and a member of council when the original decision to demolish the Crystal was made, said he thought he was dreaming when he read the report.

"I don't know how you answer this," he said. "I was at the meeting from start to finish and I didn't see nor hear of any protest. Had there been one I would have referred both men and the Colonist reporter to the impartial engineers report of 18 months to two years ago.

"That report told us in very certain terms that it would cost us half a million dollars to bring the Crystal up to scratch and $750,000 to make it safe."

Three Injured In Noon Crash

Three persons were taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital following a two car accident at Wascana and West Maddock at about noon today.

No names or details were available at press time but the injured were believed to be two young boys and a woman. All were in one car which suffered extensive damage. The occupants of the other vehicle were not reported injured.

U.K. Orders Extradition

LONDON (CP) — Britain's Appeal Court today ordered the extradition of Toronto stock promoter Myer Rush to Canada on seven of eight charges dealing with funds obtained by fraud or false pretences, but not on the major charge of conspiring to defraud the public of $100 million in fraudulent stock sales.

Lord Parker, lord chief justice, said it was his judgment that the stock conspiracy was aimed at United States citizens and not Canadians, and therefore was outside the jurisdiction of Canadian authorities.

Ontario to Cut Building Red Tape

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans to cut red tape for home-builders and developers by giving local governments control over their own zoning and planning, Darcy McKeough, municipal affairs minister, said Monday.

Speaking at a symposium on urban life in the 1970s, at the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association annual meeting, Mr. McKeough said municipalities with government-approved official plans will no longer have to seek provincial approval for zoning-bylaw schemes.

He said the relaxation of restrictions will apply as Ontario municipalities come under regional governments during the next few years and have their official plans approved by the province.

Offices Opening For Tax Appeals

OTTAWA (CP) — Four tax appeal offices of the national revenue department are being opened in Vancouver, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto to help taxpayers avoid taking their cases to court, the revenue department announced today.

Such regional offices were suggested by the Royal commission on taxation headed by Kenneth Carter, Toronto accountant and tax consultant.

Banks continued to climb to record levels in early afternoon trading in Montreal. Senior mines and oils were strong.

Pre-noon trading at Vancouver reached 2.8 million shares.

AT TORONTO on index, industrials gained 1.52 to 181.99, golds rose .33 to 203.76, base metals climbed .39 to 114.60 and western oils advanced 3.82 to 232.75.

In industrials, Computing Devices gained 3 to 26, Magna Electronics 2⅞ to 16¼, Dylex Diversified 2 to 80 and Great West Saddlery 1⅛ to 17. Union Oil fell 2 to 50 and Erie Flooring B 1¾ to 2.

Dome Pete jumped 7 to 88, Home Oil A 2 to 33⅛ and Scurry Rainbow 1⅜ to 38¼.

Hudson Bay Mining was up 1 to 74, La Luz 5 cents to $9.80 and Teck Corp 45 cents to $6.35. Dynasty lost 1 to 13 and Placer ½ to 33½.

Final volume was 4,879,000 shares compared with 4,786,000 Thursday.

AT NEW YORK, a four-point jump by Johns-Manville boosted the industrial average. The stock continued to climb despite Thursday's disavowal by the company of a uranium find of commercial quantities in Canada.

A climb of nearly three points by General Foods also boosted the average of blue chip industrials.

American Motors, up a fraction, climbed to the top of the most-active list.

Also active, Grumman and Sinclair Oil gained about two each. Mohasco, whose proposed merger with American Standard was broken off, dropped about 3.

In Canadians, Canadian Pacific and Hudson Bay gained ⅝, Massey 1, Granby and Inco ⅜ and McIntyre Porcupine ⅛.

Prices advanced on the American Stock exchange.

Among Canadians, Scurry Rainbow was up 1⅜ and Brazilian Light and Power ⅛. Jubiter lost ⅛.

AT MONTREAL Royal edged up ⅝ to 23¾, Montreal ½ to 15⅞, Provincial ¼ to 9⅜ and Imperial ⅛ to 19¼. Nova Scotia lost ¼ to 24½.

Southam climbed 1½ to 58, Calgary Power 1½ to 27, Imperial Oil 1⅜ to 77¼, Hudson Bay Mining 1 to 74 and B.C. Telephone 1 to 66. Canadian Hydrocarbons fell 1½ to 20¾.

Dome Pete soared 10⅞ to 86 on only 600 shares.

Candore gained 2 cents to 50 cents on 112,000 shares in speculative mines and oils on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

AT VANCOUVER leading volume traders were Trojan and Buttle Lake, two mining companies with similar directors and many common properties.

Buttle gained .15 to $2.95 on a volume of 238,400 shares. Trojan added .03 to .58 on 396,800 shares.

Other mining action saw Arctic slip .08 to $1.87 and Alwin jump to $2.01.

Allied Roxana in the oils was up .06 to $1.70. Royal Canadian Ventures gained .10 to $2.90.

Among the industrials, MacMillan Bloedel was up .50 to $26.75. Great National Land lost .05 to $2.95.
